Off to the Mountains.

Editor Rowell accompanied by his daughter, Miss Nettie, left Monday for Hendersonville, to attend the N. C. Press Association. This Association will be well attended by the editors of this and adjoining States. Hendersonville is one of the most picturesque and beautiful villages in the United States. It is situated in the midst of the Blue Ridge mountains, and the natural scenery thereabout is not surpassed anywhere. We envy the editors their prospective pleasures, and are sure that none will enjoy the mountain breezes and sublime surroundings more than the faithful editor of this paper.
