REPORT. That the thirteenth section of the act of Congress "to regulate the deposites of the public money." declares. in substance, that such deposites, in the Treasury of the different States, shall be by way of loan, and not as ab-solute gifts. This provision, your committee believe, should not be wholly overlooked by the General Assembly, in any disposition it may make of that portion of the public Treasure which is allotted to this State. They are persuaded, nevertheless, that it should be considered and treated as a loan, of a most liberal character, which the State may never be required to repay; and which, it would be most unreasonable to suppose, will be demanded by any exigency of the Federal Treasury for many years to come.
