MELVIN BAER

One thing is for sure! Melvin isn't going to be "caught short." Here he is, with his very own Thanksgiving Turkey. An a very good one, too. One of the children, looking on while Melvin put the finishing touches on the bird, said: "That turkey sure has a funny looking nose!" "Humph," retorted Melvin, "that is not a nose! That is a bill. Turkeys don't have long noses!" And that took care of that.

Melvin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baer, and he was five years old Armistice Day. He is a deliberate, straight thinking youngster, who is interested in everything, and he is going to make a good first grade student next year. He is not going to rush into things, but when he gets around to doing something it will be done well, as the turkey he has in this picture shows, even to the details of "the bill."
