ANN HENRY
Ann has a great imagination and she is going to work in our classroom program. You can tell by her picture that she is a "big" girl, but in reality she is a peachy little girl with a great imagination and the prettiest platinum blonde hair you ever saw. Along with these attributes of beauty - her mother helps her so that Ann really shines - and that's no joke!

Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Henry, and did she have a rough time getting adjusted to school, but her mother is a "big" girl, too, and she can tell you a few things about her daughter. the invitation of Roy H. Thomas, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education, immediately upon graduation, to accept a position of teaching agriculture. In this position he developed many friends in the Dunn agricultural area, especially in the Plainview, Mingo, Westbrook, Newton Grove, Long Branch, Mary Stewart and other communities in the Dunn area.
It was after leaving Plainview School to teach in Dunn that he was selected as State Master Teacher of Agriculture, from 400 teachers in the state, for the program of agricultural and community activities he put over in this section.
SERVED IN PACIFIC
His teaching career was interrupted in 1941 because as a reserve officer, he was called to active duty. His six years of duty took him to many parts of the United States, to Australia, New Britain and other parts of the Pacific. He commanded troops, did training and intelligence work and went through many Japanese raids, as a finance officer and courier, he delivered pay and mail to forward lines.
At one time he was reported missing in action, when a bridge on the secret air field he was commanding was washed away during a mountain flash flood. Returned to the states, he served nearly two years as training officer in the South Pacific Command.
Upon his release from the service, he became editor and publisher for the Southern Refrigerator Publishing Co., of Memphis. He resigned in 1948 to accept a position with the State Canner Co. of Athens, Ga., in promotion and sales work in the Carolinas and Virginia. During his work he was in contact with some of the most successful men in the section in business and education.
He had long a personal interest in the growth of Dunn and its surrounding agricultural area, and decided to apply for the position he now holds, because he felt he could do much toward improving the community, and through this the entire area. It presented a challenge to him.

Governors

President seek re-nomination next year, he could count on the support of his present governors of Arkansas, North Carolina, Tennessee and Florida. He would be opposed by the governors of South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia. Alabama and Louisiana are unknown quantities.
Gov. Sid McMath of Arkansas and Kerr Scott of North Carolina are two of Mr. Truman's most vocal Southern supporters. Both are on record favoring his re-nomination but they probably would support the Democratic nominee, regardless of the convention's choice.
Gov. Fuller Warren of Florida also has expressed his unqualified support of the President's re-nomination. But in his state the convention delegates are elected by the people, thus limiting his influence over the completion of the delegation.
In Tennessee, Gov. Gordon Browning generally supports Mr. Truman but he and other pro-Truman leaders may have to do battle with Memphis political leader E. H. Crump, a die-in-the-wool Truman foe who prevented his nomination for Vice President in 1944.
Illinois' All-American talkback, as they call it, is expected to be a surprise. SHIELDS (P)—Clyde R. Hoey, North Carolina's senior senator, marked his 74th birthday today with a speech on Americanism at Bob Jones University in Greenville, S. C.
GEN ALPIN (P)—Rewards totaling more than $200 were posted today for the person who cut out the tongue of a dog owned by Jack Anderson.
The 13-month old Walker hound was last seen hunting several weeks ago. The dog wandered to the hills but refused to eat or drink and lived eight days before the injury was discovered.

descent to "Silent Night, Holy Night." William Corbett will be featured by the band as trumpet soloist as the band plays Charles Lee Bell's "Red River Valley," a modern version of the hillbilly tune, "Red River Valley."
CHRISTMAS NUMBERS
For its contribution to the Christmas portion of the program, the Glee Club will sing two French Carols arranged by Florence Martin, "No Sound Was in the Village" and "O, Come Good Friends and Neighbors," in addition to the familiar "Silent Night, Holy Night."
Secular numbers by the Glee Club will include Cole Porter's song from being unanimous.
BYRNES IS LEADER
Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, acknowledged leader of the South's anti-Truman element, will go to the Democratic convention in complete command of his state's delegation. He is expected to take the lead in the fight to defeat the President and to drive through a platform acceptable by the South.
Byrnes will have the support of Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia, who also will have undisputed control of his delegation; Allan Shivers of Texas, John S. Battle of Virginia and Gov-elect Hugh White of Mississippi.
FIGHT IN TEXAS
Battle, a member of Sen. Harry F. Byrd's strong anti-Fair Deal organization in Virginia, and White are expected to encounter little difficulty in lining up anti-Truman delegations from their states. But Shivers has a fight on his hands. The Texas governor, leader of anti-Truman forces in the state, faces a state convention fight with Democratic loyalists over selection of delegates. He would like to take an unstructured delegation to the national convention so as to be in a bargaining position with the state's big bloc of 53 votes.

into Dunn than ever before. Welcome Wagon will be able to offer a friendly service of information, help in getting settled and spreading good will, generally, throughout the town and vicinity.
Welcome Wagon grew out of the old custom of the days of the covered wagon, when wagons bearing water and simple food were sent out to the pioneers.
HOW IT WORKS
Here's the way the service works: Mr. and Mrs. Newcomer have just moved to town. Their furniture is in but not arranged, they are happy to have found a home, but a bit dismayed at the prospect of having to find new merchandise nothing familiar at all. In a church home, in fact, the future of getting settled, with arrangements and strangers all around, their doorbell rings.
