COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Mr. John G. Tarwater Takes His Own Life.

A PROMINENT CITIZEN.

Our town was thrown into great excitement last Wednesday morning, when it was reported that Mr. John G. Tarwater had fatally shot himself through the head with a pistol. This rash act was undoubtedly committed during an attack of temporary mental aberration, resulting from overwork and the excessive burdens growing out of his extensive business.

For some time Mr. Tarwater had been greatly depressed, and was nervous and gloomy; but no one imagined that his condition was serious. On Tuesday night he seemed more cheerful, but on Wednesday morning he was greatly depressed and quite nervous. Secretly securing his pistol he hurriedly left the house, and went into a field adjoining the town, where hiding himself in a gully, he committed the fatal act that ushered him into eternity.

As soon as it was known that he had left the house, taking his pistol with him, efforts were made to ascertain his whereabouts, but the report of the pistol that ended his life guided the people to him. Kind friends tenderly carried him to his home, where Drs. Macon and King did all that could be done to save him; but their efforts were in vain. He remained unconscious until about one o'clock, when his tired spirit entered into the great beyond.

Under any circumstances the death of Mr. Tarwater would have been a cause of sincere regret throughout the entire community; but the startling tragedy which ended his career has greatly intensified the sorrow of his friends, and cast a gloom over the entire community.

Mr. Tarwater came to Warrenton about thirty years ago, and engaged in business. During his residence here he has engaged in various enterprises, and has shown himself an energetic, public-spirited citizen. For the last fifteen years he and his brother have conducted their present business with marked ability and success, and seemed to be entering upon a period of unusual prosperity.

In early life Mr. Tarwater made a profession of religion and united with the Baptist church in Clarksville, Va., where he remained his membership until his death. He was a kind-hearted man and a public-spirited citizen. He was devoted to members of his family, and his mother and sisters and brother (his father died before he came here) were the objects of tender and loving devotion.

On the 12th. of June 1900, Mr. Tarwater was united in marriage to Miss Lizzie Macon. To them God gave one son who bears the name of his father. His wife and family the prostrated on account of his death, and the whole community joins them in sorrow, and extends to them heartfelt sympathy. The funeral service took place from the Baptist church yesterday at 3 o'clock and the interment took place in Fallview cemetery.

Mrs. Thad E. Manning, from Hen-derson, was the guest of Mrs. W. A. Burwell Wednesday and Thursday.
