WASHINGTON AND NAPOLEON.

THE CONTRAST.

——"Urged by a curiosity common to all strangers, Captain Lockerby visited the tomb of Bonaparte. The spot where the tomb stands is only accessible by ticket. It was railed round with green paling, and a sentinel walked round it night and day to prevent approach within the railing."——

Behold what a contrast is here!
Two heroes gone down to decay—
The grave of the one, how deserted and drear!
While the other is deck'd in its marble array
And a sentinel guards it by night and by-day.

Oh, what was the life of the first,
That in death they have left him thus lone?—
Was the crown of the Tyrant his thirst?
And mounting in blood on the steps of a throne—
Had he murder'd his thousands to aggrandize one?

O! grandeur of soul there was none
In that bosom, transform'd to the clod;
The end of its government done,
To abandon the lictor, the axe, and the rod,
When it took'd on its nothingness—tho't of its God!

But see what a far different scene!
The tomb of the valiant and wise!
Encompass'd secure by its paling of green,
And gleaming in white, as those tropical skies
Beam down on the waste where St. Helena lies.

Lo! numbers resort to that spot,
And beauty bows too at the shrine—
Oh virtue! how envied thy lot!
The grave cannot darken thy splendor divine
Nor sully thy brightness, but adds to its shine.

Yet CHRISTIAN!—come nearer and read,
For conquest has led us astray—
Had thou heard of one, false to his creed?
Of a blood loving tyrant—ferocious—who sway
Was support'd by rapine, while earth was his prey?

'Tis to him that these honors are paid,
And his dust must be guarded—from whom?
Are the terrified nations afraid
Lest he yet should arise from the curse of his doom
And burst'g its cerements, escape from the tomb?

Ah no! he lies powerless now!
But thousands would bear him afar:
To this Juggernaut, long did they bow,
And were abjectly crush'd by the wheels of his car,
As triumphant he rode thro' the red fields of war.

Is virtue then, nought but a name?
Let us turn to the spot we have passed—
If guilt can exult in its shame,
The good in his grave may be silently cast—
Abandoned—unnoticed!—the scene but a waste!

Yes, yes, thou art dumb with amaze—
'Tis WASHINGTON slumbers below—
Was language too weak for his praise?—
Was the grief so profound, that it baffled all show,
Or the feeling too deep for the utt'rance of wo?

Let us hope that it was—let us trust
That we honor the Friend of Mankind—
That the Corsican despot in dust,
His merited meed of abhorance shall find
In the progress of truth and the march of the mind.

Martin Van Buren in Tennessee.

Under this head the last Franklin Review contains the following remarks. We believe the editor expresses the sentiments of the people of Tennessee with regard to Mr. Van Buren, or at least a majority in this part of the state. It is an imputation upon the character of the state that facts will not warrant, that Tennessee will go for him merely on account of his devotion to Gen Jackson. In selecting an individual for the high and responsible office of president it will be solely on account of his own character and his own principles. Many of Gen. Jackson's warmest political friends are strongly opposed to Mr Van Buren and cannot be induced to support him under any circumstances.

Jackson (Ten.) Truth Teller.

"The opposition editors have long made it a theme of reproach that the great state of Tennessee is but the bounden servant of the present Executive of the general government, and her citizens the base and subservient vassals of his will; and that as a matter of course, they are necessarily compelled to give the vote of the state to Martin Van Buren for next president. However much the extraordinary and anti republican proceedings of certain great men of the State, in Nashville, on various occasions may have given color to this charge, yet as a Tennessean, proud of the honorable character of our state, and anxious for its preservation, we feel bound most explicitly to deny it. It is true, that for the many valuable military and political services of president Jackson, the citizens of Tennessee have ever honored him with their confidence and support, and it is also true that the leading measures of his Administration have their warmest and most decided approbation. But it is not true, nor does it necessarily follow, that the vote of the state is thereby pledged, and of right belongs to Van Buren as his legitimate successor. The principles of President Jackson are clear, and decided—they are known and approved—the principles of Van Buren are hidden and obscure,—unknown and unapproved."

Convention of the States.—The New York Evening Star, & an able writer of the New York Courier & Enquirer are decidedly in favor of a Convention of the States. The New-York National Advocate warmly approves the recommendation, and wonders that the South has not long since been united in pressing the measure. It thinks if we had done so, parties would at this time have been properly divided in the Union, on two gigantic antagonist principles of State Sovereignty in fact as well as in name, and of Consolidation. And that the issue would have been that New York, and the Northern and Eastern States, would have firmly supported State Rights.—Charleston Mercury.

Patent Soapstone Paint.

W. H. MEAD has on hand a full assortment of the PATENT SOAPSTONE PAINT, (of various colors) which is now used at the North with great success on Shingle, Tin and Zinc Roofs. It is also used for Priming the out side of buildings. One coat of the Soapstone Paint finished with one of White Lead, makes a beautiful white, and will preserve its beauty double the length of time of that of Lead. The Soapstone Paint possesses cementing qualities which forms a lasting and durable body; it is a sure preventative for leaky roofs; it is also a safeguard against fire from sparks falling on the roof from chimnies, neighboring fires, &c. and it can be applied for half the expense of white lead, as fish oil answers every purpose.

I will sell, on accommodating terms, the plantation in Franklin county, the former residence of the late William Burlingham. It is beautifully situated on the main stage road from Louisburg to Warrenton, nine miles north of Louisburg. Perhaps there is not a more beautiful summer residence in the State—It contains about twelve hundred acres; much of which is land of very fair quality, at least equal to any in that neighborhood. It will be shewn to any person wishing to purchase, by Maj. Tolsle, and convey the same, during my absence. The price and terms of payment may also be known on application to Joseph R. ### $50 Reward.

Ran away from the Subscriber on the 10th instant, his negro man Peter. Said negro is about years of age, black complexion, high forehead, a good set of teeth, has an impediment in his speech, and when he is closely examined or agitated stutters. He had one of his feet a few days before he left. He is a Blacksmith by trade, is about 5 feet 9 or inches high, and his clothing as follows: a mixed coat, one sattinet coat, mixed waistcoat, one pair of half worn, black silk waistcoat, one pair of striped pantaloons, striped lengthwise, of north stuff, also one pair of tow and cotton, home manufacture, also a half worn fur hat and a black leather cap.

It is supposed he will attempt to go to a non-slave holding State, probably Indiana, he obtained a free negro pass in the name of James Weaver, dated some four or five years ago. No doubt he will call his name Weaver. It is supposed that he will attempt to follow after, or go with some emigrants who left the neighborhood about the time he did.

The above reward will be given if taken out of the State, or Twenty Five Dollars if taken within the State, and delivered to me in Chatham county, near St. Lawrence Post Office, or put in any jail so that I get him again.

Female Academy.

It is with peculiar pleasure, that the subscriber is permitted to announce to the former friends and patrons of Mrs. HUTCHESON (formerly Miss NYE,) and to the public in general, that she is expected to open an Academy for young Ladies, in Raleigh, on or about the first Monday in January.

The proof which Mrs. H. has already given the citizens of Raleigh of her superior moral and intellectual qualifications, as an Instructress of young Ladies, precludes the necessity of any further encomium from us.

In justice to her however, it should be stated that her experience in the business of Instruction has been much enlarged in the interval of her absence from this city; and that she has recently gone to one of the first Female Seminaries in the United States, for the express purpose of still better qualifying herself for the employment she is about to resume among us.

It is scarcely necessary to say, that whatever measure of our own counsel and aid, in the government and instruction of her School, may seem to be needed, it shall at all times be promptly and cheerfully rendered; for we have resolved as far as our efforts may contribute to that end, that the FEMALE DEPARTMENT of the RALEIGH ACADEMY shall not be surpassed by any in the country.

We are authorised to add, that both the Male and Female Departments will be favored with the counsel, experience and general supervision of the Rev. Dr. M'PHEETERS.

Female Boarding School.

The next session of the subscriber's school will commence on the 15th of January, 1835.

It has been the object of the subscriber to render his school as much as possible a in which his pupils meet, in every respect, with the same treatment to which they have been accustomed at home, so far as is consistent with a strict though mild discipline. To this end, the number of pupils is limited.

The system of studies pursued, comprises every branch of Female Education taught in the best Seminaries; and a solid and thorough acquaintance with these, rather than a rapid progress through the whole, is aimed at. The small number of our pupils enables us to instruct each one separately, adapting the extended course of studies to their respective attainment and ability, in preference to placing them in a few large classes, where some must necessarily be superficially taught. The higher branches are practically and experimentally illustrated.

While a close and devoted attention to the cultivation of the mind, no less attention is to the improvement of the moral and religious character, and of manners and deportment. The system of rewards and punishments adopted, is one which excludes every feeling of jealousy and rivalship among our pupils, and at the same time, acts as a powerful stimulus to exertion, by making the standard of excellence in scholarship and deportment, a fixed and unchangeable one, which all may attain by proper exertion, not dependent on comparative merit, in which some must necessarily fail.

The school is situated about a mile from the borough, in a country remarkable for its healthiness, and ample time is allowed for exercise and recreation. The terms are $75 per session of five months, including Board, Tuition, Fuel and Stationary.
