Jones Heads NC Baptists

ASHEVILLE. — (UP) — Delegates to the State Baptist Convention held final business sessions today after re-electing as president Grover H. Jones, a High Point attorney. The Rev. Charles Leske of Thomasville, the Rev. Louis S. Gaines of Fayetteville and Charlotte investment broker R. S. Dickson were elected vice presidents. Rep. C. B. Deane D-NC of Rockingham was re-elected recording secretary and M. A. Huggins of Raleigh was named to a new term as secretary-treasurer. One resolution adopted expressed strong feelings against sending an American ambassador to the Vatican, and declared that if nomination of Gen. Mark Clark is approved, every Roman Catholic bishop in the country should be required to register as an agent of a foreign power.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS
The social service committee report, adopted without change, also covered race relations, narcotics traffic, state prisons and other social problems.

It urged "Christian principles as a guide to race relations," and said all citizens deserve equal treatment from local, state and federal government.

Careful classification of prisoners, and sufficient educational, vocational and religious training were urged for inmates of state prisons. The report commended Walter F. Anders, prisons director, for his penal philosophy.

These Little Things

have had many fine times together. When Mr. and Mrs. Whitenton were married last week, Dewey, of course, wanted Railroad to be present for the ceremony. But he was keeping the wedding quiet ahead of time and very few people knew about it.

Dewey knows that his buddy Railroad just can't keep a secret, so the problem was how to get him to the wedding without letting him know about it in advance. He solved the problem by asking Jim Mann to bring by Raynor's house and take him to his wedding—the presence of Jim riding up to Raleigh for supper. Dewey had arranged with Julie to meet them in the lobby of the Hotel Sir Walter and take them out to the First Baptist Church.

Everything would have been fine except Julie got sick and couldn't go. So he phoned Railroad and told him to go ahead and that Dewey would meet him there.

So Mr. and Mrs. Raynor dressed up and took off to Raleigh. They got there about 5 o'clock, a half hour ahead of time and started waiting. In the meantime, during the rush of getting ready for the ceremony, Dewey forgot all about Railroad, who sat and sat and waited and waited—getting hungrier and hungrier all the time.

The wedding came off in grand style, the guests saw the bridal couple off at their honeymoon and then went back downtown to eat. Immediately upon walking into the S. and W. Cafeteria, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McLamb and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howard spotted Mr. and Mrs. Raynor sitting there patiently waiting for Dewey. "Come on over and join us," Mr. McLamb invited the Raynors. "We'd sure like to," replied Railroad, "but we're waiting for Dewey. He'll be here in a minute to eat with us."

It was then that Mr. and Mrs. McLamb and Mr. and Mrs. Howard pointed out that if he waited for Dewey he'd probably have a pretty long wait, because right at that moment Dewey and his bride were speeding along toward the mountains on their honeymoon. Mr. Mac says he wouldn't take ten dollars for having seen the expression on Railroad's face. "Just wait'll I see that Dewey" spluttered Railroad.

What actually happened was that Dewey did forget about his good friend Railroad until just a few minutes before the ceremony, but even at that late hour he rushed his three children, Charlie, Evelyn and Elizabeth, and Mack Jernigan down to Sir Walter to take the Raynors out to the wedding.

But Railroad had gotten mixed up and had waited at the S. and W. instead of in the Sir Walter. So he missed seeing his best friend get married.

It might be that Dewey will have a hard time convincing Railroad. He's been in a bad mood ever since.

been trying to get Robert Jordan to attend the Armistice Night supper of the Dunn Legion post tonight. "I'd really like to go," explained Dr. Jordan to J. O., "but if I went then that would break my record. I've been a member of the Legion for 33 years and never have been to a meeting."

That's a fact. Dr. Jordan joined the Legion right after World War I, is always one of the first members to pay his dues each year, but he just never has gotten around to attending a meeting. That reminds us of Busbee Pop, who has been a member of the Dunn Masonic Lodge for many years and pays his dues regularly, but hasn't attended a meeting of the lodge in about 20 years. State Senator Bob Young is reported much better after suffering several heart attacks, but will have to remain in bed for a while longer. Bill Twyford's grandfather served as Governor of British Guiana, and a distant cousin was Lord Mayor of London during World War II.

He's a real blue-blood. Cad Upchurch and Furman Turnage spend their evenings looking at the fights on television. Three big new features begin Monday in The Daily Record — Walter Winchell, Mary Haworth's Mail, and Budolph, The Red-Nose Reindeer, a special Christmas comic. "Jim McMillan is 'going to town' on plans for Thad Eure's speech before the Dunn Information Clinic. There'll be plenty of people from Dunn at the Carolina-Notre Dame game on Saturday. John Follett, the very genial circulation manager of The Daily Record, is a cousin of Governor Tom Dewey of New York, but voted against him for President. Raymond Crummett and U. S. Senator Willie Smith are close personal friends. They were classmates at Duke University. Myres Tilghman says there's still plenty of cotton in the fields. Stores are well-stocked for Christmas and many people are buying early.

He said he was the first to reach the explosion and heard the blast and heard Reid cry for help. Johnson painted a vivid description of the destruction which greeted him in the moonlight.

He said that Reid and the children were outside in their night clothes. He described the destruction and said he smelled dynamite.

BROTHER'S CAR SEEN
The same witness said he saw Tom Newton's car at the mouth of the short road that turned into the Reid residence. He said Tom was in the car at that time.

Mrs. Miriam Mitchell of Norfolk, Va., daughter of the landlady, explained that she was home on a summer visit at the time of the crime and that she knew Allen Newton. She said that due to the hot weather on the night of the crime she sat on her mother's porch from 8 until 11:30 o'clock. She said she saw a small tractor turn toward the Reid house about 9:30 o'clock. Later, about 11, she testified, she saw Allen Newton's tractor go in the direction of the Reid house.

On cross-examination by Defense Attorneys W. A. Johnson and D. C. Wilson, she declined to state positively that Allen Newton was on the tractor. She said she was positive it was his tractor because it had no muffler, and she was familiar with it.

NEIGHBOR SAW DYNAMITE
Carlton Mills, a neighbor, said he visited at Newton's house on the morning of the crime and saw this dynamite on top of 12 or 13 sticks of dynamite. It was corroborated by W. D. Tutor.

Mills said he returned about 11 o'clock and found Newton drinking and sitting on the porch with a man named Percy Arnold. He said he asked Newton what he planned to do with the dynamite and Newton replied: "I'm going to get the one who got my jar of liquor yesterday." He

PLENTY STILL IN FIELD
Jackson estimates that there are between 25 and 30 bales left un-picked. With fairly good weather, this should be completed within two or three weeks. Then the crew will resume its journey to Florida.

"Anyone who wants to winter in Florida and make a good piece of change is welcome to come along," Rogers said, "I could use about twice as many as I now have on my crew."

A used-car owner legally can get more than the ceiling price on a trade-in allowance on a new car or another second-hand car, but cannot get more than the ceiling fixed on the car for which he is trading. Disalle said used car prices have been edging up to the "freeze" ceilings for the past three months.

The new regulation sets precise limits on how much a dealer or individual can charge for every body style, line or series of each make of used passenger car made from 1940 through 1951. For cars older than 1940 vintage, the 1940 ceilings prevail.

Barden has set up a laboratory at the rear of the Armory, and here the rats captured are processed. Blood samples are taken to be sent to Raleigh to determine whether or not the rodents are diseased.

The captured animals are combed and fleas or other parasites placed in containers for classification at the Raleigh station. The tests are made to determine whether or not the rats captured are carriers of dangerous diseases, particularly typhus.

There are several types of fleas which may be found on rats," Barden said, but there is only one variety of rat flea, that carries typhus." Thus, far, he stated, he has found none of this particular species.

he had no comment. "Did you discuss domestic politics with General Eisenhower?" the President was asked today.

The President answered flatly that they did not. He pointed out that Eisenhower had said the same thing and now he, the President, was saying it.

SAYS HE'S TRUTHFUL
Mr. Truman continued that he and Eisenhower both had reputations for telling the truth and he thought that should end it.

Then asked whether he had any intention of supporting Eisenhower, obvious for the Democratic nomination, the President, said no comment.

DEFENDS EMPLOYEES
Mr. Truman strongly defended the integrity of the average federal employe.

The President spoke in particular of his telephone conversation yesterday with Rep. Cecil R. King, chairman of a House subcommittee which has been pressuring the Justice Department to release its files in tax fraud cases.

King in Washington got the impression that Mr. Truman promised to issue a directive soon, ordering the department to turn over the pertinent files to the committee.

The President said he had talked with King and would be in communication with him again, but that he had not promised the California Democrat anything.

AGAINST BIG-4 MEET
President Truman today repeated his opposition to a Big Four meeting of state's heads, saying the United Nations is the proper forum for conduct of international relations.

BITTER TOWARD RUSSIA
Mr. Truman was almost bitter in his reaction to Soviet Prime Minister Andrei Vishinsky's statement that he "laughed all night" at the President's recent disarmament proposal.

The President said that it was his first hearty laugh in a long, long time.

Mills said he knew for a fact that Reid didn't get his liquor, that it had been poured out by his brother, Tom, in an effort to get him sober.

Doc Reid told of the explosion and related that Allen Newton had come to his house earlier and warned him, "I'm going to blow you up."

He said Newton accused his son, Edward Reid, and Tommy Johnson of stealing his whiskey.

He said Newton had also threatened him previously and had also threatened to kill the two boys with his .38 pistol.

Deputy Ken Matthews told of his investigation.
