Warren County Annual Farmers Institute.

The annual Farmers Institute for Warren County, will be held at Warrenton, Wednesday, July 17, 1907.

No attempt will be made at this meeting to lay down hard and fast rules by which any man should run his farm, but improved farming methods will be discussed.

Do not forget the date of this meeting, Warrenton, Wednesday, July 17, 1907, and see that your neighbors know of it and attend.

The Magic No. 3.

Number three is a wonderful mascot for Geo. H. Parris, of Cedar Grove, Me., according to a letter which reads: "After suffering much with liver and kidney trouble, and becoming greatly discouraged by the failure to find relief, I tried Electric Bitters, and as a result I am a well man to-day.

He Fired the Stick.

"I have fired the walking stick I've carried over 40 years, on account of a sore that resisted every kind of treatment, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; that has healed the sore and made me a happy man," writes John Garrett, of North Mills, N. C.

Institute for the Women from the Farm Homes.

In connection with the regular, annual Farmers Institute for Warren County, to be held at Warrenton July 17, 1907, there will also be held a meeting for the women from the farms.

The women have even greater and more perplexing problems in the homes than the men have on the farms. Why should they not come together and discuss these problems and get inspiration and help in solving them?

We have heard of no woman attending such an institute who did not become interested. Do not forget this meeting for the women at Warrenton, July 17, 1907.

Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy. Many have Dyspepsia and Don't Know It.

Do you belch up wind? Taste your food after eating? See specks before the eyes? Are you pale and haggard? Does your heart flutter? Are you dizzy? Do you have pains in side or back? Risings or pimples on the skin? Are you low spirited? Is there a sour taste? Breath bad? Headache? Weak kidneys? Bilious? Constipated? Are you nervous? If so, you have Dyspepsia, and it is a dangerous condition.

Even if you set a good example it won't hatch anything. You can't tell a woman's age after she takes Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Her complexion is fine. She is round, plump, and handsome; in fact she is young again. 35 cents; Tea or Tablets. The Hunter Drug Co.

A RIVAL OF WHISTLER.

The Russian Wolkoff's Attempted Imitation of the Pastels.

One evening there was a convivial gathering of men from many different nations seated about a table in an open court of the Bauer Grunwald, a well known Venetian restaurant. The conversation, I believe, was in English, and the subject of Whistler's pastels was brought up by one of his enthusiastic American admirers.

The more brains a man has the less chance there is of his head swelling.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or Kidneys, or Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only.

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Life Pills. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work."

A Fortunate Texan.

Mr. E. W. Goodloe, of 107 St. Louis St., Dallas, Tex., says: "In the past year I have become acquainted with Dr. King's New Life Pills, and no laxative I ever before tried so effectively disposes of malarial and biliousness. They don't grind nor gripe. 25c at C. A. Thomas drug store.

PRESENTED AT COURT

Experience of an American at an English Royal Levee.

A RAPID TRANSIT FUNCTION.

He Was In and Through and Out Before He Really Realized What Had Happened--The Way His Difficulty About a Costume Was Overcome.

A six foot American who had secured a "command" to one of the English royal levees recently found himself in a pretty predicament. On his notification paper was the hint that levee dress was indispensable. In the guileless innocence of his democratic soul the American took this to mean that frock coat and shiny shoes would be called for.

Consideration ensued. It continued to ensue when owing to his height and girth no borrowable suit was discovered.

The American would not let him slip through in that way, so he managed to make it possible for his Russian friend to select numerous small pieces from Whistler's own pastel boxes. He selected all he wanted or thought he needed for the easy task of making a Whistler pastel and after this exceptional accommodation returned to his work, saying he would be ready for the jury in a week.

How or by whom the six jurors were selected I do not know, but I remember that two strangers, an Austrian and a Dutchman, were among them. Spain was represented by Martin Rico, England by Henry Woods, R. A. and America by Frank Durvencel and myself.

All this was preliminary to the presentation of the man's wife and daughter at the drawing room. Men are presented at the king's levee, and the women undergo the same ordeal at the court or drawing rooms, which are by far the more imposing functions.

None but a very old habitue of the court and then she never below the rank of a countess--would dream of appearing at court in a costume that she had worn there before. The item of flowers alone is one of vast importance. If it were not for the drawing rooms the large florists could not exist.

Every woman who is presented goes armed with a bouquet, whose value is at least a pound, and some of them are worth ten times that sum. Then there are the bookmakers and the hosiers and the milliners to consider, to say nothing of the people who lend carriages.

Suppose there are at a low estimate 500 people on the presentation list. Of these every mother's daughter has herself photographed in her court costume, and London court photographers are notorious for their stiff prices.

St. James' park on the night of a drawing room is filled with Londoners who wander up and down the double line of carriages stabled in the mall, peering into the windows and criticizing the costumes of the matrons and their debutante daughters. It is a legitimate privilege of the populace to consider those waiting for presentation as objects of interest, and there the latter have to sit, some of them over an hour, subjected to the gaze of Londoners.

A good many people starve themselves for months so that they and their offspring may have the money to enable them to go to court. There are many half pay colonels who live in the country whose one object is to come up for a drawing room.

Generally they have influential and wealthy friends who make it easy for them in the matter of lodging in town and lend them their horses, carriages and footmen; otherwise it would be impossible for them to go. There seems to be a tradition that if a man's daughter has not been presented at court her way to a successful marriage will not be so smooth.

Tested His Friends. An Irishman who died in the early part of the nineteenth century in one of the outlying parishes of London undertook to test the devotion of his friends and acquaintances by making out a list of 400 of them, who were requested by written invitation to attend his funeral, which was held at 7 o'clock one cold winter morning in the parish church. Only twenty-nine persons appeared. When his will was opened, it was found that, having no natural heirs, he ordered his fortune to be divided among the persons who attended his funeral. London Mail.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

How to Find Points of the Compass by Means of a Watch.

Some ingenious person has discovered a peculiarity about a watch which may prove very valuable to persons who are lost. The peculiarity is that all watches are compasses--that is, they do not point to the magnetic pole, but by consulting the face of a watch at any time of day the compass point "south" may be located, and from that all other points may be easily fixed.

The process is as follows: Point the hour hand to the sun, and the south will be found exactly halfway between the hour and the figure XII on the watch. For instance, suppose it is 4 o'clock. Point the hand indicating IV to the sun, and II on the watch is exactly south. Suppose it is 8 o'clock. Point the hand indicating VIII to the sun, and the figure X on the watch is due south.

Blowing Bubbles.

Here is a way to make bubbles that will be both big and so tough that they will roll over the carpet before they break.

After having dissolved a piece of laundry soap about an inch square in a pint of hot water add a teaspoonful of gum arabic and stir until melted. Then add a teaspoonful of glycerin and a quart of cold water. The bubbles will not only be not so easily broken, but will be more brilliant than usual.

The Flicker.

He measures twelve to thirteen inches. He is of a soft chocolate hue. He wears a red tuft on his head. His wings are lined with vivid yellow.

All About a Dog.

In some of the villages of Germany when a stray dog is observed he is first arrested--that is, he is caught by an officer of the law. He is then taken before a justice of the peace and charged with having no master. The public crier then goes up and down the street ringing a bell and shouting out: "We have a dog without a master! Will any one pay the costs and take him?"

The Red Cross Badge.

The red cross was chosen as the badge of the Humane society out of compliment to Switzerland, the design, with the colors reversed, being the Swiss national flag. At the Geneva convention in 1864 the nations decided upon a common flag and badge for hospitals, surgeons, etc. The red cross was then chosen.

The Looking Glass.

We have a splendid looking glass. My little mistress Blanch and I; It has a frame of waving green. It shows the trees, the reeds, the sky.

Caution Pepper For Mice.

Cayenne pepper sprinkled freely in cupboards and shelves which mice are known to frequent will aid considerably in preventing them from spoiling garments, shoe leather, papers, etc. Lumps of camphor placed among clothes are also most useful as a means of scaring away mice, while books, especially when these are put away in shelves or boxes, should always be protected from possible depredations by interspersing the layers of books with small camphor bags.

Caution For Teas.

Dr. Pitcairn, being in a church in Edinburgh where the preacher was not only emphatic, but shed tears copiously, was moved to inquire of a countryman who sat by him what it was all about. "What the devil makes him grieve?" was the inquiry. "Faith," said the man, slowly turning round, "ye had maybe greet yourself if ye was up there and had as little to say!" Dundee Advertiser.

BIRD MIGRATION.

How Do the Flocks Accomplish Their Annual Flights?

Bird migration remains a puzzle to the naturalists. The feathered travelers are known to leave their southern habitats at the end of the rainy season and to gather in vast flocks at regular meeting places. Not all the migratory birds, by the way, migrate. In many or most of the species there are individuals who rest and mate in their winter homes, letting the flocks of their kind depart. But most of them mysteriously draw together at one place and time and rise high in the air, where they can be seen moving like a swift dark cloud, making for the north.

Some of our North American birds winter as far south as Central and even South America. They are observed to take certain routes in their annual journey. The long, narrow Pacific slope is one of these aerial ways, another lies across the Texas plain and northward to the Missouri valley, and a third passes over the Antilles and Florida and forks in central Alabama to the west and east of the first walls of the Appalachians.

But how do the birds concert their meeting? How do they direct their flight? Do they await the south wind to blow them north as fast again as they can fly? What tells them east and west and the location of the faroff places to which they are bound? How long do they take to cover the zone from the tropics to the cold north? How many birds pass in those great clouds of migrants which farmers in certain regions can see during half the spring? Why do they travel such enormous distances, passing over in certain instances regions that seem quite as well suited for their habitat as are the places where they finally decide to settle?

All the mysteries of the air have not yet been solved by the naturalists, nor are all of them likely to be solved very soon.--Scrap Book.

Innocent, but Infectious.

A man running toward the Reading railway station in Germantown the other day as if in great haste to make the train was the cause of enervating the gait of a number of other pedestrians bent on that purpose, among whom were several women who fancied they were late for the train. As the latter wore shoes none too roomy, their discomfort in running may be imagined. When, breathless, they reached the station, they found the first runner sitting comfortably and reading a paper, with ten minutes' margin before train time. One of the women, made bold by indignation, advanced upon the cause of her anger with the query, "What were you running for?" The answer was, "For my health."--Philadelphia Record.

She Couldn't Help It.

One of the brightest and nicest little patients in the surgical ward of one of the city hospitals lay on her bed moaning with pain, says the Boston Post. She had just come to consciousness after a slight operation, and, though only five years old, was exhibiting heroic nerve. Yet she couldn't keep from occasional low cries escaping her. She was the sort of child who hates above all things to give trouble, and when one of the nurses stopped before her and, as she thought, looked a bit reproachfully down at her she explained between the paroxysms, with a pitiful little smile: "Oh, Miss Smith, I can't help it, I can't help it! I'm not used to operations."

I've Heard My Grownup Mistress Say.

A looking glass makes some folks vain; It makes them think about their looks, Whether they're beautiful or plain. But this one does not make us proud. For, if you should be there, you'd see that I am looking down at her. And she is looking down at me! --St. Nicholas.
