Reds Agree (Continued From Page One) Sunday. If the postponement to Sunday is acceptable to the supreme UN commander, the Red reply said, the Communists will notify Tokyo of their own plans for sending a delegation to Kaesong.

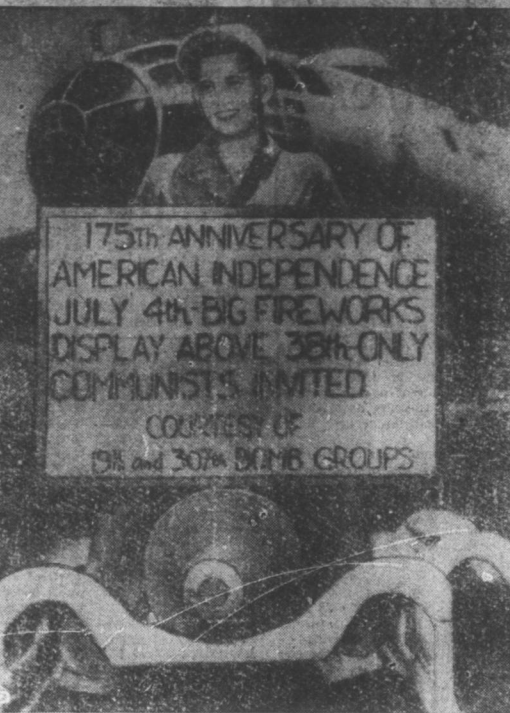

Ridgway was expected to agree reluctantly to the postponement. Whether this will set back the formal cease-fire conference, also to be held at Kaesong, beyond July 10 was not known.

ACCEPTED CONDITIONS The UN commander had asked the Reds yesterday to make the armistice parley before July 10, if possible, to save lives.

The conditions for the preliminary meeting which the Communists accepted call for three Allied liaison officers, none of them above the rank of colonel, to leave Seoul's Kimpo Airfield by helicopter at 9 a. m. the day of the meeting (7 p. m. the previous night EDT) for Kaesong.

Should the weather prevent a helicopter flight, the officers would travel in three unarmed jeeps under the white flag from Seoul to Kaesong, crossing the Imjin River about 9 a. m. The convoy bearing your liaison officers to and from the meeting will be granted immunity from attack by our forces providing you advise us of its route and schedule, and the manner by which my

He said he has been to Washington twice before. The first time was to tell President Lincoln not to free the slaves because "it would start a fight. It did."

NOT ADMITTED "They wouldn't let me in, and you know what happened."

Confidentially, Simon said, George Washington didn't throw the dollar across the Rappahannock River.

"My daddy, who was a smoke watcher before I got 21, told me George Washington was so tight-fisted he wouldn't throw a dollar anywhere, unless it was somebody else's dollar."

Simon left on foot, declining a ride. Automobiles are too risky, he explained, and he's the last of the smoke watchers. Wouldn't do to get wrecked before he has someone to take his place.

Battered Reds

(Continued From Page One) said in a Fourth of July statement that the Communists have been crippled more than they care to admit during the first year of the Korean fighting.

"He (the enemy) anticipated a minor shock," Van Fleet said. "Instead he was jolted with a high-powered punch."

"It's true he has the capacity of recuperation—a convalescent ability to rebuild should we relax our pressure. However, I feel confident that the 8th Army will deny him the respite he so earnestly seeks."

(Continued From Page One) because withdrawal of the tanker fleet leaves no alternative. The refinery was expected to "dry up" later this month when its storage tanks are filled.

But key men and less essential personnel will be left in Iran, even when operations come to a standstill, unless forced out by the Iranian government, a foreign office spokesman said.

(In Tehran, Shepherd said that a decision about evacuation would be taken "very soon." He said the AIOC considers itself responsible for 1,500 Indo-Pakistan workers as well as 3,000 British employees. All could be evacuated at a rate of 300 persons a day if necessary, he said.

CAMERA, FILM SEIZED

Tehran customs today seized the camera and film of Fox Movietone Cameraman Raymond Mejias on his arrival from Paris. At the same time the Foreign Office withdrew an exist order for London Observer Correspondent Rawle Knox and granted him a 30-day visa.

The change in Britain's policy to remove its oil tankers came after a warning from British experts and the United States that their withdrawal would wipe out prospects for a settlement and prevent the return of British workers later.
