POETRY.

"And while his Harp responsive rung—
'Twas thus the latest Minstrel sung."

THE YOUNG.

BY W. GAYLORD CLARK.

When into dust, like dewy flowers departed,
From our dim paths the bright and lovely fade;
The fair in form, the pure, the gentle-hearted,
Whose looks within the breast a Sabbath made,
How like a whisper on the inconstant wind,
The memory of their voices stirs the mind!

We hear the sigh, the song, the fitful laughter
That from their lips, in balm, were wont to flow
When hope's beguiling winds they hurried after,
And drank her siren music long ago;
While joy's bright harp to sweetest lays was strung,
And poured rich numbers for the loved and young!

When the clear stars are burning high in Heaven,
When the low night-winds kiss the autumnal tree
And thoughts are deepening in the hush of even,
How soft those voices on the heart will be!
They breathe of raptures which have bloomed and died,
Of sorrows by remembrance sanctified.

Yet when the loved have from our pathway vanished
What potent magic can their smiles restore?
Like some gay sun burst, by the tempest banished,
They passed in darkness—they will come no more,
Unlike the gay beams, when the storm hath fled,
No light renewed breaks on their lowly bed.

A PORTRAIT.

Her close lips
Were delicate as the tinted pencilling
Of veins upon a flower; and on her cheek
The timid blood had faintly melted through,
Like something that was half afraid of light.
There was no slighter print upon the grass,
Than her elastic step; and in her frame
There was a perfect symmetry that seem'd
Æ ial as a bird's.

WOMAN.—The best and purest feelings of our human nature are excited by woman; and to maintain the supremacy of her influence, to contrast with and in opposition to the more grovelling passions of mankind has employed the pens of the brightest geniuses in every age—a most faithful and eloquent theme.

"Not she with traitorous kiss, her Saviour stung—
Not she denied him with unholy tongue:
She, while apostles shrank, could danger brave—
Last at his cross and Earliest at his grave!"

[The above paragraph is from a contemporary, who is at least the ninety-ninth publisher of this precious morsel. On making this remark to our Devil, he slyly handed us the following, with a request that it should be appended.

Newbern Spectator.]

Not he with curious, damning wish to pry,
First broke Gon's law, and caused our Lord to die.
Not he, in Eden, first took Satan's bait;
When she so duced him, hen-pecked Adam ate.
Nor sin, nor death, nor shame, nor dark despair,
Would Man have known, had Woman not been there!

BEAUTIFUL EXTRACT.

Virtue has resources buried in itself, which we know not of until the invading hour call them from their retreats. Surrounded by hosts without, and when nature herself turned traitor, is its most deadly enemy within, it assumes a new and superhuman power which is greater than nature itself. Whatever be its creed, whatever its sect—from whatever segment of the globe its orisons arise, Virtue is God's empire, and from his throne he will defend it. Though cast into the distant earth and struggling on the dim arena of a human heart, all things above are spectators of its conflict, or enlisted in its cause. The angels have their charge over it—the banner of archangels are on its side; and from sphere to sphere through the illimitable ether and round the impenetrable darkness at the feet of God, its triumph is hymned by harps which are strung to the glories of the Creator."

Bulwer.

Advice to Sundry People.—When you feel your passions rising never confine or suppress them. How many boilers have been burst by too close an imprisonment of their contents?

Always proclaim faults of others. There should be no secrets in a republican government.

Never give up your opinion though you know you are wrong; it shows that you have no independence.

Whenever you attack your neighbor's character, do it behind his back, so as not to wound his feelings.

Make it a rule to keep company with rogues and rascals; and then if you should be prosecuted for an offence you have committed, and your comrades should be called as witnesses against you, no body will believe them and so you will get clear.

Never forgive an injury. The power of pardoning belongs to the Governor and Council.

When you have done an act of charity publish it to others; so that they may do so too. Besides every man can preach best from his own notes.

Never pay your debts it is unconstitutional, for payment impairs the obligation of a contract, and even the Legislature has no power to do that.

Temperance is a great virtue; therefore always be moderate in the use of ardent spirits. Six glasses of sling before breakfast is as good as a thousand.

When you are at church go to sleep. Sunday is a day of rest.

If a secret has been committed to you to keep, take special care to keep it safely; and it may be well for cautions sake to get one or two to help you.

And as woman is called the "weaker vessel," she should have a dozen to help her. 'Fast bind fast find.'

Never sweep your parlor—it makes a confounded dust.

Never brush down a cobweb: it is a part of a spiders's dwelling house, and of course his castle, and therefore is sacred.

Life is short, and as things are now managed, a woman's work is never done, she must therefore work double tides that is she should talk and laugh at the same time. Years of life may be saved in this way.

When you are in company and can find nothing to say, you may do your part by singing and whistling to yourself.

In telling a story, season it with laughter as you go on, and give notice when you are done, so that others may know when to join in the laugh.

Somepeople sigh in the old fashioned way; and some give a long sigh through the nose. The former mode occasions much wear and tear of the heart, and the latter saves the wear and tear of the pocket handkerchief.

Portland Transcript.

From the Columbus (Ohio) Journal and Register.—A Pleasant Conceit!—A gentleman of Montgomery county, having been rsquested to furnish some statistical matter respecting that intelligent and wealthy county, for the pages of a monthly contemporary, in consenting so to do, thus pleasantly alludes to the political feeling of that district:

"By the way, lest that fact should perchance be omitted in any future account to be furnished you of our topography, statics, and characteristic features, you may say that our soil—deep, strong and productive, as well upon the hill tops, as in 'the bottoms, every where over the whole face of the country, is Clay, excellent Clay. 'Dig into the heart of the land, and first and uppermost, wherever you try it, you will come to that,"

Our readers will, we think, generally admit the common sense of the following article:

From the columbia (s. c.) Telescope,.

DIVORCING.—Congress has now under debate a resolution, which proposes the appointment of a committee of retrenchment and reform; "and that the said committee be instructed also to inquire into the expediency of divorcing, by law, the Government from the public press."

Really, we should like to know how many wives the Government has. We hear of nothing but divorcing it from this, and divorcing it from that. If half the insinuations against it have any foundation, it should have been indicted and punished for bigamy a hundred times over.

This slang phrase of "divorcing the Government from the Banks," by which a mere metaphor is substituted for fact and for argument, has perhaps acquired for the sub-Treasury Scheme of Van Buren, Benton, &c. the chief part of such popular support as it has received. What does it mean? Has it any meaning? Let us see.

Divorce; a dissolution of the marriage contract—dividing the parties.—Marriage; the closest connexion that can be formed between mortals: by it two persons are made one.

We say to our shoemaker—"Sir, we choose to pay your bill and quit your shop." Is this a divorce between us?

We say to a tailor—"We are come to employ you to make us a suit of clothes." Is this a marriage,

We say to a broker—"Negotiate this bill of exchange for us, on the usual commmission." Is this a marriage?

To a President of a bank—"We wish to put in your bank ten thousand dollars, to transmit for us to various States. We will pay you a reasonable commission." Is this a marriage? If the bank can execute our business well and reasonably, why not emply it? Because we hire the bank to do our work, does that marry us to the bank?

We hope not.

Duelling.—The Committee of Congress have made a report recommending Graves to be expelled, and censuring all the parties to the right and left implicated in the late Duels. Desirous as it undoubtedly is to prevent duelling generally, and particularly in Congress, intemperate party reports of Committees similar to this can never effect the object. Members may prevent duels by courtesy and propriety in debate. N. Y. Star.

J. SOUTHALL,

Having taken from Mrs. P. W. SOUTHALL that beautiful new building, situated at the west end of the village, and contiguous to her grove, is now fitting it up for the reception of travellers. Too many promises have been made in this line of business, in which the public have been deceived. I shall only say, call and judge for yourselves. Mrs. Southall and daughters promise personal attention to ladies.

DRUGS & MEDICINES,
Sign of the Golden Mortar.

WM. M. MASON & CO.

Having purchased the entire stock of Messrs T. S. Beckwith & Co. have commenced the APOTHECARY business at the stand formerly occupied by them on Fayetteville Street, second door north of W. & A. Stith, where they have just received a further supply of Drugs, Medicines, Glass, Oil, Paints, Dye Stuffs and Perfumery, together with a general assortment of which they will dispose of on the most reasonable terms.

Merchants and others can be furnished with patent and other medicines on as reasonable terms as they can be got south of the Potomac. Persons would do well to call and examine for themselves. Physicians at a distance, who may favor us with their orders, will have them promptly attended to. No pains will be spared in selecting Chemicals and Pharmaceutical preparations, as they are determined that no medicines but such as are genuine, shall be sold by them. One of the Firm having been brought up to the business, to which he will give his undivided attention, thereby avoiding those fatal mistakes that too often occur through incompetency or carelessless, they hope, by strict attention to business, to merit a share of the public patronage.

DOCTOR W. W. MARSHALL'S
Ointment for the Blind Piles.

The public are assured that I have had this remedy in use for six years, during which time it has, in numerous cases, been subjected to the test of experiment, and, in many instances, on the most aggravated forms of this disease, and always with perfect success—no instance of failure having ever come to my knowledge.

The component parts of this remedy are purely vegetable—warranted to contain no mineral substance whatever. No particular care as to exposure is necessary. It may be used without interrupting ordinary pursuits. It causes no pain, but has a soothing effect on the diseased part, and in a short time effects a perfect cure.

It is not generally known that the Piles are often the cause of that dreadful disease FISTULA. In most instances in which I have been called to practice on this disease, I have traced it originally to the Piles; hence, those suffering from them should lose no time in seeking the most efficient remedies. Price $2 00 per Box.

W W MARSHALL,
Richmond, Va.

N. B.—Numerous references can be given. The certificate of the Rev. William A Smith, of the Methodist E. Church, alone is submitted, with the remark, that like testimonials have been obtained from numerous other intelligent and respectable individuals; among whom are Messrs. J W Winfree, Thomas Hart, James C Crane, Archibald Thomas, Cornelius Cre , Ezekiel Daws, James Caskie, A French.

This is to certify that I have had a fair opportunity to know both the nature and effects of Dr. Marshall's remedy for the Blind Piles, and think it a duty I owe to those who suffer with this distressing disease to say, that it may be confidently relied on as a safe, agreeable and efficient remedy for the form of disease for which the proprietor recommends it. It has been extensively used in the circle of my acquaintance, and a case of failure has not come to my knowledge.

Among them are Wayland's Moral Economy, of known reputation, and extensively used as a text book in all the principal Colleges. Wayland's Political Economy, abridged for the use of schools; a very valuable work. Wayland's Elements of Moral Science. The attention of the public is most respectfully called to this very valuable work. Also, Wayland's Elements of Moral Science abridged, and adapted to the use of common schools and academies. We think the abridgment as admirably adapted to supply the deficiency which has long been felt in common school education—the study of moral obligation. So far as we have been able to examine the two works, we must say that we are quite well pleased with the smaller as with the larger, the illustrations are apt and striking. Abercrombie on Intellectual Powers. Why is such a book not in every family and school? Paley's Theology, new edition, enlarged, with forty plates, and additional notes of Dr. Baxter and others. The Class Book of Nat. Theology, or the Testimony of Nature to the Being, Perfection, and Government of God, by H. Fergus. The Young Ladies Class Book; a selection of lessons for reading, in prose and verse, by Ebenezer Bailey, A. M. Peter Parley's Common School History, embellished with engravings, a new work by Peter Parley, containing histories, travels, voyages, lives, &c. for Juvenile readers. Blake's Natural Philosophy, new edition, enlarged. Blake's first book in Astronomy, designed for the use of common schools, illustrated by steel plates and engravings. Roman Antiquities and Ancient Mythology, by Chas. D. Dilloway, A. M., illustrated by elegant engravings. The American Expositor, or Intellectual Definer, designed for the use of schools, by Rufus Cloggett. The arguments are good and the definitions clear and concise. Says Political Economy. Brown's Philosophy, abridged, for primary schools. Brown's Library, Harper's Family Library, where there is more valuable reading than can be found in any other works for the cost. Classical Literature, where there may be found nearly all other Classical translations. Christian Library, Miss Edgeworth's Novels complete. Mrs. Opie's Novels complete. Mrs. Sherwood's complete works. A few full sets of the American Almanac and Repository of Useful Knowledge, complete in 2 vols. well bound; also, some odd numbers to complete for the year 1838, complete sets of the Penny Magazine, of the Society for the diffusion of useful knowledge; with a very large and miscellaneous collection of Books, consisting of Law, Medical, Historical, Theological, and miscellaneous works, novels, voyages, novels, &c., all kind of School Books, too tedious to mention.
