"Pneumonia's Deadly Work

had so seriously affected my right lung," writes Mrs. Fannie Connor, of Rural Route 1, Georgetown, Tenn., "that I coughed continuously night and day and the neighbors' production of consumption seemed inevitable, until my husband brought home a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, which in my case proved to be the only real cough cure and restorer of weak, sore lungs." When all other remedies utterly fail, you may still win in the battle against lung and throat troubles with New Discovery, the real remedy. Guaranteed by C. A. Thomas druggist. 50c. and $1.00.

NAN WAS RIGHT

They were very much in love, Ethelwynne and Percy—at least Ethelwynne was, and in the secret recesses of her mind and heart she felt pretty sure that Percy was too. Percy was bashful. There was no doubt of that. Times without number had she given him the best chances in the world to tell her that he loved her, and he had not told her. She had lured him into the most dimly lit corners at the "proposals parties," which all the girls were having. She had half pretended to take his play proposal seriously, but that hadn't been successful. She remembered with a sting of wounded vanity, that he had actually seemed relieved when his five minutes were up and he had gone on to propose to the next girl.

ANIMAL EPICURES.

The Crab Eating Raccoon and Peuliar Crustacean Taste. What made the crab eating raccoon first take to his queer diet? The question is suggested by a specimen of this strange animal which has arrived at the menagerie and will be happy to oblige any generous visitor with an illustration of the quickest way to kill, mangle and swallow a crustacean without artificial assistance of any kind. Doubtless the peculiarity originated in the shore frequenting habits of the species, and, being a delicate feeder, the succulence of the crab, once cracked, was an obvious inducement to renew his acquaintance on every possible occasion. Originally probably a fruit eater, the raccoon is inquisitive and dainty, both strong incentives to experiments in diet. When an individual sees a small object he does not understand, his actions fall under three headings. He first puts the article to close scrutiny, both with his eyes and that supercilious upturned nose of his; then he takes it away and washes it—a very characteristic action of this water loving animal—and finally puts it to the grand test of edibility or otherwise. If it appears unpalatable, he gives it to his wife. In this way it is easy to imagine how the creek loving coon, yearning of too much fruit, made his first crab supper and, though he has never been able to add a squeeze of lemon or brown bread and butter to the repast, has become a confirmed lover of crustacea ever since. All creatures make experiments of the sort and occasionally carry them on until they become a fixed habit, and their whole structure is modified in accordance. Nature, for instance, never intended the coon to live on fish. It was the temptation of an old world trout in difficulties in the shallows that first led the great hawk astray. Some small Brazilian monkeys, again, live almost exclusively on birds' eggs, an Australian parrot has given up a proper vegetarian diet for an exclusive regimen of mutton, and many other instances of the same unorthodox appetites might be cited. —London Globe.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A good many loafers imagine they are philosophers. You are very fond of your opinions. Let other men enjoy theirs. Parents will say their children are bad, but won't stand it from others. Enthusiasm is all right provided you don't meet a man who is full of it when you are bustled. The average man has more respect for a thief than a deadbeat. And thieves are not held in high esteem. When a man tells his "story," always remember that he exaggerates it and that he isn't fair with the other fellow. Among the white races more than seven-tenths of religion is confined to women. Yet the men run things. Very few men are really religious, while you find few women who are not.—Atchison Globe.

Swish!

One of the first secretaries of agriculture was a man of great shrewdness and ability, which were not incompatible with a certain slow footed ease. He was known to be late at cabinet meetings, where tardiness is a serious breach of etiquette. One day when he came into a meeting a minute or two late one of the other secretaries, thinking to give a helpful rebuke, said: "Hello! Here comes the tail of the administration." The secretary slid leisurely into his seat and then answered: "Well, the tail may come in handy some day to brush the flies off the rest of the administration."—Youth's Companion.
