In demanding these measures and reforms we arraign the Radical party for its disregard of right, and the unparalleled oppression and tyranny which have marked its career. After he most solemn and unanimous pledge of both Houses of Congress to prosecute the war exclusively for the maintenance of the Government and the preservation of the Union under the Constitution, it has repeatedly violated that most sacred pledge, under which alone was rallied that noble volunteer army which carried our flag to victory.

Instead of restoring the Umon, it has, so far as is in its power, dissolved it, and subjected ten States, in time of profound peace, to military despotism and negro supremacy.

It has nullified the right of trial jury; has abolished the habeas corpus, that most sa-cred writ of liberty; it has overthrown the freedom of speech and the press; it has sub-stituted arbitrary seizures and arrests, and military trial and secret star chamber inquisifiens for the constitutional tribunals; it has disregarded in time of peace the right of the people to be free from searches and seizures; it has entered the post and telegraph offices, and even the private rooms of individuals, and seized their private papers and letters without any specific charge or notice of affidavit, as re-quired by the organic law; it has converted the American capitol into a bastile; it has esta hished a system of spies and official espionage to which no constitutional monarchy of Europe would dare to resort; it has abolished the right of appeal on important constitutional questions to the supreme judicial tribunal, and threatens to curtail or destroy its original jurisdiction, which is irrevocably vested by the Constitution, while the learned Chief Justice has been subjected to the most strocious calumnies merely because he would not prostitute his high office to the support of the false and partisan charges preferred against the President. Its corruption and extravagance have exceeded anything known in history, and by its frauds and monopolies it has nearly doubled burden of the debt created by the war. It has atripped the President of his constitutional power of appointment even of his own Cabinet. Under its repeated assaults the pillars of the Government are rocking on their base, and should it succeed in November next, and inaugurate its President, we will meet, as a subjected and conquered people, amid the ruins of gurate its President, we will meet, as a subjected and conquered people, amid the ruins of liberty and the scattered fragments of the Constitution; and we do declare and resolve that ever since the people of the United States threw off all subjection to the British Crown, the privilege and trust of sufferage have belonged to the several States, and have been granted, regulated, and controlled exclusively by the political power of each State respectively, and that any attempt by Congress, on any pretent whatever, to deprive any State of this right, or to interfere with its exercise, is a flagrant description of power which can find no warrant in the Construction; and if sanction-

GOVERNOR SEYMOUR.

His Letter of Acceptance-Cordial Endorsement of the Democratic Platform—The Radical Policy Reviewed and Denounced Urica, N. Y., August 4, 1868. General G. W. Morgan and others, Commit tee, de.

GENTLEMEN: When in the city of New York, on the 11th of July, in the presence of a vast multitude, on behalf of the National Democratic Convention, you tendered to me its unanimous nomination as their candidate for the office of President of the United State, stated I had no words adequate to express my gratiude for the good will and kindness which that body had shown to me. Ist nomnation was unsought and unexpected. It was my ambition to take an active part-from which I am now excluded-in the great struggle going on for the restoration of good Government, of peace and prosperity to our country. But I have been caught up by the overwhelming tide which is bearing the country on a great political change, and I find myself

You have also given me a copy of the resolutions put forth by the Convention showing its position upon all the great questions which now agitate the country. As the presiding officer of that Convention, I am familiar with their scope and import. As one of its mem-bers, I am a party to their terms. They are n accord with my views, and I stand upon hem in the canvass upon which we are now entering, and I shall strive to carry them out in future, wherever I may be placed, in political or private life.

I then stated that I would send you these words of acceptance in a letter, as is the cusomary form. I see no reason, upon reflection to change or qualify the terms of my approval of the resolutions of the Convention I have delayed the mere formal act of committing t you in writing what I thus publicly said, for purpose of seeing what light the action Con gress would throw upon the interess of the country. Its acts since the adjournment of last a charge the Convention show of political power will give to the people wha they ought to have a clear statement of what has been done with the money drawn it and them during the past eight years. Thoughtte military power, which is to be brought to bear directly upon the eletions in many States, but it also holds itself in perpetual session, with the avowed purpose of making such laws as it shall see fit, in view of the elections which will take place within a within a few weeks. It did not, therefore, adjourn, but took a recess to meet again, it its partisan interests should demand its reassembling. Never before in the history of our country has Congress thus taken a menacing attitude towards its electors. Under its influence, some of the States organized by its agents are proposing States organized by its agents are proposing to deprive the people of the right to vote for Presidential electors, and the first bold steps are taken to destroy the right of suffrage.

It is not strange, therefore, that thoughtfl men see in such action the proof that there are, with those who shape the policy of the Republican party, motives stronger and deeper than the mere wish to hold political power—that there is a dread of same exposure, which that there is a dread of some exposure, which drives them on to acts desperate and impolitic. Many of the ablest leaders and journals of the Many of the ablest leaders and journals of the Republican party have openly deprecated the violence of Congressional action, and its endeavor to keep up discord in our country. The great interests of our Union demand peace order and a return to those industrial pursuits without which we cannot maintain the honor of our Government. The minds of business men are perplexed by uncertainties. The hours of toil of our laborers are lengthened by the cost of living; made excessive by the direct and indirect exactions of Government.—

Our people are harassed by the heavy and frequent demands of the tax-gathers. Without distinction of party, there is a strong feeling in favor of that line of action which shall restore order and confidence, and shall lift up the burdens which now hinder and vex the industry of the country. Yet at this moment those in power have thrown into the Senate Chamber and Congressional hall new elements of discord and violence. Men have been admitted as representatives of some of the Southern States, with the declaration upon the Southern States, with the declaration upon their lips that they cannot, without military protection, live in the States they claim to represent. These men are to make laws for the North, as well as the South. These men who, a few days since, were seeking as suppliants that Congress would give them power within their respective States are to-day the masters and controllers of the actions of those bodies. Entering there with minds filled with bodies. Entering there with minds filled with prejudice, and hearts with passion, their first demands have been that Congress shall look upon the States from which they come as in a condition of civil war: that the majority of their populations, embracing their intelligence, treated as public enemies; that military forces shall be kept up at the cost of the people of the North, and that there shall be no peace and order at the South, save that which is made by arbitrary power. Every intelligent man knows that there men owe their seats in Congress to the disorder in the South. Every man knows that they not only owe their present positions to disorwarrant in the Construction; and if sanctioned by the people will abvect our form of government, and composite them to keep the South in this the candidates had nothing to do. Und in a single centralized and consolidated Government, in bich. Wille that exists they are independent of those named been selected.

late rebellion have submitted to the results of the war, and are now quietly engaged in useful pursuits for the support of themselves and families, and are trying by the force of their example to lead back the people of the South to the order and industry not only essential to their well being, but to the greatness and prospersion of the second prosp perity of our common country, we see that those who, without ability or influence, have been thrown by the agitations of civil convolution into positions of honor and profit, are striving to keep alive the persons to which they owe their elevation, and they clamprously insist that they are the only friends of our Union-a Union that can only have a sure oundation in fraternal regard and a commot foundation is fraternal regard and a common desire to promote the peace, the order, and the happiness of all sections of our land.

Events in Congress, since the adjournment of the convention, have vastly increased the importance of a political victory by those who are seeking to bring back happiness, simplicity and justice in the administration of our national affairs. H. S. Republicans who have heretofore clung to their party have regretted the extremes of violence to which it has run. They have cherished a faith, that while the actions of their political faith, that while the actions of their political party friends have been mistaken, their motives have been good. These must now see that the Republican party is in that condition that it cannot carry out a wise and peaceful policy, whatever its motive may be. It is a mistortune, not only to a country, but to a governing party itself, when its action is unchecked by any form of opposition. It has been the misfortune of the Republican party that the events of the past few years have given it so much power that it has been able o sharkle the Executive, to trammel the judiciary, and to carry out the views of the mo unwise and violent of its members. When this state of things exists in any party, it has ever been found that the sober judgment of its ablest leaders does not control. There is hardan able man who helped to build up the Republican organization, who has within the past three years warned it against the excesses, who has not been borne down and forced to give up his convictions of what the interests of the country called for; or, if top patriotic to do this, who has not been driven from its ranks. If this has been the case heretofore, what will be its action now, with this new infusion of men who, without a decent respect for the views of those who have just given them their positions, begin their legislative course with ealls for arms-with demands that their States be regarded as in a condition of civil was, and with the declaration that they are ready and auxious to degrade the President of the United States whenever they can persuade or force Congress to bring forward orward new articles of impeachment. The Republican party, as well as we, are interest ed in putting some check upon this violence. It must be clear to every thinking man that a division of political power tends to check the violence or party action, and to assure the peace and good order of society. The election of a Democratic Executive and a majority of Democratic members to the House of Rep sentatives would not give to that party organization the power to make sudden or violent hanges; but I would serve to check those xtreme measures which have been deplored plate must be aborent to every right thinking I have no mere personal wishes which misead my judgment in regard to the pending lection. No man who has weighed and neasured the duties of the office of President of the United States can fail to be impressed with the cares and toils of him who is to meet its demand. It is not merely to float with the popular current, without a policy or a purpose; on the contrary, while our Constitution gives just weight to the popular will, its dis-tinguishing feature is that it seeks to protect he rights of minorities; its greatest glory is the rights of minorities; its greatest glory is that it puts restraints upon power; it gives force and form to those maxims and principles of civil liberty for which the martyrs of free dom have struggled through ages; it declares the right of the people "to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures;" that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or shridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people to petition the Government for a redress of grievances." It secures "the right of a ple to petition the Government for a redress of grievances." It secures "the right of a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury."

No man can rightfully enter upon the datics of the presidential office up, the is not only willing to carry out the wishes of the people, expressed in a constitutional way, but is also prepared to stand up for the rights of minorities. He must be ready to uphold the free exercise of religion. He must denounce measures which would wrong personal or home rights or the religious conscience of the humblest citizen of the land. He must maintain, without distinction of creed or nationality, all the privileges of American citizenship.

The result would most certainly lead to that peaceful restoration of the Union and re-estabshment of fraternal relations which the country desires. I am sure that the best men of the Republican party deplore as deeply as I do the spirit of violence shown by those recently

admitted to seats in Congress from the South

The experience of every public man who has been faithful to his trust teaches him that no one can do the duties of the office of President unless he is ready not only to undergo the falsehoods and abuse of the bad, but of suffer from the censure of the good, who are misled by prejudices and misrepresentations. There are no attractions in such positions which deceive my judgment when I say that a great change is going on in the public

The mass of the Republican party are more thoughtful, temperate and just than they were during the excitement which attended the progress and close of the civil

As the energy of the Democratic party springs from their devotion to their cause. and not to their candidates. I may with pro-priety speak the fact, that never in the politieal history of our country has the action of a like body been hailed with such universal and wide-spread enthusiasm as that which of the National Convention in words instinct with meaning. They called on the government to stop in its policy of hate, discord and disunion, and in terms of fervid elo-quence demanded a restoration of rights and berties of the American people.

When there is such accord between those the proved themselves brave and self-sacrifeing in war, and those who are thoughtful and patriotic in council, I cannot doubt we and patriotic in council, I cannot doubt we shall gain a political triumph which will re-store our Union, bring back peace and pros-perity to our land, and will give us once the blessings of a wise, economical and honest government.

WITH Incidents and Sketches of Life in the Confederacy, comprising Narratives of Personal Adventure, Army Life, Naval Adventure, Home Life, Partisan Daring, Life in the Camp, Field and Hospital, together with the Songs, Hallads, Anecdotes and Humorons Incidents of the War for Southern Independence.

There is a certain portion of the war that will navarigo into the regular histories, nor be embodied in romance or poetry, which is a very real part of it, and will, if preserved convey to anceeding generations a better idea of the pirit of the conflict than many dry reports or threful narrative of events, and this part may be called the gossip, the fun, the pathos of the lar. This illustrates the character of the leaders, the humor of the soldiers, the devotion of women, the bravery of men, the place of our heroes, the romance and hardships of the Service.

The Vallant and Brave Hearted, the Pictur esque and Dramatic, the Witty and Marvelous the Tender and Pathetic, and the whole Panor ama of the War archere thrillingly portrayed in a masterly manner, at once historical and ro-mantic, rendering it the most ample, unique, brilliant and readable book that the war has

REV. DR. C. F. DEEMS, (Aug. 23d, 1862,) says: "I have derived great benefit from these Pills, and have known many families and in-dividuals who have found them very beneficial, and I have also known physicians in excellent standing to recommend them to their patients. For all diseases arising from disorders of the iver, I believe they are the best medicine of ered to the public

REV. JOHN W. POTTER, Snow Hill, N. C., (January 5, 1863.) says: "For twelve years I was a great sufferer. My liver was diseased. I lost my flesh and strength, and my skin seemed changed in its color by the bile with which my system was overcharged. I became which my system was overcharged. I became subject to frequent and violent attacks of bilious choic, every attack leaving me weaker than its predecessor. The physicians had been able to patch me up a little, but my health was in a deplorable state. I had taken patent medicines until I was tired of them. Without energy or comfort, I was barely able to go about a little. At length I yielded to the earnest persuasion of a friend and commenced taking the HEPATIC PILLS, with no confidence in them. They acted like a charm on dence in them. They seted like a charm op me. From that hour I have improved. I have persevered in their use, until now, by God's blessing, I am well and henry. I had a negro man, who, as I believe, was saved from death by a dose of these Pills. My Doctor's bill was annually from $100 to $200, but I have had no use for a physician since. I can confidently recommend them as a superior family medicine DYSPHPSIA. S. D. Wallace, Esq., President of the Wil-mington & Weldon Rail Road, (Aug. 30, 1862) says: It has been said that Dyspepsia is our national disease. However this may be, it caused me long and severe suffering. Providentially a friend furnished me with a few boxes of the 'Hepatic Pills,' and the use of them has perfected a cure. In my family they have been used frequently with eminent success Among my acquaintances many cases origina-ting from diseased liver, have been relieved and cured by them. I regard them an invaluable medicine, and take pleasure in forwarding this medicine, and take pleasure in forwarding this voluntary tribute."

A. W. D. Taylon, Esq., Petersburg, Va., (Jan. 12, 1859.) says: "In the Spring of 1858, I was attacked with Dyspepsia to such an extent that all my food of every description disagreed with me. I was swollen so I had to loosen my clothes, and night after night I could get no sleep. I tried one or two physiciam, and took a good deal of medicine, but found no relief. I purchased one box of the Southern Hepatic Pills, and the first dose I took I felt relieved, and continued until I took the whole box. I am now entirely well, and eat heartily, and never have been attacked since. heartily, and never have been attacked since.
