Gophers Grow Long Teeth But Gnaw Them Down

A gopher of California probably has less tooth trouble than any other animal. The gopher is only six inches long but grows 46 inches of teeth each year—more than seven times its own body length. Dr. Melvin E. Smith of the University of California college of agriculture said constant use of the teeth keeps the pocket gopher's cusps down to a sharp chisel-like tip. Gophers dig up more soil than any other rodent in California Smith said.

The gophers use their teeth for prying up rocks, cutting roots, digging and fighting.

The next total eclipse of the sun will occur on Feb. 21, 1952. Its path will cross northern Africa, Iran and central Asia.
