Did not thy proud heart bunt, Thou reckless rider of the stormy main, When o'er the unsullied plumage first Was flung man's chain? Oh! thou whose infancy was nurs'd 'Mid all the Leedom of the skies, How could thy spirit prize

Life c'er again ?

More bright or free !

Tempests were at thy birth, and the white waves Sprang up rejoicing round thy rugged home; And as a lullaby, from deep-mouthed caves, Wild ocean songs would come Bathed in the breaker's foam, Rocked into slumbers on the swelling sen, Never was wild bird's infancy

No more---sad prophecy! ah! never more Will joys like these unbind thy frozen heart; The unreposing ocean and dark shore,

The giant cliff, the cavern's hollow roar, Now of thy narrow life can form no part, All prisoned, pining, wretched as thou art ! Existence is a waste, thy soul lies dead, The snows upon thy wing have melted there, Drooped is thy glorious head, Stain'd is thy bosom once so purely fair;

Dimm'd is the broad bright eye That looked but from the billow to the sky ! Better, far better had thy life blood dyed The beaving sen;
Better thy last breath had been sighed
Where all was free;
Better had heedless waves triumphantly

Swept o'er thy pride,
Than to a lone existence thus to cling
And hear the wild winds mock at thy unlifted wing!

RABBI-TICAL.

The Editor of the Edgefield Advertiser has had the budding promises of his garden cropped short, not by the biting frost and snow, but by sundry insolent and thieving rabbits. His case being remediless at the law, for want of a known and effective capias, he has sued out in the court extraordinary, an injunction against further waste. The following final decision of the case, appeared in the Advertiser of last week:

THE RABBIT QUESTION SOLVED .- There is nothing like asking for information on any point whatever. In reply to our query touching those garden depredators termed rabbits, we have received *several answers, the substance of which we will briefly give for the benefit of all good housekeepers and horticulturists.

One deposes (and this one is a lady) that she was recently troubled just as we have been-that she forthwith despatched a servant for powder and shot-that she armed said servant after night-fall with a doublebarrelled gun-that she stationed him as sentry over a beautiful bed of English Peas ceive his report, and that he presented a list nual Exhibition of the State of Maryland. of five killed and one wounded, that she ordered this mode of warfare to be continued

Grand Piano, in a modern style, handsome wood,

In case of failure on the part of the contractors application to the Navy Agents at Pertsmouth, N. for a few successive nights, and that now her garden is entirely clear of the wretches. And further, the deponent sayeth not.

Another, (and this one is a doctor, who has rambled much, and has heard many an old widow discuss the subject,) avers that he has often been told by this oracular old dame, that to catch a big buck-rabbit, kill him, sprinkle his blood in and about the spot threatened with invasion and mastication, and then to extend his hide upon a stick or sticks near the centre of said spot, made up, altogether, an infallible preventive of all such rabbitical incursions. And here ended the doctor's information.

A third, (and this is a voice from, Newberry,) says to us briefly and emphatically, "make your garden so that they can't get in: that is, rabbit-tight. That is the way we do in Newberry, and we are some on gardening.

A fourth, (and this is a shrewd and experienced spinster friend of ours,) declares that well-seasoned pot-liquor, sprinkled carefully about the roots of the plants, is an infallible antidote for all such evils. (Did our friend omit the d before the last word intentionally?)

A fifth, (and this one is, as he says, "an old rabbit-hunter") announces the following as "a sure plan by which to scare the rascals away:" Go around your garden, says he, and stop all the holes except the one mostly used by the long-eared thief. A few nights after, at 9 o'clock precisely, send a careful hand around and let him stop the hole you before left open. Then let all the children and little negroes and dogs be mustered and turned in at the gate, which being well secured behind them, order the whole pack to open in full cry, and you will soon have the rogue and some fun along with him. Then take him outside the gar den, (if he be caught slive,) cutoff both his ears close to his head-turn him loose a few paces ahead of all the Hounds and Fice you can parade, "and he will lope off,"concludes the old hunter, "and not return again shortly." May be not, old horse !-Neither will we "return again shortly" to the
