Cogitating

BY LOUIS DEARBORN

WE SHOULD KNOW

Whether he likes it or not, the return of General Eisenhower for consultations with President Truman lends itself to intense political speculation. What his intentions are, if any, toward becoming a candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1952, we do not, of course, profess to know. We are not in the General's confidence.

We do think, however, that with candidates announcing if any, toward becoming a candidate for the Presidential a definite and unequivocal stand. He owes it to himself and the public. The stand should not only tell the public of his intentions but his political status as well, and end the current cat and mouse game.

Since his candidacy is still a matter of anybody's guess, we do not mind saying that we admire the General as a soldier and as a man, but we are inclined to feel cool toward him as a political leader. The idea of a man who has devoted his life to military affairs heading the government just doesn't appeal to us.

We'd like to know the answers to a lot of questions involving how the General would handle problems that confront the nation, and be sure of his stand on political, social and economic issues facing us today.

We feel that the people, all of them and not just a few political manipulators, who are currently stage-managing the General's campaign are entitled to know these answers, and to know them now.

REAL DEMOCRACY

We attended two meetings during the past week, one the Chamber of Commerce meeting at Benson and the other the REA meeting held in the Dunn Armory.

The point in mentioning this, is the statement a speaker at one of these meetings made. "This meeting," he said, "is a truly democratic affair. Here we find a number of persons of all political and religious faiths, gathered together in comradeship to work together for the benefit of all."

Too bad we can't have more meetings like this, not only on a community, state and national basis, but on a world basis as well. Perhaps if the peoples of the world could get together, they would find enough common ground to do more for peace than all our diplomats.

ANOTHER THANKSGIVING

Once more we celebrate Thanksgiving and once more we are reminded of the men and women who left their homes in Europe and travelled many stormy miles to the unknown country, which once was our America. Why?

Because they were unwilling to live in spiritual slavery. They were determined to find a country and establish schools, churches and homes where they and their children and their children's children could grow up free and according to their consciences and worship God as they saw fit. They made a civilization where once was only wilderness and savagery. Men came after them, their sons and grandsons and defended the nation in a bloody revolution and made it a democracy.

Each day of our lives we enjoy the benefits someone else secured for us, freedom, education, the manifold intentions to make our toil easier and hundreds of other blessings.

We can be thankful today and every day by doing a job of building up our community, our state and our country, preserving our liberties and improving our schools, our churches and our home life. We can try to pass everything on to those who come after us a little better than we found it.

That would be a real Thanksgiving!

Hope to see you all right here again next week

All this and FREEDOM too! Americans today enjoy more material blessings than any other people in the world! In an atmosphere of freedom we have prospered beyond the fondest dreams of any generation. For this, we should be forever thankful. Even in the Country's infancy... our forefathers were endowed with the bounty of a virgin land that bulged with the necessary elements for the preservation of life. We have been, and are, a Nation of industrious people! Inspired with the privilege of freedom and proud of the individual initiative it has created... we have attained a standard of living that is the envy of all people. On this Thanksgiving Day however, we as guardians of a precious heritage... should survey our many blessings and rededicate ourselves to the task of preserving the freedom that so many have so long regarded so lightly.
