

FURIOUS FIGHTING EXPLODES

Biggest Red Buildup Hit By UN Troops

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea—(UP)—Furious fighting exploded all along the 135-mile Korean front today as United Nations forces hacked at the biggest Communist buildup since the abortive Red Spring offensive.

The 8th Army hit the Communists with flame throwers and one of the heaviest artillery bombardment of the war in a desperate attempt to break resistance at the western end of the front.

Smaller-scale U. N. attacks were launched all the way east to the Sea of Japan coast, where the 45,000-ton U. S. battleship New Jersey was pounding enemy defenses.

BITTER RESISTANCE

The Reds everywhere put up bitter resistance. Hand-to-hand fighting raged west of Chonwon on the west-central front, below Kamsong on the east-central front, and northwest of "punchbowl valley" on the eastern front.

The Allies were up against Communist positions strengthened during the truce talks, and the Reds were trying hard to complete their buildup for an expected fall offensive.

HEAVY RED TRAFFIC

U. N. pilots reported the heaviest Communist traffic behind the front since the enemy offensives last May. The airmen spotted 4,355 trucks Tuesday and destroyed or damaged 606 of them.

One hundred and seventy massed British Commonwealth and American guns, from 25-pounders to 155-millimeter "Long Toms," gave Red defenses at the western end of the front their heaviest punishment of the war during the night.

The program will begin with the U. N. infantrymen followed up the bombardment with an attack above Yonchon.

Nobody Present At Court But Sheriff, Clerk

County Superior Court was in session yesterday at Lillington. But there was no one there but Sheriff W. E. Salmon and Clerk of Court Robert Morgan.

The sheriff said, "Oyez, Oyez, come into court," then the clerk recessed court, which was supposed to be a civil term, until next Monday, October 8, when Judge Howard Godwin will preside.

The formal proceeding of opening court was legally necessary because a civil term had originally been set for yesterday, but was later cancelled.

Criminal court will open November 12 for one week. On November 19, there will be another week of Civil term. Judges for these two terms have not yet been announced.

CIVIL DOCKET

The docket for the Civil term, which will open October 8 before Judge Godwin, includes three contested divorce suits for the first day. They are Gladys Porter Wood against Thomas Wood; Betty J. Phillips against R. H. Phillips; and Arletha B. Green White against Shuttan E. White.

Motions also will be heard in five cases and the trial docket for Monday lists four actions. They include E. C. Nordon against J. P. Gardner and others; Rudolph Hodges against Malone and Company, Inc.; and Milton L. Baker against W. R. Beasley and a cross suit filed by W. R. Beasley against Floyd Johnson and others.

County Board Must Decide School Case

The Harnett County Board of Education will have to decide the "hot potato" of which school 10-year-old Virginia Dare Capps must attend.

C. D. Douglas, comptroller of the State Board of Education, told the Daily Record this morning that the matter probably will be referred back to the county board.

He said, however, that he had not yet received the letter from County Superintendent Glenn T. Proffitt requesting a ruling as to authority.

SIT-DOWN STRIKE

The Capps girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Capps, has been staging a "sit-down strike" at the Dunn school in protest to being ordered to attend Mary Stewart School.

According to the Dunn School Board, the child resides in the Mary Stewart district and must attend that school. The parents indicate they're ready for an all-out court fight before they'll force her to go to Mary Stewart.

STATE WON'T INTERFERE Comptroller Douglas told The Daily Record this morning that the settlement of children in schools is a matter solely within the authority and jurisdiction of the county board. He said that assignments are made on the basis of transportation and the cost involved.

Lions At Erwin Honor Wives And Teachers

Faulty translation of a proverb was blamed by Professor Joseph R. Robinson, of Wake Forest for some of the faults of teaching today. The proverb, "If thou train up a child in the way he should go, when he is old he will not depart from it" was badly translated, he asserted.

Professor Robinson, teacher of homiletics at the Theological Seminary at Wake Forest was guest speaker at the Ladies-Teachers night program of the Erwin Lions Club Tuesday evening. Homiletics, he defined as the art of preaching.

The speaker, a graduate of the Union Theological Seminary in Virginia was a Baptist pastor for 12 years. He attended the Southern Baptist Seminary at Louisville for post-graduate work.

Explaining his reason for ceasing as pastor and entering on his teaching career, he said, "I have been trying to serve my God for 30 years, and it came to me recently that I could multiply my efforts by teaching others to preach."

He told the group he was glad to represent this baby institution which now has 85 students. They come from all states, he said, and although most are young, one man is 51. He had been preaching but had not had the advantages of theological education. He predicted that in time, when the seminary took over the campus, there would be as many students as there are now at the college.

Many of the problems encountered at the seminary, he told the teachers, were similar to those they would encounter in their classrooms. Language problems often trouble foreign students, but the English language is sometimes difficult for those who are brought up in it.

To illustrate, he told of the Brazilian student who was asked to read in English. In his native tongue, the word preserve has the same connotation as pickle, and the student translated literally. When he came to the portion of the prayer, "Lord preserve us" the Brazilian translated the word as pickle.

GIVES EXCERPTS However, he pointed out, there are students whose mistakes in English are nearly as laughable. As examples he noted some random excerpts from papers turned in which defined a polygon as a man with too many wives and a brunette as a young bear. A circle, one student defined as a line which (Continued On Page Three)
