Solons Seek Free Rein For Gen. MacArthur

WASHINGTON, April 6.—New demands rose in Congress today to "untie" Gen. Douglas MacArthur's hands in Korea.

Republicans generally rallied behind MacArthur's somber warning that "the fall of Europe is inevitable" if Asia falls to the Reds.

The Republicans called for more authority and more resources for MacArthur to fight the Korean War.

Democrats privately were grumbling that the general was stepping out of his military role into the realm of diplomatic policy making.

Elsewhere in Congress UMT—House members speculated whether supporters of universal military training had not sacrificed much of the program in concessions to get the votes to put it over.

RFC—President Truman's plan to reorganize the Reconstruction Finance Corp. under a single administrator faced a showdown in the closely-divided Senate executive expenditures committee.

UN SETS POLICY—United States foreign policy is based on the policy of the United Nations and that a settlement cannot be effected by this country alone without sanction from the larger ruling body.

House Group Kills Vets' Bonus Bill

RALEIGH, April 6.—Chances for a veterans bonus from this General Assembly appeared dead today after the House Finance Committee turned thumbs down on a bonus bill.

The group acted after the author of the measure, Rep. George Long of Alamance, told them he could not see how the bill as drawn would be able to produce enough revenue to make any substantial payment in a given year to eligible veterans.

He admitted the most that could be paid probably would be $20 or $25 per year.

But Rep. Marion Parrot of Lenoir moved for an unfavorable report and the committee sustained his motion. Nearly 300 veterans from Alamance County jammed the committee hearing room Wednesday to urge approval of the bill.

Things are scheduled to pick up on the strike front at Erwin today as the walkout of 43,000 Southern cotton and rayon workers entered its sixth day.

Chinese Fight To Gain Time For Spring Push

TOKYO, April 6.—Eight United Nations divisions hacked their way into the enemy's first major defense line north of the 38th Parallel along a 35-mile front in central Korea today.

The Chinese fought to the death in their foxholes, holding their positions even in the face of American bayonet charges. They threw everything up to 105-millimeter artillery fire at the advancing UN columns.

The Reds also were bringing up tanks to challenge the Allied armored columns. UN planes intercepted at least 14 of the tanks and destroyed or damaged all before they could reach the front.

Other Allied aircraft ripped into enemy supply columns rushing to the front.

Ending Korean War Up To UN, Speaker States

Setting the war in Korea by peaceful conciliation is a job for the United Nations, not for any individual, according to a State Department representative who spoke here Thursday night.

Richard Friedman, information specialist for the department's division of public liaison, said that ending the war through negotiations is not up to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme allied commander, who has made overtures to the communists in Korea.

Friedman explained that the United States is only a contributor—although the major one—to the battle in the Orient.

He explained further that United States foreign policy is based on the policy of the United Nations and that a settlement cannot be effected by this country alone without sanction from the larger ruling body.

Friedman appeared at Dunn Army as the first speaker for the (Continued On Page Six)
