Senate Passes Stopgap Money Legislation

WASHINGTON, June 29 — Government agencies and employees had virtual congressional assurance today that they won't face a "moneyless Monday" next week.

By stopgap legislation, the House voted to let the agencies go on spending money in July at about the same rate they are spending it now. The Senate was expected to join in the emergency measure either today or tomorrow.

Without the congressional blank check, the agencies were confronted with the possibility of going broke over the week end. The fiscal year and all regular appropriations end at midnight Saturday and this for Congress has not completed action on a single appropriations bill for the next fiscal year.

GOP OPPOSED

The House action came over stiff Republican opposition. The Republicans wanted to put strict limitations on what the agencies can spend during July and some wanted to take a slap at Secretary of State Dean Acheson by forbidding funds to the State Department.

Other Congressional Developments: Taxes—The administration's renewed request for a $10,700,000,000 tax increase came under a double-barreled, bipartisan blast. Sen. (Continued on Page 8)

Motor Smokes When Power Fuse Blows

Firemen rushed to a home on Lillington street at the home of Mrs. Joel G. Layton on Front St. On arrival they found that smoke in the basement came from motor trouble in the deep freeze.

There was no damage from fire. At the same time, electrical currents failed partially or wholly over a large area including Lillington, Mammars and Bunnlevel.

Electrical calculators stopped at the courthouse, but the electric current was sufficient to move small fans lazily.

BOMBARDED BY WIVES Mrs. Majorie Taylor, town clerk, was bombarded by housewives in the middle of meal preparations. They were notified to unplug deep freeze units and refrigerators to prevent possible motor trouble.

Three years ago partial current into Lillington destroyed several expensive refrigeration units in down town stores and markets.

Henry M. Tyler of Dunn, manager of Carolina Power and Light Company's office in this area, said that one of three fuses on a 22,000 volt line feeding into Lillington (Continued on Page 8)

War Slacks Off As Ridgway Awaits Red Armistice Move

No Holiday For Soldiers

Fourth of July will be no holiday for the several thousand soldiers stationed around this vicinity, in fact, they'll be head-over-heels in work.

Army officers said this morning that no leaves or furloughs will be granted over the holidays since the issuance of supplies to maneuver units will begin on July fourth.

The week end brings one big event for the soldiers, however. Saturday is payday and by noon-time their pockets will be jingling with money.

Crash Of Navy Plane Kills 8

KEY WEST, Fla., June 29. — Eight persons were killed today in the crash of a two-engine Navy patrol bomber in 12 feet of water about one mile from President Truman's winter White House.

The Navy reported that only one of the three officers and six enlisted men survived the crash that occurred on takeoff from the naval seaplane base.

Witnesses to the accident, which occurred a short distance from the scene of the collision between a Cuban airliner and a Navy plane that killed 43 persons April 25, said the plane cartwheeled and turned upside down as it slammed into the water.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED Navy and Coast Guard rescue boats were on the scene within a few minutes and pulled two men from the water. However, one of the two died within a few minutes. A short time later the body of another victim was pulled from the wreckage.

The Navy reported that the six persons still left in the plane were presumed dead, especially since the plane was still upside down.

A part of the big plane was still above the water, marking the death scene for Navy divers who were put into operation quickly. The Navy reported a floating crane was on the scene in less than an hour after the crash at 8:40 a. m.

NAMES WITHHELD The lone survivor suffered a broken leg and "minor" shock, the Navy said. Names of the victims will be released after routine notification of next of kin.

TOKYO, June 29. — The Korean War subsided into little more than patrol action today and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway let it be known that he is "willing to entertain any request for an armistice from the enemy."

At the same time, U. S. Ambassador William J. Sebald, top State Department representative in the Far East, made an unannounced trip to Pusan, Korea, presumably in connection with possible peace talks.

He conferred with Ridgway on his return to Tokyo.

Ridgway's readiness to enter into cease-fire talks with the Communist commanders was disclosed by Col. George Patrick Welch, public information officer at Supreme United Nations Headquarters.

Mossadegh Says Anti-Sabotage Measure To Die

TEHRAN, Iran, June 29 — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh promised today to seek the unconditional withdrawal of a pending anti-sabotage bill—a key issue in the British-Iranian oil dispute.

He made the promise to U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady in the first meeting of the two since the collapse of negotiations between Iranian nationalization officials and representatives of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Promised withdrawal of the bill—which had been scheduled to go before parliament Sunday—marked the first major concession since Iran began taking over the billion-dollar industry.

GRADY ASKS MEETING Grady asked for the meeting today after hearing Mossadegh offer over radio Tehran to withdraw the bill if Britain agreed to keep its 2,800 company employees on the job.

Mossadegh altered the offer. Grady said, to make it unconditional. The ambassador planned to discuss the promise with British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd and Richard Norman Seddon, acting chief of the AIOC.

Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison told AIOC employees in a letter made public in London today that Iranian oil may stop flowing soon for lack of tankers to carry it. He said he believed tankers of other companies would follow Britain's lead in withdrawing its tankers from Iran.

A British Royal Naval fleet of between 600 and 800 men would probably be sent into Iran from the Suez Canal Zone if they were needed to protect British lives. Informed British sources said the infantrymen would (Continued on Page Two)

President O Ks Orders On Field Negotiations

By James E. Roper United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 29 — Instructions on possible field negotiations of a cease fire in Korea have been approved by President Truman and are being sent to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Far East commander.

Deputy Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett disclosed this at the Pentagon news conference today.

Lovett refused to give any details of the instructions but said any settlement reached by Ridgway and the commanders of North Korean and Chinese Communist forces would be subject to approval here.

He said the "general" instructions were prepared by Defense and State Department officials, after consultation with the National Security Council.

MAY HAVE INSTRUCTIONS

He added that he does not know whether the instructions actually have been dispatched but said that in any case Ridgway would get them soon and may have received them already.

Lovett expressed fear that an end of the Korean War would result in a let-down of public support for the rearmament program.

This, he said, would be appalling. The nation, he said, most assuredly will be courting disaster if it lets the Russian Politburo write the U. S. defense program.

Lovett also said the situation is very dark because of tension between the Communists and the democratic world.

MAY SIGNAL MOVE

An end to the Korean War, he said, might well be the signal for Communists to put on pressure in (Continued on Page Two)
