

Red Forces Dig In, Hurl Counterattacks At Allies

Prepare For Stand 30 Miles Below Border

TOKYO, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Red armies dug in along a 100-mile "no retreat" defense line across Korea today and threw five sharp counterattacks against advancing UN troops.

All five company-strength enemy thrusts 15 miles southeast of Hoengsong were beaten off, but they were taken as added evidence that the Reds are preparing a new stand some 30 miles south of the 38th Parallel.

MASS 130,000 TROOPS The Reds were believed massing 130,000 Chinese and North Korean troops with tank and artillery support behind the new line stretching from the Yellow Sea through the southern outskirts of Seoul to the eastern mountains.

The U.S. 8th Army already was abreast of the new line west, south and east of Seoul and rapidly was approaching it in the East-Central Mountains.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of the 8th Army, moved the bulk of his 250,000 American troops into line for the coming test of strength.

The U.S. 1st Marine Division was disclosed to be back in action with the 9th Corps on the central front below Hoengsong. It had been rest-

Rush In Subscriptions Before Vote Value Falls

By BILL & DORIS GUPTON Contest Editors If you had a thousand pounds of tobacco on hand and received definite information that the price of tobacco was due to take a nosedive that would mean the loss of considerable money, and that that drop in price would occur next Saturday and if you did not market your tobacco immediately, next week's price would surely mean a severe setback to you, what would you do?

Why, very naturally, you'd rush that tobacco to market, anywhere, to prevent such a turn of events. You'd get into immediate action, with every facility at your command to take advantage of existing higher market prices. You, no doubt, would call upon your friends,

Sen. Wherry Accuses Military Leaders Of Outmoded Planning

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry, R., Neb., today accused American military officials of "antiquated" planning that is endangering United States defenses.

The Senate Republican leader named Defense Secretary George C. Marshall, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff.

WANTS TROOP CONTROLS Wherry asked the Senate to adopt his resolution which would halt the sending of American ground troops to Western Europe until Congress adopts a national defense policy.

He accused the military officials of being tied to ground warfare and "oblivious" to air power.

Senator Wants Farm Census Act Repealed

RALEIGH, Feb. 27.—(AP)—State lawmakers started off the legislative week last night in an argumentative mood and received another flock of new bills.

Most controversial of the new measures was one to repeal the act which makes farm census reports possible. Its author was Sen. J. Thomas Page of Rockingham.

The bill would repeal a 1949 act which requires counties to collect farm census information for the State Department of Agriculture. In 1947 the county officials succeeded in getting a law passed to relieve them of the census job, and the new measure is designed to do the same thing again.

The Senate also received a bill to provide a home for the care of needy cancer patients. Sen. John D. Larkins presented the measure explaining that North Carolina Cancer Institute would assume responsibility for the care of such patients if the State would provide a building.

The bill would lease a building at Camp Butler to the institute and appropriate $85,000 for renovation and equipment.

The House received a resolution commending that legislators get out of the "traditional rut" of raising taxes to boost revenue. The resolution suggested each House member come up with an idea to raise $1,000,000, such as a plan to boost tourist trade or attract industry.

But the House stumbled to a halt on a Senate bill to prohibit use of profane or indecent language to females over the telephone. Rep. Roger Kaiser of Scotland sent up an amendment to cross out the word females and the House approved the change.

But after the measure passed second reading some members tried to take the amendment out again. The move failed 38-55 but the protests continued and only a move to carry the bill over broke the stalemate.

It did not affect the department's two-way local radio hookup.

Hobbs Returns To City Hall

City Manager R. Thomas Hobbs was back at his desk at City Hall this morning after "a wonderful time" on his honeymoon to Florida and Havana, Cuba.

"You can say that we had a wonderful time and that I'm very happy," he told a reporter when asked for a statement.

City Manager Hobbs is the principal figure in a controversy which has been raging over whether or not the city manager form of government should be abolished here.

REPORTS FOR DUTY

On the day before his wedding on Feb. 16 the former Naval officer received orders to report to San Diego for active sea duty before March 15.

On this morning when he planned to officially notify the city council concerning his plans, Hobbs said: "That's a matter strictly between the board and me."

He explained that he wanted additional information concerning his call to duty before making any statement.

Asked about the possibility of getting an extension to put affairs of the city manager's office into order, Hobbs said he understood that was sometimes done, depending upon the emergency of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs are living at 1408 W. Divine St. in their new home in the Latimer development. Mrs. Hobbs is scheduled to begin duties soon as educational director of the Divine St. Methodist Church.

Dunn May Figure In U. S. Army Exercise

The Town of Dunn may serve as a supply depot for Exercise Southern Pine, the big Army maneuvers which will involve more than 140,000 troops during the months of June and July.

A public information official at maneuver headquarters this morning definitely confirmed to The Daily Record that Dunn is one of several towns being considered.

Army officers have made several visits to Dunn checking on warehouse facilities available, transportation facilities and other accommodations.

WILL USE WAREHOUSE Buck Currin, operator of Dunn's Big-4 Warehouses, said today that he had made his warehouse available for the maneuvers. It was understood that approximately 300,000 square feet, and possibly more, would be needed.

The Army officers also conferred with ACL Agent George Owen, with Durham and Southern Agent Bill Cobb, with Manager Joe McCullers of the Chamber of Commerce and others.

Army officials today declined to give out any figure on the size of the operation which would be involved, but indicated that it would be enormous.

If Dunn is selected, it would mean that the Logistical Command would come here from Camp (Continued On Page Six)

Nevada Ratifies 22nd Amendment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—No American can ever again be elected president for more than two terms or serve for more than 10 years, unless President Truman runs and wins in 1952.

For all practical purposes, that limitation became effective when Nevada ratified the 22nd Constitutional amendment at 7:30 p.m. yesterday. That was 30 minutes after Utah ratified and cleared the way for Nevada to put it over the top. The amendment now has been adopted by 36 states — the necessary three-fourths to change the Constitution.

TRUMAN IS LOST The Constitutional change — first since the prohibition repealer in 1933 — means that President Truman is the last man who possibly can be elected for more than two terms. He is specifically exempted and can keep on running as long as he lives — and gets the votes. The new amendment declares that no person who has served (Continued On Page Six)

Heel-Cutting Convicts Get Mental Tests

ANGOLA, La., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The warden of Louisiana State Prison asked the governor to lend him a psychiatrist from a nearby lunatic asylum today to find out why convicts were slashing their Achilles tendons while they sang a song called "The Heel String Boogie."

Thirty-one convicts sawed through their Achilles tendons above their heels with razor blades in one foot. Ten of the convicts cut through the tendons on their own feet last night, crippling themselves completely.

APPOINTMENTS COMMITTEE Warden Rudolph Eastery said he had asked Gov. Earl K. Long to lend him Dr. E. M. Howard, psychiatrist at East Louisiana (mental) Hospital to psychoanalyze the tendon cutters. Long did not decide immediately whether to grant the request. Long said he would appoint a committee to investigate the 31 (Continued On Page Six)
