A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
Executive Department.
Whereas, official information has been received at this Department that Henry Richardson, late of the county of Warren, stands charged with the murder of Rufus Richardson on or about Dec. 25, 1907. And whereas, it appears that the said Henry Richardson has fled the State, or so conceals himself that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him.

Now, Therefore, I, R. B. Glenn, Governor of the State of North Carolina, by virtue of authority in me vested by law, do issue this my Proclamation, offering a reward of Fifty Dollars for the apprehension and delivery of the said Henry Richardson to the Sheriff of Warren county at the Court House in Warrenton, and I do enjoin all officers of the State and all good citizens in bringing said criminal to justice.

Done at our City of Raleigh, the 2nd day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight, and in the one hundred and 32nd year of our American Independence.

By the Governor.
R. B. GLENN.

A. H. ARRINGTON,
Private Secretary.

DESCRIPTION: Bright mulatto, five feet eight inches high, weight 150 pounds, stooped, straight hair and black mustache.

Eight Reasons Why I Intend to Vote for Prohibition.

1st. Because I don't want to be classed with the saloon-keeper and the drunkard. I prefer to keep good company.

2nd. Because I want the right to ride along the public highways of the State without fear of being insulted or assaulted by drunken negroes.

3rd. Because the absence of the saloon and dispensary promotes sobriety, peace and goodwill.

4th. Because the money spent in trying criminals, made such by strong drink will under prohibition be spent in building up the material interests of the State.

5th. Because in all town and cities where the saloon and dispensary thrive there are numbers of women destitute of the bare necessities of life, because their husbands who get good wages squander their money in the saloon and gambling den, and leave their wives and little ones to go hungry and in rags.

6th. Because strong drink is opposed to everything that makes for the betterment of the human race.

7th. Because the number put to death by strong drink yearly weakens greatly the population of the State.

8th. Because I want my boy to have a fair chance in life, unhampered by the temptations of the liquor evil; and my girls to be free from the unhappiness that is now experienced by many whose homes are blighted by the curse of drunkenness.

HERBERT SCHOLZ,
Oakville, N. C.

Death Was On His Heels.

Jease P. Morris, of Skippers, Va., had a close call in the spring of 1906. He says: "An attack of pneumonia left me so weak and with such a fearful cough that my friends declare consumption had me, and death was on my heels. Then I was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It helped me immediately, and after taking two and a half bottles I was a well man again. I found out that New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and lung disease in all the world." Sold under guarantee at C. A. Thomas drug store. 50 and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

FOR PROHIBITION.

The cause that is and should be uppermost in every humane heart (and especially every man that is rearing a family) in North Carolina to-day, is prohibition. It is a cause that every man should go out and plead for. Some of our church members are standing back in doubt, and saying that if we vote whiskey out of the State there will be a moonshine still on most every spring branch. Brethren if we let as poor excuse as that come between us and the welfare of our country, I fear we will have a hard struggle to gain the victory. I have heard some remark, why are they so down on whiskey? when there are some other things that are almost if not just as bad. Why don't they get those things out also? I want to say right here get the whiskey out and everything else out that is a curse to the land. There may be some evils that are just as bad in a measure, but whiskey has wrecked more homes, and sent more poor souls to an untimely grave than anything else. Every poor man who has become a slave to strong drink has sometime been his mamas boy, but as he grew older, and to manhood the temptations were so great he yielded to them.

Mother, father the little boys and girls in your home are mighty dear to you. You want to see them the equal to your neighbors children and as they grow up you want to see them noble men and women. I don't believe that there is any parent, (however sorry they may be) who wants to see his children come to nothing. You want them to be sober. How can you expect them to be such if you vote to keep the temptation staring them in the face. Now then it behooves you to help us drive this curse from the land, away from the coming generation. Some of our older ones have formed our habits and may think it hard to give up, but may we stop and think for a moment and then go to work and help the cause. I hope every person will consider this question to the depths of their hearts, and that every one will do his part to help gain a victory. May North Carolina make a successful step this way, and thus set a good example for her sister states to follow.

J. BYRD ELLINGTON.

WE CAN'T WIN.

Let's Join the Enemy! Against Ourselves.

I ask leave to say to the readers of this paper that, in my opinion, every voter in the State ought to cast a ballot May 20th. "Against the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors." The other ballot reads "For the Manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors." All must vote one or the other, or be lacking in the courage of manhood. More than two-thirds of the counties have already voted whiskey out. Why? Because it cost more than any other five commodities used in the State and does no good and more harm than all the evil influences combined. Nearly all crimes are traceable to it. It debauches practically every man and family who handles it for a long time. It is a thief of the brain and renders those who use it regularly incapable of performing the duties of business, social or domestic life. It enters so easily unware and robs of all that is dear. Not one per cent of the people of the State have escaped its baneful influence upon themselves or a near friend or relative. What good does it do? Burns enlivened John Barley corn as "a hero bold," which "makes a man forget his woes;" but who knew better than he that when his brief reign is past it makes the memory of them return with ten-fold vigor and power? Will a fortune built on whiskey stand? Will a mind inflated or excited by whiskey retain or maintain its power? Will a body or mind electrified and then paralyzed by it possess or retain enduring qualities? Will the offspring of a drunken parent have an even chance in the race of life? I repeat, what good does it do? "It takes away my liberty," say some. You become by not being allowed to drink the slave, in that respect, to the idea of some sober gentlemen, fanatics, if you will, who think you ought not to drink, but if you drink you become the slave of an appetite that makes you the slave of poverty, of crime, of jailers, guards, wardens and mayhap of executioners and the devil, and of all the consequences to which drinking leads. Choose between them. If I were to vote for the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors May 26th, I would never see another drunken man or widow or orphan of a drunkard, or read of a crime of which whiskey is the cause without knowing I was responsible for it, or at the very least a partner in the responsibility. With such decided views of the little use or benefit derived from whiskey and its great cost and the infinite harm it is doing and crime it is causing, I feel that it would be a crime against God and the State which no political party could ever outlive or profit by, for it to espouse the cause of whiskey, even if it could win an election by so doing. God grant that all political parties may stand or fall on appeal to the intellect and not to the prejudices and appetites. There are countries and climates in which beer and light wines have been and may be indulged in with infinitely less harm than in the southern part of the United States. In great cities with cosmopolitan populations and a policeman for every block the commercial spirit still tolerates whiskey. But in this Southern country where a man may earn some sort of a living by working one day in the week, and a large part of the population is idle a large part of the time; where nearly half the population are idle negroes going from place to place, it is so easy to raise the evil passions and appetites, to get and keep the evil spirits up by pouring the evil spirits down, and thus preparing him who drinks it for any kind of hellish mischief that may suggest itself, that no man or town or county or State can vote to place or keep whiskey within the easy reach of the idle and vicious without making himself, itself, themselves responsible for the results. If it is degrading to a man, to a family, to make or to sell whiskey it is equally degrading to a town or a county or a State to permit it to be made or sold. If you leave out of view the loss of manhood, of womanhood, the crimes unnumbered that drinking entails upon the State, the cost of whiskey is so great as to put its use out of the question. In this county of Vance, barely an average in population, a little under twenty thousand, with 3 dispensaries within 18 miles of us at Louisburg, Warrenton and Oxford, there was paid to the Henderson dispensary in the year 1907 eighty thousand dollars. That is more than $250 per day, more than $1,500 per week, more than $4 for every man, woman and child, white and black, in the county! That is, I believe, far more than all our grocery stores received. The families of the men who paid it to that extent suffered for the necessities of life. It was not published that anybody died of starvation in the county, but few of those whose menfolk bought and drank this whiskey had what they needed to eat and wear, and many of them now dead would be living if this money had been expended for proper food and nursing and doctors and medicines. Think what you are letting them do, women, when you vote or quietly permit your men to vote "For the manufacture and Sale of Intoxicating Liquors. I consider it an awful thing to do. And I believe that if you reflect upon the consequences of your vote you will think so too. It may make your son a drunkard. It may make your daughter the wife of a drunkard. This old Bible and these preachers may be right. It may send you to hell for all eternity! Wake up whiskey men. Let your appetites have a rest and get busy with your minds. Henderson, N. C., Mar. 23, '08.

T. T. HICKS.

P. S.—Don't say it won't prohibit. If it won't prohibit, the distillers and drunkards wouldn't be opposed to it.

He Got What He Needed.

"Nine years ago it looked as if my time had come," says Mr. C. Farthing, of Mill Creek, Ind. Ter. "I was so run down that life hung on a very slender thread. It was then my druggist recommended Electric Bitters. I bought a bottle and I got what I needed—strength. I had one foot in the grave, but Electric Bitters put it back on the turf again, and I've been well ever since." Sold under guarantee at C. A. Thomas drug store. 50c.

It seems thing but fair that

North Carolina Merchants resent the interference by Virginia wholesale dealers in their fight for equal freight rates. The fight in North Carolina is not that Virginia cities should have a higher rate but that they should have an equal rate with them. Lynchburg is the only city mentioned that has a wholesale trade that refused to take part in the fight to resent the action of the North Carolina commissioner. Durham Recorder.

A Twenty year Sentence.

"I have just completed a twenty year health sentence, imposed by Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me of bleeding piles just twenty years ago," writes O. S. Woodraver, of LeRayville, N. Y. Bucklen's Arnica Salve heals the worst sores, boils, burns, wounds and cuts in the shortest time. 25c. at C. A. Thomas drug store.

Cayenne Pepper Makes Red Canaries.

The beautiful red color so often seen in canaries is achieved in this way: just before the time for shedding the feathers arrives, and during the molting season, the bird is fed on crackers and egg highly seasoned with cayenne pepper. This treatment quickly changes the feathers to a deep reddish hue, but must be given at every molting season or the natural light yellow feathers will reappear.—The New Idea.

"Only The Mumps."

"Only the mumps,"
But horrible lumps
And swelling from ears under chin;
Attempt now to chew
And the air grows blue
From a valley which some folks call sin.
"Only the mumps,"
But horrible lumps
And swelling from ears under chin;
To swallow now try,
And if you don't die,
You'll think you have swallowed a pin.
"Only the mumps,"
But horrible lumps
And swelling from ears under chin;
But one is so sore
He wants nothing more,
And wishes he never had been.
"Only the mumps,"
But horrible lumps
And swelling from ears under chin;
But one is so sick
That nothing will stick
To the stomach without or within.
"Only the mumps,"
But horrible lumps
And swelling from ears under chin;
But if you're sinner,
"Old Harry's" the winner
In this game which you both play in.

IN MEMORIAL.

Miss Kate Leonora Parham departed this life at her home in Oxford, N. C., Feb. 25th, 1908. God called her to Heaven just as she had entered into beautiful young womanhood. During the years of her training she showed a great passion for learning. She was a conscientious and enthusiastic student. She joined the Baptist Church in her childhood and remained a faithful member to the end of her pure young life. She loved her church with an ardent love, and especially fond of Sunday-school, her promptness in attendance was an inspiring example. She revealed her true character in her devotion to her parents. She evinced a remarkable courage and patience in her heroic battle with disease, but no human skill could stay the stern grip, "Consumption," when she knew it was God's will to take her she was ready. The large attendance was a most beautiful tribute to a most lovable young life. Amid a deep silence, broken only by the many sobs of grief, we laid her body to rest in Elmwood cemetery, Oxford, N. C., Feb. 26, 1908.

The funeral was preached at her home. Song selection, "Shall we gather at the river." "Nearer my God to Thee," rendered by Mrs. Harbold, Mrs. Meadows, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Denaway and others.

Pall bearers.—Messrs. M. B. Harbold, C. F. Cress, I. F. Meadows, L. Thomas, D. A. Fuller and J. W. Hunt.

Mr. Sherrill Still in the Race.

To the Democrats of North Carolina:— It has come to me from a number of sources that the report is being circulated that I have withdrawn from the race for the Democratic nomination for Commissioner of Labor and Printing of North Carolina. I am at a loss to know how this report originated, as I have never had the slightest intention of withdrawing from the contest. The encouragement and support I have received from every part of the State seem to assure my nomination for this office. I have received almost the unanimous endorsement of the North Carolina press, and letters offering the support of many of the most prominent Democrats in the State. For these assurances I am deeply grateful, and if nominated and elected will give the duties of the office my very best attention. Respectfully,
J. B. SHERRILL,
