Defenders Push Two Miles Into Aggressor Lines

By Charles Cordery
UP Staff Correspondent
FORT BRAGG (AP) Two battalions of U. S. forces drove a salient two miles deeper into "Aggressor" territory today and held strong positions on high ground before the invaders' stronghold at the western end of the Fort Bragg reservation.

Tank and Infantry battalions of the 82nd Airborne Division drove across Gaddy's Mountain after sunrise and established their forward-most positions nine miles west of Bragg, in the center of the Aggressor line.

Aggressor, in accordance with the maneuver scenario, had pulled back from the strategic hill during the night and now confronted the 82nd with apparently superior forces comprising airborne infantry on the right flank and tank units on the left.

FORCES SWITCHED

These forces had been switched before dawn to confuse the enemy and a strong counter-attack was in preparation at an important road junction west of Gaddy's Mountain.

Aggressor air forces were punishing the oncoming elements of the 82nd. The 28th and 43rd Divisions, National Guard outfits from Pennsylvania and New England, moved forward on orders of the Third Army, eventually to replace the 82nd.

However, the two infantry divisions struck out too rapidly and maneuver umpires directed Aggressor to smother their routes of advance with air and artillery strikes to force them back into proper positions.

PRISONERS TAKEN

Early today, Lt. M. A. Pervin, Toledo, O., formed a jeep patrol that pressed a half-mile into U. S. (Continued on Page 7)

OLD POND REVAMPED — A large new dam and a modern spillway have helped change the old Surles Pond into an expanding lake. The pond, owned by C. J. Hanna and Son, is being stocked with bass and bream, and Mayor Ralph Hanna says that it may be opened to the public for fishing within a year. The pond area, bordering the north edge of Dunn, at the end of Clinton Ave., covers 75 acres, with 66 acres underwater. Allowed to languish during the Twenties, the old mill pond was bought three years ago by the Hanna firm, which then began to develop it. (Daily Record photo by Bill Biggs).

Britain Handed Ultimatum In Deadlocked Oil Dispute

Beef Rollbacks May Be Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) The government still may order some rollbacks in ceiling prices of fresh beef, but might be forced to boost prices of processed meat and pork.

Price stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle said yesterday that if the new controls law permits any beef rollbacks, he will order them. The government has estimated that beef prices dipped slightly and all retail food prices dropped one per cent during the last two weeks of July.

What will happen to food prices under the new law remains to be seen. Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson said yesterday that there may be a 10 per cent rise in bread prices, one cent a quart in milk, and three cents on a dozen eggs.

WILL FEG FOK
The office of Price Stabilization said it would issue pork price regulations by the end of August which will result in generally higher retail ceiling prices.

DiSalle said he still has not determined if the new controls law could mean some rollbacks as well as increases in beef ceiling prices. The law prohibits further rollbacks in agricultural prices below 90 percent of May 1949 levels. This did not affect the original average 10 per cent rollback in live cattle prices. OPS has canceled two further rollbacks of 4 1/2 per cent each which were meant to give consumers an eight to 10 cents-a-pound cut in beef prices by fall.

CAUSE OF DROP
According to Bureau of Labor Statistics, the drop in retail food prices last month was caused mostly by a 6.8 per cent decline in prices of fresh fruits and vegetables.

Meantime, General Motors Corp. joined Chrysler Corp. and the Ford Motor Co. in notifying DiSalle that (Continued on Page Six)

TEHRAN (AP) — Iran handed Britain a three-point ultimatum in their oil dispute today as negotiators failed to break a deadlock.

Iran threatened to break off the oil talks unless her demands are accepted.

After meeting again today with the Iranian delegation, chief British negotiator Richard Stokes said that "nothing has been accepted and nothing rejected."

DEMANDS ACCEPTANCE
Vice Premier Hussein Fatemi said Britain must accept these three points:

1. Britain must buy oil from the Iranian national oil company.
2. Iran will decide the amount of compensation to be paid the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., whose nationalization by Iran led to the present dispute.
3. British employees of Anglo-Iranian must remain on duty at the huge refinery in Abadan.

Fatemi said Britain's eight-point memorandum for solving the oil dispute, presented by Richard Stokes Monday, covered only the purchase of oil.

Iranian officials emphasized the ultimatum did not mean that Iran had rejected Britain's proposals. The two delegations still were thrashing out disputed points at further meetings today.

REGISTERS COMPLAINT

Suits Are Filed

A civil suit asking $25,000 in damages has been filed in Harnett Superior Court as a result of the accidental electrocution of a 12-year-old boy last August.

Albert C. Hillen, son of a serviceman, was killed Aug. 19, 1950 when he came in contact with a homemade electric hog fence on the farm of J. L. Matthews, near Lillington.

Duncan C. Wilson, administrator, is suing to collect $25,000. The suit was brought by the Hillens as paupers and attorneys named by the court to prosecute the suit Hector McCashey, Jr., and James McCashey. The suit was filed Aug. 9.

Another damage suit filed this week rises from an automobile accident, last December which involved Miss Leola Register of (Continued on Page Seven)

Two-Man Committee Would Break 15-Day Truce Line Deadlock

By Earnest Hoberect
United Press Staff Correspondent
PEACE CAMP, Korea, Thursday (AP) A reply to a United Nations proposal that a two-man committee be named to break a 15-day deadlock over fixing of an armistice line in Korea was expected today.

Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist negotiator, showed unusual interest in the idea, a U. N. briefing officer said. He asked for and was given a written copy for study overnight.

Nam Il asked that today's meeting be held two hours later than usual, apparently so he would have time to get instructions from Pyongyang and Peking. If Nam makes a counter-proposal that follows the same principle the Allies are ready to consider it.

Matthew B. Ridgway's radio had broadcast a warning to Korea that if the Reds choose war instead of peace "their soldiers will be met by the fury of the weapons of the U. N. forces."

The broadcast said that the U. N. if necessary will continue the mission of "destroying or driving out of Korea those forces which now seek to deny the Korean people their right of self-determination."

It emphasized that to us will remain in Korea until the people are "free of the threat of foreign military domination and political pressure."

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS
Other developments included: The Communists admitted for the first time that Allied air and naval bombardments were having a "definite amount of effect on our military action."

Vice Adm. C. Turned Joy summarized a Communist protest that U. N. planes had violated Kaesong neutrality agreements by wounding two members of the Communist delegation and knocking out three of its trucks in an air attack Monday.

Joy proposed appointment of a committee to insure observance of the neutrality of Kaesong and make on-the-spot investigations of reported violations.

The U. N. proposal for a subcommittee to tackle the buffer zone question came at a time when the armistice conference seemed hopelessly deadlocked and in danger of collapse.

RECOMMENDS EFFORT
"We have hung in a deadlock on item 2 of our agenda for many days," Joy said. "We show no prospect of progress along present lines of procedure. I therefore recommend a new effort to break this deadlock."

"We suggest that each delegation appoint one delegate to membership in a joint subcommittee of the (Continued on Page Seven)

Lillington Woman Reports On Life With Army Couples

Relations between Harnett citizens and soldiers stationed in the county during Exercise Southern Pine have generally been good, according to most of the available evidence.

Newspapers and higher Army officials have exchanged a number of notes demonstrating the felicity which exists between servicemen and civilians. But few testimonials have come from the people who live close to the soldiers in this county.

A number of Harnett residents made room in their homes for Army families who will be here during the war games. Perhaps a number of people less intimately connected with the out-of-State visitors have wondered how Army wives and husbands manage to fit in with the customs and habits of this County.

IMPRESSED BY COUPLES
One citizen, Mrs. Gertrude R. Biggs of 8th St., Lillington—who took in Army couples was so impressed by them that she decided to offer her testimony as to the pleasant relationship which exists between soldier and civilian.

In a letter to The Harnett County News, reprinted below with permission of that paper, Mrs. Biggs details the changes which her boarders have wrought in her way of life:

"At first, when we considered having a soldier and his wife in our home, I was afraid they would be so foreign to our way of life that we would have no "happy meeting ground." Now, I am most happy that we decided to help effort to get soldiers and their wives located during their stay in our vicinity. Here's why: We have two couples, Pvt. and Mrs. John Moats from Flora, Ill., and Cpl. and Mrs. Walter Clark from Centerville, Ala.

"They have given us an insight as to how they and their people live in their home towns. In comparison to ours, it is much the same. Although we have been amused at times because it has been so different from ours and per- (Continued on Page Six)

Juice For The Eyes Lightens Sentence

'Twas the medicine the oculist ordered, not the wine which Cecil Bolton, Durham man, drank that put the sparkle in his eye, the defendant contended in Harnett Recorder's Court yesterday where he was booked on driving under the influence of intoxicants.

And when A. A. McDonald of Durham, defense attorney, produced the prescription for what he termed "the juice for the eyes," Judge Floyd Taylor believed him. Bolton, entering a plea of guilty to careless and reckless driving, drew a fine of $50 and a cost on the lesser offense.

School Opening Dates Are Set

White schools in the Dunn district will begin the 1951-52 session Sept. 5 and the Harnett County Training School will open Sept. 10. Maple Grove Indian School will also open Sept. 5.

The dates were announced this morning by Principal A. B. Johnson. He said they were set at a meeting of the district school board.

Harnett's board of education gave schools of the county two dates, Aug. 28 and Sept. 5. The latter date was selected here.

Schools in the district include Dunn High School, Dunn Grammar School, Mary Stuart school, Harnett County Training School and Maple Grove School.

All Negro schools of the county will open on September 10. Their opening was delayed since one or two of their buildings are being used by the Army during maneuvers.

Principal Johnson said this morning that the local faculties have been completed and that the (Continued on Page Seven)
