at the armistice meeting at 11 a. m. Tuesday 9 p. m. Monday 1951.

The replies may go a long way toward determining whether there will be an armistice in Korea by Christmas.

However, the Allies are particularly anxious to know just which "neutral nations" the Communists have in mind to police the truce.

In Communist eyes both Russia and China are neutral. So also are Red Czechoslovakia, Poland and the Balkan countries. On the other hand, most other U. N. members are involved in the war on the Allied side.

The Communists' compromise offer nevertheless marked the biggest step toward an armistice since both sides agreed last Tuesday that a cease-fire line shall be along the present battleline if the rest of the truce terms can be settled by Dec. 27.

of the State's largest cotton ginners and merchants and this year his ginned in biggest season in history.

"We're temporarily down, but not out," declared Mr. Tilghman this morning. "It, of course, was a disastrous fire, but it could have been worse."

"Most of all," continued Mr. Tilghman, "I am grateful to my friends for their wonderful response and offers of assistance."

"It makes me continue to realize," he added, "that a man's friends are his most precious possession."

As soon as news of the fire spread, citizens by the scores rushed to the scene to offer their assistance to Mr. Tilghman, and his telephone has been kept busy by other friends calling to express their regrets.

Mr. Tilghman in a statement today said work would begin immediately on repairing and re-down the shotgun and when he refused to do so he took the rifle and fired at McNeill four times.

Womack told the officers he didn't know why McNeill had tried to kill him, except for the fact that he was drinking at the time.

Womack was taken to the county building so that ginning can be resumed with as little delay as possible.

Meanwhile, all cotton brought to his Dunn gin will be taken to Angier, ginned and returned to Dunn without extra expense to the farmers.

Mr. Tilghman gave assurances that citizens who had cotton burned in the fire will be reimbursed for their loss in full.

Mr. Tilghman's loss included the huge seed house, two large trucks, $4,000 worth of seed, at least 100 bales of cotton and various other equipment.

"I would be less than human if I did not feel flattered to know that certain of your colleagues in the House feel that I have the necessary qualifications to fill the highest post in our country," Eisenhower said.

The "sympathetic understanding" referred to Eisenhower's refusal to get into domestic politics while in uniform. Recent dispatches from Europe have reported widespread acceptance of the belief that Eisenhower will come home early next year, perhaps in February, and make an active bid for the nomination.

Deputy Sheriffs O. R. Pearce and B. E. Sturgill investigated. They said McNeill accumulated a court record while living in Dunn.

hower wrote Cole. "I am also appreciative of your warm endorsement of the work we are engaged in here, as well as your sympathetic understanding of my present position. It was most thoughtful of you to comment on these things in your press release."

OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS WE APPRECIATE

Early this morning, our Dunn gin was badly damaged by fire.

Temporarily, we're down - but not out!

Just as soon as possible, we will be ginning cotton again.

To those of you who had cotton burned at our gin, we assure you that you'll be paid for every dime of this loss.

We are sincerely sorry that our service will be hampered for the next few days, but work on rebuilding and repairing will get underway immediately.

In the meantime, we'll be doing business every day just as usual.

I want to take this opportunity to express to you my personal appreciation and the appreciation of our entire organization for having made this the biggest season in the history of our business.

Again, we assure you that our business will continue as usual, with the same courtesy, sincerity and appreciation that we have always had.
