Parents Urged To Attend Meeting

Anyone interested in education, which should include all parents and educators, is urged to be present at the county-wide leadership conference tonight at eight at Campbell College Auditorium. A careful and complete study of the five-point program of the United Forces for Education will be presented and the groundwork for an active organization in Harnett County laid. The United Forces includes the N. C. State School Board Association; the N. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers; The N. C. E. A. the N. C. Farm Bureau; the N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs; and the State Grange. The five-point program that has been adopted represents long and careful study and the best thinking of state leaders of these organizations. Each of the organizations is cooperating with the promotion of the complete program.

Benson Polio Dance Slated For Tonight

The dance at the Benson American Legion building tonight is expected to send the Banner Township March of Dimes well over its $2000 quota. Mrs. Joe Abdalla and Mrs. Margaret Smith are co-chairmen. Starting promptly at eight o'clock, the dance will continue until the wee small hours of Friday morning and will not end until all the dancers are tired and ready to go home. During the intermission cakes will be sold to add to the March of Dimes fund. They will be auctioned off to the highest bidder. Door prizes will also be awarded to the purchasers of the lucky tickets. Music for the dance, which will include both round and square numbers will be furnished by the Melody Five, a Goldboro orchestra. The sponsors of the dance promise those who attend the best dollar's worth of entertainment offered in a long time. Residents of the area are urged to turn out and help Banner township over the top in the March of Dimes drive.

Two Accidents Are Reported

Two accidents on the Dunn-Erwin Highway within four hours were investigated last night by Highway Patrolman D. L. Matthews. Drivers who were at fault in each case were cited to court. The first accident at 4:45 p. m. at East Erwin near the Carolina Service Station, involved a Chevrolet pickup truck owned by Godwin Building Supply Co., and driven by Fonzella Ellis Jackson of Erwin and a 1950 Oldsmobile, driven by Gerald Miller of Baltimore. Jackson told the Patrolman that Miller had been travelling toward Erwin and had suddenly whipped around in front of his pickup. However, he admitted that he was driving 45 miles per hour, and this highway is restricted to 35. He was charged with speeding. Jackson received a slight cut on his forehead, one of his passengers, Pete Godwin, received a bad head cut and a third passenger in the pickup, Billy Bowers, several scratches and a bruised knee. Miller and his companion were uphured.

Queen Elizabeth's Childhood

Queen Elizabeth ascends the throne in a time of world crisis and of national crisis. The country is heading toward bankruptcy. Its troops—her troops now—are fighting wars in Korea and Malaya. But Elizabeth ascends the throne also at a time when the British monarchy was never stronger or in higher repute. She has the love and respect of her people. She has given them the male heir to the throne whom her father King George VI was not blessed to sire. She ascends the throne also with the tradition behind her for four centuries, since the accession of her illustrious predecessor the first Elizabeth, that England, Britain and the Empire prosper under queens. Elizabeth was born into a happy, wholesome British family April 21, 1926. Her father's chance of getting to be king seemed remote. He was the shy younger brother of the then Prince of Wales. They lived not in a palace but in a relatively modest private house in London's West End. But the Prince of Wales was then approaching his 32nd birthday and he showed no disposition to marry. From Elizabeth's infancy, there was a probability that she might one day be queen, and she was reared with that idea in mind. King George was a model husband and father; Queen Elizabeth a model wife and mother. A second daughter, Margaret, was born in 1930. Elizabeth was advanced through her childhood, her thoughtful father started to guide her education into the channels which would make her a good queen. As soon as she was old enough he started to show her state papers. She began to learn statecraft. Her mother had studied even such matters and royal appointees and appointments. Almost from childhood she has met needs of all walks and ranks of life in public. But even when her father became king on the obligation of his brother Dec. 1, 1936, the family remained a simple and loving one, and Elizabeth grew with the respect of a lone heir and endless duties before her the advantage of that background. The new queen is a comfortable, pleasant, fair-haired blue-eyed, fair hair a clear and steady, steady complexion white and even teeth. Her voice has a bell-like tone. Her face shows intelligence and some determination. She seems likely to be one of Britain's stronger monarchs. Tomorrow: Elizabeth's childhood.

Billy Graham

er. Afterward Smith was host at a luncheon. Invitations had gone out to—and had been accepted by—North Carolina's delegation in Congress, plus some twenty other Senators and government officials. Said Smith, as he introduced Billy Graham: "Here is a young man of whom we are all very proud. His work is one of the great inspirations of our time."

Warns Against Communism

Billy Graham then spoke to the luncheon guests. He warned against the encroachments of Communism. He emphasized that Communism is more than a philosophy or a system of government. It is, he said, a religion. He urged a return to the study of the Bible—but he suggested that to make the Bible attractive and appealing it perhaps should be presented to our people in a modern language. At any rate, he said, "Inside the pages of the Bible is the only answer to our problems." There is hope for our day, he was certain, if we turn to God. The Senators and the Congressmen listened quietly and intently. Billy Graham once again had made an impression. The Rev. Dr. Graham's prayer, and their intentions," Kerr added. Other political developments: 1. Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina told the Georgia legislature that the South must make clear that no party or candidate can take Southern electoral votes for granted. He promised again to do all he can to elect Sen. Richard B. Russell D-GA. to the presidency if Russell will seek the Democratic nomination. 2. New Jersey supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination made plans to enter him in the state's proposed presidential preference vote provided in a bill now going through the legislature. 3. The campaign headquarters of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, another GOP candidate, pointed to the results of two polls, which Taft led, as evidence of his strength. One poll was conducted by the Philadelphia Inquirer and the other by a private organization, which checked sentiment among delegates to the 1950 Indiana state GOP convention.

HEAD MARCH OF DIMES DANCE — Mrs. Margaret Smith, left and Mrs. Joe Abdalla, right, are co-chairmen of the dance to be held tonight at the American Legion Building in Benson for the benefit of the March of Dimes. Tonight's dance is expected to add enough to the funds already collected to put the drive in Banner township and Benson over the top. More than $1,800 of the $2,000 quota has already been collected. (Daily Record photo by T. M. Stewart).

grounds and placed before the altar. The body will be removed to Westminster Hall adjoining the house of Parliament this weekend to lie in state beginning Monday until a day has been fixed for the funeral. Court circles believed today that funeral services will be held Monday, Feb. 18. That would give royalty and nobility from other nations ample time to reach here. The kings of Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Belgium and Greece and the queen of the Netherlands may be among those attending. FAMILY SECLUDED Reverted Queen Mother Elizabeth and 21-year-old Princess Margaret secluded themselves behind drawn blinds in Sandringham House with three-year-old Prince Charles, son of the new queen and now crown prince, and Princess Anne, 14. Queen Elizabeth probably will not be able to join her children and her mother and sister until tomorrow. The impending call of royal duty demands that she go today before the Privy Council to take her oath of majestic office and then to Buckingham Palace, her new residence, to approve plans for her father's funeral. Prime Minister Winston Churchill sent an appeal from 10 Downing Street last night that the public forego welcoming their queen at the airport in this hour of grief.

Blackman Named Reserve Commander

Reserve Major, John H. Blackman has been appointed by Army authorities to succeed Major Roy J. Brown of Dunn, who is retiring from the Active Reserve as commanding officer of the 348rd Station Company, Dunn's Reserve Officer Organization. The new commander is agriculture teacher at the Lillington High School. He served in the European Theatre after receiving training at Fort Knox, Ky., during World War II. His tour of duty took him through Le Havre to Belgium, Holland and Germany. He was responsible for the training and command of 187 men of the 30th Army Medical Division for three and one-half years. True to his military training and outstanding leadership he was awarded the Bronze Star and other medals. Major Brown, the retiring commander, was largely responsible for the organization of the local unit. He is now reverting to Honorary Reserve after serving for 28 years, actively and on reserve. During World War I he served in the 119th Infantry of the 30th (Old Hickory) Division and during World War II served in the Second Army Corps, the New York Port of Embarkation, and later with the First Air Force. Upon assuming his new command, Major Blackman issued a cordial invitation to all Reserve Officers of this area, who were interested in returning to the unit.

31st Ward committeeman, was killed only a block from his home last night as he strolled to a political meeting. At least four of the blasts tore through his chest, police said. Another Threeseed. Speculation that Gross' murderers acted for political reasons was bolstered a few hours later when a man with a "gruff voice" telephoned the home of 32nd Ward Committeeman Edwin T. Kolski. "If Ed doesn't step out of the primary, the same thing will happen to him that happened to Charles Gross," the caller warned Kolski's wife, Charlotte. Both men were entered in the April 8 primary. Kolski could give no explanation for the threat after his wife informed him of the call. He immediately notified the police and requested the telephone co. to trace all future calls to his phone. Spotlight—Then Bullets In the Gross slaying, witnesses said a black sedan pulled up near Gross as he crossed in front of the Evangelical Church a short distance from his home. A spotlight from the car was trained on him while two men jumped out and fired at close range, witnesses said. Then the gunmen leaped back into the car and sped away.

The center display window is being removed and will be replaced by a solid glass front all the way across to give it the most modern, better display of the store's interior. Work is also scheduled in the shoe store, which will get a new ceiling and a new tile floor. "It is our aim and desire to constantly keep improving and expanding our facilities to provide this section with the most modern, most beautiful, most comfortable and most convenient shopping facilities possible," pointed out Manager Raynor this morning in making the announcement. "We are grateful to the thousands of loyal customers throughout this section for their patronage and we feel it a privilege to be able to provide even better facilities than those which they have enjoyed in the past." Mr. Raynor said the work should be completed in about six weeks. Woodrow Turlington is assistant manager of the big department store.
