POETRY.

"And while his Harp responsive rung—
'Twas thus the latest Minstrel sung."

From the London Athenæum.

Moonlight Fancies.

Look, look at the dim
Gold tinted rim
That yon purple cloud doth crest!
'Tis the herald light
Of the Bride of Night
About to rise from her rest,
And he clasp'd to her dark-brow'd lover's breast.
Her fair train of stars, in their silv'ry array,
Are out, and awaiting their homage to pay—
Then, why does the bright one her coming delay?

Thou lovely Moon, hail!
See the purple veil
She throws off from her golden head;
What a magic sheen
Doth her smile serene
O'er the heavens about her shed,
And the world of waters beneath her spread!
Like Love's blest presence, where'er it is found,
Her beauty and dreamy glance turns all around
To scenes of enchantment—to fairy-like land.

Now, now to the sight,
'Tis a column of light,
That towers from sea to sky,
With its cloudy top-crown'd
By the radiant round
Of the full golden orb on high!
A diamond column, dazzling the eye;
Circled by fountains that evermore flow,
With a tremulous motion around, to and fro,
Rippling and dancing with a sound clear & low.

Grown wider it seems
A pathway of beams,
Just made for the spirits of air
To skim with their feet,
So printless and fleet—
O, would thou and I, love, were there,
For it would not be bliss without thee to share!
O with thee to float,
In a lonely boat!
What a joy it would be, thro' the night so to glide
O'er the luminous track of yon moonlight tide,
With thy voice in mine ear—thy form by my side!

Sure, that is not the gush
Of the billow's rush!
'Tis the roll of the Ocean-king's car,
As he whirls through the sea,
And shouts in his glee,
And tosses the white foam afar!
No! these are not sparkles of moon or star!
They're the eyes of the ocean nymphs bright'ning the waves,
As they look up and smile from the cool sea-green caves,
Where their young blooming charms the fresh spray ever laves.

Oh, the soothing balm!
The delicious calm!
The visions on visions pi'ed!
The heart a sweet repose
That, while slumbering, glows
Like the cheek of a sleeping child!
Talk of the sunlight! give me the mild,
The beaut ful Moon, with her waking dreams!
Give me the soft, shadowy splendor that teems
With its own and with fancy's moonlight gleams!

☞ The following, from the Milton Spectator, will suit almost every community:

"The tale-bearer occupies an unenviable station in society. He should be avoided by all those who desire to be respected, or to fill honorable stations in the community. This monster, unsightly and mischievous as it is, stalks abroad in almost all ranks of society, and even insinuates itself into the company of the better part of mankind—I mean the fair. What a pity that they will debase their exalted and dignified character! What a pity that virtue will stoop so low! This vice has blasted the hopes and prospects of thousands, who once sustained spotless characters, and filled honorable places in society. "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth." One word spoken in a malevolent spirit, or with a particular insinuation or cant of voice, has borne with great weight on the character of some individual, and has thus blighted, and I may say, destroyed, his or her future prospects. Hence the necessity of setting a guard over ourselves in speaking of others, or of insinuating any thing that may be turned to their disadvantage, either by inference or construction.

"Idleness and ignorance are doubtless the causes, in many instances, of tattling. [illegible] who read but little and study less, [illegible] this practice, when in company, for [illegible] formation or a topick of conversation [illegible] collectors and venders have but few [illegible] yond the common chitchat of the village [illegible] neighborhood in which they reside. But, limited as their knowledge may be, they can tell of all the scandalous reports in circulation respecting their neighbors; and they seem to understand every body's business but their own.

"It is strange—passing strange, that beings endued with rationality should descend so low, and forget the design of their being. O humanity, how art thou fallen! What do we find to be the common topicks of conversation in assemblages of young persons! What is often the amount of their chitchat? Is it not generally concerning other people's affairs! It may be that some person within the boundary of th ir acquaintance is going to be married. O what a glorious theme is this! Or perhaps it may be said that Miss —— had a beau the other day, or Mr. Such a one walked a hundred yards with a certain lady. This is quite sufficient to form a match, at least in the estimation of these knowing ones."

"Bridle the tongue;" for truly it is an "unruly member."

A clergyman catechising the youths of his parish, put the first question in the catechism to a girl—what is your only consolation in life and in death! The poor girl smiled, and no doubt felt queer but did not answer. The priest insisted. 'Well, then,' said she, 'If I must tell, it is the little shoemaker that wears a striped coket."

The Boston papers announce the death of Dr. Bowditch, the most profound mathematician that this country has produced.

Miss Martineau has published another book concerning the United States. Sketches of our eminent public men form a large part of it.

Geo. Henderson, Ambassador from Texas to Great Britain, is said to have been received by the Queen's ministers with much distinction and cordiality.

A DIALOGUE.

DELECTABLE AND DEMONSTRATIVE.

'Isaac, have you paid the printers!' inquired an old lady of her husband, who was delighting the family circle by reading to them a fine looking newspaper—(excuse our blushes; for we editors are as modest as maidens.)

'No, Rebecca; I have not,' answered the old gentleman, adjusting his spectacles—'but you know it is only a trifle. The printers, I see, gave a very polite dun, but they cannot mean me, as I am one of their political friends and at all events, my few dollars would be but a trifling moiety to them.

"Well Isaac, if all their subscribers were to say the same thing; the poor fellows would starve, unless they could conjure their types into corn, and the press into a flour mill.—And surely you, as their 'friend' should be more punctual in paying them than if you were their political enemy; besides, it would show your attachment for them and the good cause which they advocate.

'I thought of settling my subscription when I was in town last,' said Isaac, wincing from the rub, but the money which I received for my produce was better than usual, and I dislike to part with it.'

'Why certainly, you would not pay them bad money, Isaac.'

'No, my dear; but sometimes I am obliged to take uncurrent paper, and I prefer paying my debts, with that when I get it off. O these bankse these banks! Any way, that sort, would suit printers just as well, as they don't keep it long. My neighbor Jenkins said he passed off some on them that nobody else would take, and they did not refuse it.'

'Shame on you, Isaac!' exclaimed the good old lady—'you would not. I hope imitate the example of that mise able fellow, Jenkins—why, he would jew the parson out of half his stipend, and pay the balance in trade!'

'Yet he paid the printers, grandma, interrupted a little flaxen haired miss, who stood beside her grandfather's knees.

'Well, well; Iill call and pay them,' said the old gentleman, not a little nettled—'for an article I read in their paper the other day, was worth twice the amount of the subscription.'

'And you know, grandpa, you said that that piece about the contrefeite s saved you twenty dollars, which you would have taken from the yankee pedler, again interrupted the little girl.

'Yes, it did so, Mary—and for that when I go to town, I'll pay off my old score and the next year in advance into the bargain.'

FOR SALE

A handsome and healthy residence.

I would sell, on favorable terms to the purchaser, that well-known County Seat, called MOUNT PLEASANT, fourteen miles from the City of Raleigh, on the great Northern Mail Road, towards Louisburg, five miles from Wake Forest Institute and about one mile from Rolesville—containing 503 Acres. About one half of the land is cleared, not much of it fresh and of a superior quality, including a fine Meadow of about 25 Acres. There are two Dwelling Houses (about half a mile apart) on the Plantation; one of which is a large well finished airy and commodious House, with every necessary Outhouse; the other is quite comfortable; each has the advantage of pure, delightful water in its yard.—This property is among the most desirable locations in the upper country, whether for comfort, health or beauty, and produces finely corn, cotton, wheat or oats, and would be an invaluable acquisition as a Summer and Fall retreat, from the sickliness of the low country.

A physician would find it the centre of a populous and wealthy neighborhood, and therefore an excellent location.

AGENCY AT RALEIGH.

In 1837, the officers of both the Banks in this place finding it to interfere with the duties of their office when they acted as agents for their customers, requested me to advertise that I would do that business. Since then, I have been in the practice of offering notes for discount and renewal, and making remittances, &c. without the occurence of one accident!

I charge 50 cents for sums under $500. From that to $2000, fee $1 00; and for all larger sums $1 50. For extra letters 25 cents each.

Believing that I have given general satisfaction to my employers, I respectfully ask a continuance of their favor, and the countenance of others, who may have occasion for the like service. I also do other general commission business.

TURNER & HUGHES,
Publishers, Booksellers, & Stationers,

Keep a general assortment of Books, in the various departments of Literature, Science, and Theology, also Stationary, in all its varieties, all of which they will sell at wholesale or retail, on the most liberal terms. They have an extensive collection of the most approved editions of school books. Among them are Wayland's Political Economy, of known reputation, and extensively used as a text book in all the principal Colleges. Wayland's Political Economy, abridged for the use of schools; a very valuable work. Wayland's Elements of Moral Science. The attention of the public is most respectfully called to this very valuable work. Also, Wayland's Elements of Moral Science abridged, and adapted for the use of common schools and academies. We hail the abridgment as admirably adapted to supply the deficiency which has long been felt in common school education—the study of moral obligation. So far as we have been able to examine the two works, we must say that we are quite as well pleased with the smaller as with the larger; the illustrations are apt and striking. Aberercrombie on Intellectual Powers. Why is such a book not in every family and school? Paley's Theology, new edition, enlarged, with forty plates, and additional notes of Dr. Baxter and others. The Class Book of Nat. Theology, or the Testimony of Nature to the Being, Perfections, and Government of God, by H. Fergus. The Young Ladies Class Book; a selection of lessons for reading, in prose and verse, by Ebenezer Bailey, A. M. Peter Parley's Common School History, embellished with engravings, a new work; also, a great variety of small valuable works, by Peter Parley, containing histories, travels, voyages, lives, &c. for Juvenile readers. Blake's Natural Philosophy, new edition, enlarged. Blake's first book in Astronomy, designed for the use of common schools, illustrated by steel plate engravings. Roman Antiquities and Ancient Mythology, by Chas K[illegible]ay, A. M, illustrated by elegant engra[illegible]. The American Expositor, or Intellectual [illegible]ner, designed for the use of schools, by Rufus Choggett. The arrangements are good and the definitions clear and concise. Says Political Economy. Brown's Philosophy, abridged, for primary schools. Steward's Philosophy of the Mind, Boy's and Girls Library, Harper's Family Library, where there is more valuable reading than can be found in any other works for the cost. Classical Library—where there may be found nearly all other Classical translations. Christian Library, Miss Edgworth's Novels complete. Mrs. Opie's Works complete. Mrs. Sherwood's complete works. A few full sets of the American Almanac and Repository of Useful Knowledge, complete in 9 vols. well bound; also, some odd numbers, and for the year 1838, complete sets of the Penny Magazine, of the Society for the diffusion of useful knowledge; with a very large and mixed collection of Books, consisting of Law, Medical, Historical, Theological, and miscellaneous, travels, voyages, novels, &c., all kind of School Books, too tedious to mention. Blank Books of all kinds, also Blank Books made to order at the shortest notice, also architectural and carpenter's guides. Old Books rebound in all varieties.

All kinds of Books and Stationary for sale at the North Carolina Book Store at very reduced prices.

REVISED STATUTES.

The subscribers, having contracted with the Commissioners of the State for the publication of the Revised Statutes of North Carolina, have the pleasure of announcing the completion of said work.

Being appointed by the Governor agents on the part of the State for its sale, they now offer to the good citizens of North Carolina a work which, as regards quality of paper and execution, is not equalled by any law book ever published in this country. It has been pronounced by every one who has examined it, (and amongst those are numbered many of the oldest and most extensive book publishers in the United States) to be the "ne plus ultra" of typography.

Published in 2 volumes—the 1st containing 712 pages—the 2d 558. Price only nine dollars per copy—or five dollars for 1st volume, and four for the second, if sold separately. All orders for the above work, directed to them at the North Carolina Book Store, will meet with prompt attention.

Town Lots for Sale.

Will be sold at public sale on Friday the 6th day of April next, it being the week of April Court, forty or fifty unimproved Lots in the town of Yanceyville, on a credit until the 25th day of December next. These lots have lately been laid out, and are beautifully situated, either for private residences or mechanical business, and are so laid off as to suit the convenience of persons wishing to settle in the village. The lands on which these lots are situated have lately come into the possession of the subscriber, and the anxiety on the part of some persons to locate in Yanceyville, has induced him to afford an opportunity to all persons of possessing themselves of a situation in one of the most healthy and flourishing villages in North Carolina, and one too, which presents as many advantages as any other—having the advantages of a first rate Male and Female Academy, a good society, and a wealthy neighborhood. Persons desirous of locating themselves to advantage would do well to attend the sale. Bonds and good security will be required of the purchasers. Further particulars made known on the day of sale.

DOCTOR W. W. MARSHALL'S
Ointment for the Blind Piles.

The public are assured that I have had a remedy in use for six years, during which time it has, in numerous cases, been subjected to the test of experiment, and, in many instances, in the most aggravated forms of this disease, and always with perfect success—no instance of failure having ever come to my knowledge.

The component parts of this remedy are purely vegetable—warranted to contain no mineral substance whatever. No particular care or exposure is necessary. It may be used without interrupting ordinary pursuits. It causes no pain, but has a soothing effect on the diseased part, and in a short time effects a perfect cure.

It is not generally known that the Piles are often the cause of that dreadful disease Fistula. In most instances in which I have been called to practice on this disease, I have treated it originally for the Piles; hence, those suffering from them should lose no time in seeking the most efficient remedies. Price $2 00 per Box.

N. B.—Numerous references can be given. The certificate of the Rev. William A. Smith, of the Methodist E. Church, [illegible] is accompanied with the remark, that like testimonials here [illegible] obtained from numerous other intelligent and respectable individuals; among whom are Messrs. J. W. Winfree, Thomas Hart, James C. Cowan, Archibald Thomas, Cornelius Crew, Richard Daws, James Caskie, A. French.

This is to certify that I have had a fair opportunity to know both the nature and effects of Dr. Marshall's remedy for the Blind Piles, and think it a duty I owe to those who suffer with this distressing disease to say, that it may be confidently relied on as a safe, agreeable and effectual remedy for the form of disease for which the proprietor recommends it. It has been extensively used in the circle of my acquaintance, and a case of failure has not come to my knowledge.

The celebrated English Race Horse

FLEXIBLE,

(Bred by the Earl of Egremont) by Whalebone, dam Thetis by Sorcerer, (purchased by the Earl of Egremont for the King of Prussia) her dam Hanna by Gohanna, Humming Bird (sister to Catharina, Colibrie and young Camilla, the dam of Mandane and Allegretta) by Woodpecker, Camilla by Trentham, Coquette by Sir Compton Barb; sister to Regulus by the Godolphin Arabian.

Whalebone, the sire of Flexible, is brother to Whisker, Widnil, and Web, by Waxy—dam Penelope by Trumpeter, Prunella by Highflyer, Promise by Snap, Spectator's dam by Partner. In Flexible is thus united the best blood of Matchem, Herod and Eclipse.

FLEXIBLE won nine races when three years old (including a cup of 4 miles) and has been Longwaist, Dr. Faustus, Arachne, General Wade, Signorina, Whittington, Qwerry, Lurcher, Muzzano, &c. Flexible stood in England at eleven sovereigns (equal to 55 dollars). He is full 15 hands 3 inches high, with great muscular power, and for nice proportions is equalled by few. He is one of the best sons of Whalebone, descended from the two best Arabians, without an unfashionable cross. His speed, bottom, and temper is equal to any horse of his day. He is now at his stables. The season will commence the 14th day of February, or earlier, if required. For the particulars of his running, and that of his colts in England, see hand bills, also his terms, which shall be liberal.

TO PARENTS & GUARDIANS.

The subscriber having lately given notice that he had again taken the

Hillsboro' Female Seminary

under his immediate instruction and control, deems it due to the public now to state, that since the date of that advertisement, he has determined to remove from Hillsborough, and the [illegible] his connexion with this institution is consequently dissolved.

He trusts, however, that his separation from this school will not injuriously affect its interests. The Ladies in whose charge it remains are well known and approved Instructresses. Their past diligence and success afford the surest pledge for the conscientious discharge of their future duties. No better evidence can be given of the correct and critical mode of instruction pursued in this institution than the well-known fact that its pupils are eagerly sought after, and highly appreciated as Instructresses in other schools. It has ever been a leading principle with the teachers to get to their pupils an understanding knowledge of what they are taught—to proportion the studies to their respective capacities—to establish habits of close and correct thinking—to illustrate, as far as possible, each lesson by example & experiment, and to give to the whole system of instruction a practical character.

At the request of the Teachers the following statement of terms &c. is here added:

Literary branches, 1st	Class,	$17 00
" 2nd & 3d	do	15 00
" 4th	do	12 50
Instruction on Piano & Guitar (each)		25 00
Drawing & Painting,		10 00
Ornamental Needle-work, (Muslin)		5 00
Do (Crewel)		5 00
French Language,		15 00

Lessons in MUSIC & PAINTING are given by a competent and approved Instructress. The FRENCH LANGUAGE is taught by a native of France—a gentleman of every way qualified.

Board may be had in respectable families, at nine or ten dollars per month. A few boarders will be received, on early application, into the family of the principal instructress.

BLOODED HORSES for SALE.

The Editor of the Star will sell, on reasonable terms, a fine Blooded MARE, by Monsieur Tonson. Also, an excellent HORSE COLT from her, now about 8 months old, by Murdoch, a noble son of Sir Charles. No mistake in the blood.

Raleigh, Feb. 20, 1838

The grandiloquence of some of the stump orators of the West, passeth show. The last flourish we have heard of, ran thus:

"Fellow citizens, I am standing here on a throne, prouder than any in Europe—in the face of the Universe, and in the sublime presence of the people; and I stand here as the lineal descendant of the goddess of liberty! Yes, I was raised at the breast of that glorious individual! Her arm has sustained me, her shield has guarded me in every political fight I ever had—and the Lord knows I have had a good many; her voice has buzzed in my ears; and many a time, when I have been partly defeated by my foes, she has raised me from the dust in the thickest of the conflict:

"Has laid my languid head upon her knee,
And bathed my bloody brow with tuneful tears
