

THOS. J. LEMAY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR. TERMS. Subscription, three dollars per annum...

MR STANLY'S CIRCULAR. We have been favored with a copy of the Hon. Edward Stanly's letter to his constituents...

When the Yeas and Nays were taken on the question, Shall the memorial be received? it appeared that there were—Yeas 139, Nays 52.

To recognize a minister plenipotentiary and envoy-extraordinary from the black republic of Hayti...

This examination of the votes upon the subject of abolition will enable us to perceive that the gallant 56 are not disposed to "stand by" the South...

One of my own colleagues has published a letter to his constituents, in which he has travelled at the North...

Although I have not travelled at the North, and associated with all classes of people...

If in Massachusetts both sides court the fanatics, there is no danger from that State, for the democrats are "friends" of the South...

Clay's resolutions against abolition. He is opposed to Mr. Van Buren. I have evidence to contradict the assertion that the abolitionists in New York are Whigs.

If, in Pennsylvania, the Whig candidate for Governor was an avowed abolitionist, the Whigs were beaten in that State, by a majority, I think, of near seven thousand.

Vermont has five Representatives in the House: four Whigs and one Loco loco. This Loco loco is an avowed abolitionist.

Heman Allen of Vermont, who voted against the humbug resolutions, was beaten, at the last election, by a Van Buren Loco loco abolitionist.

Then, in Maine, democratic Maine, how stand the parties there? They are in the majority in Congress...

In New York, I have plenty of evidence to show that many of the abolitionists supported Mr. Van Buren at the last election...

The Courier and Enquirer, a leading Whig paper in New York, has always bitterly opposed the abolitionists.

The Evening Post, the leading Van Buren paper in the city of New York is edited by an abolitionist.

In Massachusetts, it is admitted that many of both sides are abolitionists.

In Connecticut, there have been anti-slavery State conventions held, and I took the list of the names of some of the Vice Presidents...

of the gospel recommended to their congregations "to withdraw all religious connexion with slave owners"; and agreed upon the following resolution: "Resolved, That the time has arrived, in which it is our duty to let all men know that we will not, on any consideration, give our votes for a man, to be the next President or Vice President of these United States, who is a slave holder or an apologist for slavery."

In Pennsylvania, the democrats are in the majority, and therefore, they are all friends of the South.

And what was the democratic candidate for Governor? I find it stated in the Pennsylvania paper that Porter, the democratic candidate and present Governor of Pennsylvania, is "an open and undisguised abolitionist"; and that he was a member of the Legislature, and voted to instruct the Senators in Congress "to vote against the admission of any Territory in this Union, unless such Territory should first stipulate an agree that slavery should be abolished, and that all the negro children born in the Territory should be free."

In the Pittsburg district now so ably represented by the Hon. Richard Biddle, he was questioned by the abolitionists, and answered them in terms becoming a gentleman and patriot.

Mr. Woodbury has a brother, a candidate for Congress, in Massachusetts, who is an abolitionist; and now here is another, a candidate for Congress in his own democratic State.

In Pennsylvania, during the last election, both parties denied being abolitionists. Each accused the other of favoring abolition.

Mr. Weld, the abolition lecturer, did to our certain knowledge, travel the country, advocating Van Buren's election for President.

The Evening Post, the leading Van Buren paper in the city of New York is edited by an abolitionist.

After the great victory in New York last fall, the Van Buren papers of the South published with great flourish a letter of certain members of the anti-slavery society, giving their reasons for supporting Seward, the Whig candidate for Governor.

ing some hundreds, did not and would not sanction the proceedings." The Editor of the Emancipator apologizes for it by saying "that it was the act, of individuals, for which the anti-slavery society, even of Albany, is no way responsible."

In the city of New York, which gives 40,000 votes, the abolitionists never claimed more than fifteen hundred!

In Rhode Island, there are abolitionists on both sides. Lately, I learn, a distinguished Whig in that State has taken a bold stand against abolition.

As to Ohio, I have already commented on the floor of Congress of the democratic anti-abolitionists there.

By a letter from New Hampshire, I learn that "the Administration portion of the abolition party is calculated by many as high as one third."

Mr. Woodbury has a brother, a candidate for Congress, in Massachusetts, who is an abolitionist; and now here is another, a candidate for Congress in his own democratic State.

In New York, I have plenty of evidence to show that many of the abolitionists supported Mr. Van Buren at the last election; several abolitionists travelled in the State and lectured for him.

The Courier and Enquirer, a leading Whig paper in New York, has always bitterly opposed the abolitionists.

The Evening Post, the leading Van Buren paper in the city of New York is edited by an abolitionist.

After the great victory in New York last fall, the Van Buren papers of the South published with great flourish a letter of certain members of the anti-slavery society, giving their reasons for supporting Seward, the Whig candidate for Governor.

C. G. Atherton! And yet the South is told all the abolitionists are whigs!

I have dwelt upon this subject at great length; more, I hope, than was necessary. But the evidence accumulates as I search for it.

Our Northern brethren know too well the value of time and of money, to make any attack upon us to liberate our slaves.

I believe the excitement is all produced by the partisans of Van Buren, who are trying to call public attention from the recent enormous defalcations.

STEAM.—If the wild tribes of Lake Huron were to be told that the white man's recipe for conquering the waves of the great lake before them was to take up a very small portion of it and boil it—sixty years ago Dr. Johnson had been told (as, exhausted by a hard day's literary labor, he sat ruminating at his fire-side waiting for his favorite beverage) that the tiny volume of white smoke he was listlessly gazing at, as it issued from the spout of his black iron tea-kettle, was a source competent to repel the

GENERAL SCOTT.

FROM THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER.

It will be seen by the following letter that General Scott declines the proffered compliment of a public dinner in this city.

HEADQUARTERS, EASTERN DIVISION, Washington, April 6, 1839.

GENERAL: I have had the honor to receive your two notes, which I beg permission to consider as one, the sentiments and many of the signers being common to both.

Among you I have the happiness to recognize many an old and kind friend, and not an individual whom I should not be proud to make cool.

These sentiments are deeply impressed on my heart. But my position as a soldier, bound by peculiar ties and duties to country and Government—the necessity of continuing garrisoned, I know not how long, and the danger of seeming to seek, in violation of military propriety, such honors—all have recently admonished me to accept no public entertainment whatever.

WINFIELD SCOTT.

To Messrs. Jas. T. Lodge, Philip Hone, Wm. A. Duer, C. W. Lawrence, Aaron Clark, Augustus Fleming, P. G. Stuyvesant, Charles King, James G. King, Daniel Jackson, David B. Ogden, J. Watson Webb, G. Griswold, Thaddeus Phelps, N. Prime, C. A. Davis, S. B. Rogers, Edward Curtis, Samuel Ward Jacob P. Girard, &c. &c. &c. &c.

THE PROSPECT AHEAD!!

And she bade me cheer up my heart For the best of my days were coming.

Walter Scott.

It is with pride that we have begun to contemplate the signs of prosperity, that are all around us making their appearance.

we think our citizens have cause to take heart at the prospect before them, and push forward to still greater improvement.—Salisbury Watchman.

THE AWFUL PLUNGE.—The St. Catherine's (U. C.) Journal of the 6th states that five men went over Niagara Falls on the previous Thursday.

The only particulars which have been able to learn are, that just before sunrise, on Thursday morning last, a boat, with two men in it, was discovered in the middle of the river, above the Falls, vainly endeavouring to make their way through the ice with which they were enclosed, to the Canadian shore.

A NATIONAL BANK.

The Salisbury Carolinian says: "It is understood that Mr. Clay has written a letter to a friend of his in Mississippi, in which he for the present entirely abandons a National Bank."

SOUTHERN RAIL ROAD.—We presume that but few North Carolinians, and no others, are aware of the fact, that we have a greater extent of Rail Road in actual operation, than any Southern State except Virginia.

A VENERABLE CONSUL.

Miss Hall, in her Rambles in Europe, in 1835, while at Leghorn, was waited upon by the American Consul at that port.

Singular Escape.—The Editor of this paper having employed some hands to clean out a well in his yard, was descending into it on Tuesday last, to examine whether the work had been properly done.

From the Norfolk Beacon. FATAL DUEL. It is our painful duty to state that a duel was fought yesterday near the North Carolina line, between J. S. Jones, Esq. of North Carolina, and H. W. Wilson, Esq. of New York.

FATAL DUEL.

It is our painful duty to state that a duel was fought yesterday near the North Carolina line, between J. S. Jones, Esq. of North Carolina, and H. W. Wilson, Esq. of New York.