Record Photog Kills Mule, Then Photographs Scene

Record Photographer T. M. Stewart, always on the scout for good pictures for The Daily Record, was "Johnny-on-the-spot" when an automobile struck a mule and killed the animal last night about 8 o'clock, a mile west of Buie's Creek. In fact, it was Stewart's car that hit the critter.

Stewart said that two mules owned by George Gregory of Buie's

Creek ran out in front of him and when he cut out to miss one of them he hit the other.

SECOND MULE HIT
About 30 minutes later, the second mule was struck by a car driven by Fred Jones of Erwin. This mule was not killed, however.

Damage to Stewart's car was estimated at about $300 and damage to Jones' car was minor.

As to be expected, everybody who passed by yelled, "Hey, Stewart, aren't you going to get a picture of that?"

But the cameraman was away ahead of 'em. He got out and made the picture right after hitting the mule.

The owner of the Mule agreed to pay for damages to the vehicles.

1943 and became GOP floor leader in 1949.
Wherry first entered the hospital Oct. 4 suffering from a persistent virus infection. The doctors decided on an exploratory operation in the course of which they removed a non-malignant growth from an intestine.
Wherry had been ailing for three months. His last appearance on the Senate floor was on Aug. 31, nearly two months before Congress quit for the year.

Wherry was elected to the Senate in November, 1942, defeating the late Sen. George W. Norris, and was re-elected in 1948.

WAS PROMOTER
Long before he entered the Senate, Wherry was known as "Lightning Ken" because of his ability as a Republican Party promoter, master of ceremonies, and salesman of automobiles, implements, real estate and coffins. He also was a lawyer and an undertaker. And he was a cheer leader at political conventions and rallies.

Rackley Funeral Held On Thursday
Thomas (Buck) Rackley, 60, of Goldsboro, brother of Mrs. J. M. Langston of Lillington, died Tuesday at 9:10 p. m. at Wayne Memorial Hospital, after an illness of four weeks.
He was a member of the Saulston Methodist Church. Funeral services were held at Shumate Funeral Chapel Thursday at 2 p. m., with the Rev. R. L. Bame, Methodist minister of La Grange, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Daniel Bohora, of the Wayne Methodist Circuit. Interment was in the family cemetery near Saulston.

Surviving are his wife, a son, Earl Rackley of Goldsboro; a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Rackley Dupress, of Newport News, Va.; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Gene Chambers, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Mrs. Shope Norris, Winston-Salem; a brother, Blaney Rackley, Daytona Beach, Fla.; four sisters, Mrs. T. R. Vick, Goldsboro; Mrs. J. M. Langston, Lillington; Mrs. Lela R. Malone, Daytona Beach, Fla., and Eula Rackley, Lumberton.

Hamilton said today he is still trying to find some sort of home where Lennie can be given the proper care and training. All the reform schools are crowded, and there seems little possibility of getting him admitted to one of them at present, according to Hamilton.

"It's a difficult business trying to find a place for this boy," Hamilton stated. "He's been in lots of homes and institutions, and we'd like to put him into something like that again. However, it's hard to find anyone who will take him, for although he is a likable boy, he has been in a lot of trouble, and seems unable to tell the difference between right and wrong."

"We have to put him in a place where he can be supervised, for he has to have a stabilizing influence. A boarding home wouldn't do; we'd have to find a sort of foster home with the right environment."

Hamilton said Lennie has relatives hereabouts, but none is willing to take him in at the present. There is an uncle in Harnett County who is unwilling to take the boy before spring, and a sister, Mrs. Bob Williams of Fuquay, with whom the boy once spent some time. However, the relationship between the boy and his brother-in-law would cause friction, Hamilton said.

His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Jones of Mt. Vernon, are too old to be taxed with the job of taking care of Lennie, Hamilton stated.

Lennie may be suffering from epilepsy, and doctors are now examining him. In addition, psychological tests have shown him to be mentally retarded, and training of the proper sort is important at this stage.

"We're trying every day to do something for him," Hamilton continued. "But the circumstances make it doubly difficult. Anyone who has any ideas or suggestions as to where he could receive the proper care, or who would be willing to take the boy in, is urged to get in touch with the Domestic Relations Court here."

him but I'm not sure."
But the animal leaped over a six-foot wall at the local county fairgrounds and headed for Edhorn river. The hunters lost its tracks there, and figured it had run alongside the river and disappeared in the underbrush.

A "lion" was first reported sighted by farmers a year ago near Ceresco, Neb., about 50 miles from Westport. It supposedly turned up again Nov. 12 when farmer Joe Potacka said he saw an "African lion" stalking through his corn field.

LIVESTOCK MISSING
That report touched off a search in a 50-mile area. Farmers told authorities some of their livestock was missing.

But the hunters called off their bloodhounds and amazingly concluded it was a missing St. Bernard dog. Now the hunt is back on—with guns, planes and bloodhounds.

There have been no reports of lions escaping from circuses or zoos hereabouts, and the temperature recently has been hovering near the freezing mark—much below the comfortable temperature for a lion.

cast a warning to the Communists that the "war is not over yet."

"No orders have been issued to the U. N. command line troops to stop firing or to adopt a 'wait and see attitude,'" the broadcast said.

"They will continue to take the initiative whenever it benefits their security, and will continue to use the full resources at their command to repel any Communist attempt to gain ground."

DRIVEN FROM POSITION
Driven from an advance position by a Communist attack late Wednesday night Northwest of Yon-gu on the Eastern front, the Allies counterattacked and recaptured it shortly after midnight.

A second Communist attack at 4:30 a.m. Thursday again hurled the Allies back to their main defense line. They counter-attacked at 6:30 a.m. and finally restored the position after a five-hour battle.

The Communists also had attacked in up to regiment strength—2,500 men—northwest of Yon-gu Wednesday night.
