Hope Seen For Keeping Oil Flowing To West From Iran

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A diplomatic source said today that Iran's latest note on her oil controversy with Great Britain contained passage which raise hope that a way may be found to keep Iranian oil flowing to the West.

The note, which had been described in Tehran as an angry ultimatum to Britain, was delivered last night to presidential adviser W. Averill Harriman who last month tried to mediate the dispute.

NO DECISION

There were rumors that Harriman would send the note back to British officials as requested. But State Department officials said no decision has yet been made.

Some of the passages were distinctly conciliatory, one source said. The Anglo-Iranian issue has figured prominently in the Big Three foreign ministers meeting here, with Britain urging a firm stand and the United States pressing for a go-easy policy to prevent a possible Communist coup and loss of vital oil. Iranian Deputy Premier Hosseini Fatemi said in Tehran that Iran wants to reopen the idle Abadan refinery as soon as possible because the nation faces "an economic catastrophe."

REFINERY A- STANDSTILL

The refinery, the world's biggest, has been at a standstill for weeks as result of the dispute with Britain over nationalization of the industry.

The shah has stepped actively into the oil dispute after a discreet public silence of several months. In two separate approaches yesterday, he appealed indirectly for a settlement.

First, he advised Premier Mohammed Mossadegh against "hasty action" in dispatching the ultimatum to Britain, informed sources said. Later the shah appealed to both houses of parliament to work with each other and him during this "most difficult and critical period."

Masonic Lecturer Will Instruct Here

Percy Stott of Wendell, for many years assistant grand lecturer of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina, will be in Dunn the week of Sept. 17 to lecture or teach the members of the Palmyra Lodge the fine points of Masonic ritual or degree work.

For many years Stott was one of the four men in North Carolina who were assistant grand lecturers and were the final authority on all degree work.

All members who are interested in learning to do better degree work are urged to take advantage of the opportunity to learn from a man said to be one of the best qualified instructors of his type in the State.

Bulk Of Reynolds Estate Willed To People Of State

WINSTON-SALEM — (AP) — William Neal Reynolds, North Carolina tobacco magnate and philanthropist, left the bulk of his huge estate to benefit the people of the state, his will showed today.

The exact value of the estate will be determined by an inventory to be started this week. It is expected to be in the neighborhood of $18,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Reynolds, one of the three founders of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and a former president of the firm, died here Monday.

Wake Forest College will receive a gift of $1,000,000 from the estate after the college completes its move to Winston-Salem.

HOMEPLACE INTO PARK

The 1,100-acre homeplace, Tanglewood, is to be set up as a park and amusement center with a $100,000 permanent improvement fund and 10,000 shares of R. J. Reynolds stock to maintain it.

Tanglewood, to be renamed the William and Kate B. Reynolds Memorial Park, is located on the Yadkin River about 10 miles west of Winston-Salem.

One of the nation's leading harness racing enthusiasts, Reynolds provided that a track on the property is to be preserved for professional and amateur racing.

Twenty per cent of the remaining income is to be added to the principal of the Smith Reynolds Foundation until the foundation come from the rest of the estate will go for charitable purposes.

500 Durham Carpenters On Strike

DURHAM — (AP) — A carpenters strike threatened today to halt work on major construction projects in eight Piedmont counties.

Approximately 500 members of the AFL carpenters union walked off their jobs yesterday in a strike for a wage increase of 35 cents per hour. The contract with Local 522 expired Aug. 31 and union officials charged that management has refused to negotiate for a new one.

J. B. Mills, business manager for the local, said work on some 15 major structures will be completely stopped within a few days when other workers catch up with the carpenters. He flatly rejected a management offer of a five cent per hour increase calling the offer an "insult."

The strike will hit hardest at new hospital projects. Involved are the multi-million dollar University of North Carolina medical center and the 500-bed Veterans Administration and Duke Hospital projects in Durham.

"Hardrock" Saving Crosscountry Running

BURLINGTON — (AP) — Hardrock Simpson, the 47-year-old Burlington postman who walks for a living and runs for fun, said today he intends to break the coast-to-coast running record when he re-ignites at the age of 62.

Hardrock dashed off the 36 miles between Burlington and Durham in six hours and 45 minutes yesterday. It was 45 minutes slower than his record set in 1923, but Simpson blamed it on the heat and the fact that "I must be getting older."

TOO HOT

"I picked too hot a day to try it," he said. "The asphalt stuck to my tennis shoes."

Three months is the best time Simpson has been able to make on his coast-to-coast trips by foot. But he said he is confident he can break the 77-day record when he retires after 15 more years of mail carrying.

Ailing King

Then, good, dry weather and an absence of boll weevils have contributed toward the maximum production from each acre, O'Quinn asserts. The result shapes up as more cotton of a better quality than has been seen in Harnett in a number of years.

Two disastrous seasons almost put the Harnett cotton farmer out of business. O'Quinn pointed out that the 1949 crop of from 10,000 to 12,000 bales gave way in 1950 to an even worse yield—hardly 8,000 bales.

But cotton revived in 1951; with nearly 28,000 acres planted, O'Quinn looks toward a yield of around 28,000 bales and a gross return of some $4,000,000 for Harnett farmers.

The assistant agent himself spotted a handful of cotton field during this week and found that the yields of the various fields would run from 1.25 to 1.75 bales per acre, with an easy average of a bale an acre.

200 PER CENT BETTER

"That's better than 200 per cent over last year," he commented, "when the average was less than a third of a bale an acre."

"That was a terrible year. The bad harvest was due largely to the boll weevil and wet weather."

He explained that the weather was so wet in late July and early August, 1951 that those who tried to follow an insect control program were badly handicapped.

"Don't overlook the job the farmers have done this year on the weevil control program," he admonished. The majority of cotton-producers either sprayed or dusted for boll weevils in 1951—with highly satisfactory results—he said.

The Department of Agriculture recently estimated that North Carolina's cotton growers will produce 610,000 bales of lint during this season.

But O'Quinn figures the department analysts may be undershooting the mark.

REDS AVOID COMBAT

Thirty F-82 Sabrejets sweeping MIG alley territory intercepted 30 MIGs trying to streak south from their Manchurian sanctuary. The Reds turned and fled back across the Yalu to avoid combat.

North and northeast of Kumbwa, U. N. infantrymen smashed ahead from 2,500 to 2,800 yards. They captured a 1,500 foot peak in a 10-hour battle in thick mud, took a 1,700 foot hill nearby after an 8-hour struggle and stormed two others against only light resistance.

On the western front, west of Korangpo, attacking troops drove five miles forward "to take the kink out of the line" against little or no opposition. Large numbers of Communist troops were spotted and artillery fire was poured in on them.
