and work toward that goal. You must join with others and in North Carolina it took four million people working together.

He said that he wanted a telephone for years and that two weeks after he announced his platform and was nominated, his phone was in. "If any of you folks still need a telephone," he said, "just get nominated for Governor."

He said that he lived on a "red" road and that when the weather became cold, the church went into winter quarters. It just was not possible to get to the church," he said. "I visualized that this was so with many churches," he said.

The state, he asserted, has done a lot in helping these rural churches and the members will have to come up with some other excuse than bad roads for not getting to church.

While we believe in the separation of church and state, the Governor said, we are all citizens of the state and therefore should keep pulling for the things the state can do that will help the church.

Our forefathers usually built a meeting house as one of the first buildings in a new settlement," he continued, "and this became the place of worship. Everyone attended church on Sunday."

There has been tremendous progress in our school program in the 50 years, the Governor asserted, much of it based on better transportation. All of this time people were saying we could not finance the programs, but we did, and now we have consolidated schools with bus transportation.

Bus transportation could be a factor in church improvement, the Governor pointed out. In many rural communities the churches have a "homecoming" and clean up the cemetery once a year and paint the church every ten years and think they are doing their duty.

"I am not sure," he asserted, "that consolidation within the denominations, might not be a forward step for our rural churches." He pointed out that such a consolidated church could have a pastor who could give his full time to the needs of the church and not have to "scatter his hat."

Children, he said, can be encouraged to attend rural schools by supplying bus transportation and the added revenue will often pay more than the cost.

NEEDS STRENGTHENING
"The time is here," he declared, "when we need to strengthen the church. Nothing aside from this home can bring the proper moral teaching to the young men and women. In my observation in government in North Carolina, we have far better men and women because of the rural church influence."

The influence of the rural church on government is tremendous, he declared, and the character of the boys and girls it is guiding will tell in the future. There never was a time when we needed people of sound moral fiber than this present.

Sixty percent of our people live in rural communities, he continued, and we should use the resources of the rural church. What we do in this generation you will give to the generations of the future.

"It takes folding money to run a church in these days," the Governor concluded. "If you would contribute the same amount you spend on cosmetics and tobacco, the church would be like the one in Texas where they struck oil. There would be more money than the church could use."

"Until we do a far better job as Christians than we are doing now, there will be no peace in the world," he said.

INTRODUCED BY CASH
The Governor was introduced by Rev. H. H. Cash and the invocation was given by Rev. C. I. Caldwell, pastor of Mt. Pleasant Presbyterian Church. A trio composed of Ben Mason, Elmer Patterson and Frank Monroe, sang "Breathe On Me O Holy Spirit." Mrs. Paul Johnson was pianist and Mrs. E. L. Powell, song leader.

Rev. Mr. Cash said that he had heard the Governor discuss the role of a rural church and was so impressed by his grasp of the problem rural ministers and church people faced, that he invited him to address this meeting.

Negro Driver Facing Trial

A Negro ambulance driver today faced two traffic counts in Harnett Recorder's Court following a collision with a car on Saturday at the intersection of Front and Main Streets in Lillington.

Robert Edward Moore, who was driving an ambulance owned by H. W. Ferguson of Shawtown, told Highway Patrolman W. H. Grady that in answer to a call he was speeding to pick up an ill patient when the accident occurred. The officers said the ambulance, with siren blowing was going north on 15-A.

A Chevrolet automobile which E. B. Latta, Bunlevel, Route 1, was driving and in which his young son was the only passenger, was traveling on Highway 21 from the direction of Sanford. With the green light in his favor, Latta turned and hit the on-coming ambulance. Both machines were damaged in excess of $150 each, officers reported.

Moore was cited for careless and reckless driving and failure to stop at a traffic light. No one was injured. A large crowd of Saturday shoppers gathered immediately after the crash, fearful that the ambulance held an injured or ill patient.

and explained the necessary procedure for having the State Board of Health authorize the fluoridation of the city's water system.

DISCUSS HEALTH CENTER
City Manager Oliver G. Manning and Commissioner J. V. Bass reported on a visit for the health center at Clinton and Mr. Bass said it made them ashamed of Dunn's inadequate health center, which last week was criticized as inadequate by the Harnett County Grand Jury.

Under the law, it was pointed out, the federal government will pay three-fourths of the cost of a health center, provided the town and county will provide the lot and pay one-fourth the building cost.

Mayor Hanna and members of the board agreed to provide the lot and expressed belief the county board should be willing to pay one-fourth the building costs. The south end of the lot upon which the Dunn armory is located is available. This lot meets the requirement that the medical center be located near a hospital and with plenty of parking space.

GREATEST NEED
Mayor Hanna declared that construction of a medical center could prove his administration's most notable accomplishment, asserting it is one of the community's greatest needs.

City Manager Manning quoted Dr. W. E. Humber, county health officer, as saying that two-thirds of all patients treated in Harnett are treated in the Dunn Health Center.

The problem of double-parking and congestion on North Wilson Avenue, caused by heavy traffic at Colonial Store and other large business firms, was discussed at length and the board decided to install on a trial basis that block meters which will permit parking for only 15 minutes. This will mean a more rapid turn-over of traffic and parking for a greater number of vehicles.

Twelve 15-minute meters will also be installed in front of the Post Office.

TO BEING SUIT
The board ordered City Attorney J. R. Williams to start filing suit against citizens outside the city limits who called the Dunn Fire Department and then failed to pay the $100 fee.

All bus parking spaces previously set up for Safeway Supermarket Bus Check now out of business, were abolished and the board agreed to provide three bus stops for South-Central Coach Company—in front of Wesley Coats' cafe, in front of G. S. Tucker Furniture Company and in front of Johnson Cotton Company. All others were eliminated.

A license to sell beer for off-premises consumption only was granted to Cooper Jackson and Joe Grant, Jr., at Creel's Stables. A number of other minor matters were disposed of.

before the city council and requested cooperation in providing water service to the new development.

Mr. Lattimer presented the board a map of the proposed new development. It will have two streets, Sue Avenue and Joy Street.

The first development project completed by Mr. Lattimer was on Chamberland Street in the Mack-Jernigan community, where approximately 100 new homes were erected. The next project was an extension of the development, with a number of new homes constructed.

It was pointed out at the council meeting last night that the new housing development will mean much to the city in the way of new taxation as well as in helping provide adequate housing for local citizens.
