MISS HORTON'S 6th GRADE
We have started making our mothers' Christmas presents. They are really nice. Our teacher showed us how to make them out of string, care and raffia.

Miss Lela Strickland brought us some pretty geranium plants and they really make our room look bright. Mrs. Cove sent them to us to keep for her this winter. Witches and goblins were in our room. We had cookies, candy and gum. Miss Culp was invited to our party. We certainly had fun after we had partaken of the witches brew.

Kam Black and Billy Thornton Miss Horton's 6th grade.

New officers elected at the regular class meeting on Friday, October 19, were: President, Angela Tart; vice president, Shirley Baird; secretary, Bill Joyner; treasurer, Violet Bryant; reporter, Patsy Temple; program chairman, Susan Hudson; Sgt. at arms, Skeet Jernigan.

"Life in the Colonies," has been the subject of our study in Social Studies. Bobby Parker operated the projector and showed us several film strips in color, which pictured very clearly to us the facts which we had studied.

We learned that the colonists lived in the age of wood. So we think that a social study of "Trees" will be interesting for our next unit of work. We are now gathering and pressing leaves of all kinds, with which we will begin our study.

Reporter, Patsy Temple. Seventh grade.

In history, we are studying colonial life. We have seen four film strips connected with early life in the colonies. We are planning to erect a fireplace similar to the ones that were used in the 1700's. The fireplace was the center of enjoyment in a colonial home.

We have done some creative art also. We do not try to make designs or pictures, but we make different curved lines and circles, leaving no blank spaces on the paper. Afterwards, we look for pictures and different articles. When finished, these paintings are very pretty. The colors are varied and blend together making beautiful designs.

Rita McLean, class reporter 7th Grade.

Mrs. Thompson's 10th grade has elected officers and chosen grade parents for this year. They are chairman, Daley Goff; student council representatives, Daphne Parker and Daley Goff; reporter, Jane Westbrook; chapel chairman, Frances Altman. The grade parents are Mr. Roland Goff and Mrs. Earl Westbrook.

Miss Grantham's eighth grade had its weekly meeting last Friday. We had a program entitled "Bless This House." The actors played their parts very well. They were Ronnie Kimmel playing the part of the husband and Ann Conner playing the part of the wife.

We have started a new unit in history, and we are planning to make things to illustrate what we are studying.

Mrs. Grantham's Eighth grade recently elected its class officers. They are as follows: President, Russell Carter; vice president, Ann Conner; secretary, Marilyn Barefoot; treasurer, Ronnie Kimmel.

The president appointed some committees to help the class. They are as follows: Program committee, room committee, social committee, bathroom committee and luncheon committee.

Every Friday we have a meeting. We have been painting and modeling clay.

Reporters, Virginia Vann and Janice Fowler, Eighth Grade.

BRUCE BATES

Bruce is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson Bates. He lives with his mother on 405 East Cumberland Street. Mrs. Bates works at Hood's Drug Store, and every day when she gets home from work she says that all Bruce can do is talk about Kindergarten.

As you see, Bruce is interested in Art. He has painted a wheel, which he says, is one of the wheels on his wagon at home. If you ask Mrs. Marks what she thinks of Bruce and his art work, she will tell you that he has possibilities for growing up into a famous commercial artist some day, if he can do as well as this when he is five years old.

Bruce is 50 inches tall, weighs 46 pounds, has brown eyes and hair, and a very nice smile, accompanied by a sweet disposition. His birthday is on Feb. 8.

Pool Table Issue

and the welfare of his children, other children and of the future generations.

"I invite you," said Doffermeyer, "to observe the men and boys who hang around pool rooms with their hair slicked down, a comb in their back pocket and see what they amount to."

Edwin Stewart arose and declared that he disliked to take opposite sides with such a distinguished citizen as Mr. Doffermeyer, but that he favored pool rooms. He pointed out that pool was a favorite pastime in the Army.

"And it didn't seem to corrupt the boys' morals," he added. "They won the war."

One member declared that if the time has come that the Legion can't allow its members to enjoy a friendly game of pool that the Legion ought to be abolished.

J. O. West said he thought the decision ought to be left to the faithful few who attended meetings regularly and who run the Legion's business. He said not more than 15 or 20 usually attend.

Doffermeyer charged that it was the desire of West and others to let "the faithful few" decide instead of letting the will of the majority prevail and insisted on a vote at that meeting, since the biggest crowd to attend in five years was present.

Ben Schneider, another veteran of the post, made it plain that he was opposed to spending a dime on the present building, declaring that it is in the wrong location.

year, he has been seeing numerous minority delegations representing groups that have relatively small, but tightly-knit members scattered across the nation, brought together by reasons of religion, racial or national origin.

The President did not help the political seers yesterday when he said the Fair Deal would be the Democratic 1952 platform regardless of who runs for President.

The Legion finally voted to settle the issue on January 3.

There is a city ordinance against the operation of pool rooms in the Town of Dunn, but members of the post expressed belief that the law would not apply to a private club operated for private use of members only.

Mayor Ralph E. Hanna this morning expressed belief that the present law does apply to private organizations, but said he'd have to get a ruling from City Attorney I. R. Williams to be sure.

After the discussion, the Legionnaires enjoyed a movie on the Indianapolis Speedway races, shown by Carl Fitchett, Jr., local Mobile distributor.

Commander White is urging a full attendance at the January 3 meeting so that all members can vote.

"Whenever such an issue arises," said Commander White, "I believe in everybody letting his will be known."

On December 6, State Commander Louis Parker will make his official visit to the post.

E. E. Seay, Junius E. Williams, and Herman P. Green, members of the Executive Committee, along with Klye Harrington, Director, and James L. Warren, Clinton Office Manager, of the Dunn Production Credit Association, have returned from Goldsboro where they attended an all day credit clinic held under the joint sponsorship of North Carolina State College and the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia.

The clinic was held for the purpose of considering needed adjustments on North Carolina farms and out and Charles Pleimling of Missouri admitted stealing articles ranging from cars to nylon hose. Pleimling is 30 years old and the others are 19.

ways of financing them.

Dr. Brooks James, Head of Department of Agricultural Economics, State College, acted as conference chairman at the morning session.

The subjects for this session included "The PCA and Progress in Agriculture," "Experience of P C A's in Financing Farm Mechanization," "Approved Practices Reduce Risk on Crop and Pasture Loans," and "Experience of PCA's in Dairy Financing."

Taking part in the morning discussions were Robert A. Darr, President, Production Credit Corporation; John Goodman, Assistant Director, Extension Service; Dr. C. B. Hatchford, in Charge, Farm Management and Marketing, State College; Herman P. Green, Secretary-Treasurer, Dunn Production Credit Association; E. R. Collins, Extension Professor in Charge of Agronomy, and H. A. Simmons, Secretary - Treasurer, Goldsboro Production Credit Association.

Topic discussed during the afternoon session were "Livestock Problems for North Carolina," "Experience of PCA's in Financing Beef Cattle," and "Cost of Money."

J. C. Moore, Acting Vice President of the Production Credit Corporation, served as conference chairman for the afternoon session, and taking part were Dr. D. W. Colvard, Professor and Head of Department of Animal Industry, State College; W. Y. Creech, Secretary-Treasurer, Kinston Production Credit Association; and Henry S. Johnson, Director of Information, Farm Credit Administration.

Herman P. Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the Dunn Production Credit Association, said: "The clinic was most helpful in that it made plain the great change going on in the South and the need for specific adjustments on many North Carolina farms. It was demonstrated that the wise use of credit in applying the benefits of agricultural research could increase the income of many farmers several times what it is now. The successful experience of production credit associations in financing farm adjustments establishes a pattern or formula whereby such loans can be made on a sound constructive basis."

The Dunn Production Credit Association is located at Dunn and serves the counties of Sampson and Harnett. In 1951, 948 farm-members were assisted with their financing for a total of $306,540.00.
