

Sgt. Duncan Is Now At Base In Alaska

By LOUIS DEARBORN (Record Staff Writer)

Since his enlistment in the U. S. Air Forces on September 1, 1950 O. C. Duncan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Duncan of Dunn, has seen a great deal of this country, and gained rapid promotion in his chosen branch of the service.

His most recent assignment is to the Marks Air Force Base at Nome, Alaska, and his most recent promotion is to the rank of Sergeant which he currently holds.

Sergeant Duncan is an excellent example of the opportunity offered by the various branches of the service to any young man who is eager to learn. The armed services are equally eager to impart knowledge and to advance any member in rank as fast as he becomes qualified.

Sergeant Duncan surmounted his first hurdle by completing his basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, where he arrived on September 14, 1951. He was transferred from there to Scott Air Force Base in Illinois for further training.

KNOWS CRYPTO OPERATION
In May of last year he was sent to New York City for specialized training in the intricate Crypto machine, a machine developed by the Air Forces for enciphering and deciphering messages. Here, by dint of close study, he became thoroughly familiar with the operation of this machine.

Upon the completion of his course he was transferred to the Arctic. His first view of the far north was when he arrived at Anchorage. He travelled from Anchorage to Fairbanks and thence to the base at Nome.

Temperatures in this section have ranged from 70 to 80 below zero since Christmas, according to reports, but his parents have heard no complaint from him in regard to the cold in his frequent letters home. Although a decided change from his native North Carolina, the

Many Problems Looming For Auto Industry

By NORMAN NICHOLSON United Press Staff Correspondent

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry, struggling to keep civilian production at reasonable levels while preparing for its big defense role, is certain that 1952 will be one of the most difficult years in its history.

With Washington mobilization planners—rather than Detroit executives—making the decisions, car and truck makers are hopeful that they will be allowed to make 4,000,000 cars in the next 12 months.

After winding up the second best production year in its history, the industry faces new problems after January which are expected to include:

1. Still deeper cuts in allotment of steel, copper and aluminum for civilian usage.
2. Buyer resistance to high price tags which may be forced even higher by steadily increasing production costs.
3. Limited stocks of cars in the hands of the nation's 35,000 automobile dealers.
4. A sharp rise in unemployment and the possibility of labor unrest because of it.
5. Tool and die bottlenecks preventing a quicker switch to manufacture of the billions of dollars worth of orders for tanks, guns, planes and component parts automotive companies have on their rigs.

Most motor company leaders agree that not until the last quarter of 1952 will the industry be delivering war weapons to the armed forces in any appreciable volume. And once new plants are built, and old ones redesigned for war work, it is uncertain how much the government will want them to produce.

The order halting big tooling programs after February 1 will outlaw some major styling and engineering changes many companies planned for 1953 models.

But it will not affect introduction of 1952 models. Few of these, with some notable exceptions like Ford Motor Company's new products, will have extensive changes. The problems of a "guns and butter" economy, never before tried full-scale in this country, will be reflected in the auto industry very sharply.

And nobody, except possibly Joseph Stalin, knows exactly how the next year will turn out for the men who make and sell autos.

Youth has evidently become acclimated and is rapidly becoming a real "sourdough."

Variety Show Big Success At Angier

The annual variety show presented by the Junior Class of the Angier High School proved to be a big success and everyone concerned in the production was pleased with the outcome.

Don't Worry, Hurry, Pity Or Kick, Alcoholics Told

BALTIMORE (AP)—The National Committee on Alcohol Hygiene today offered 13 "avoid's" to help keep or regain emotional health.

Dr. Robert V. Seliger, fellow of the American Psychiatric Association and chief psychiatrist of the Neuropsychiatric Institute of Baltimore, listed these warnings:

1. Avoid worry. "Everybody worries, but don't let it upset you. Problems are a great source of worry."
2. Avoid hurry. "Take it easy. Most scientists feel that hurry does not make for speed and is the result of a lack of foresight."

3. Avoid kicking against the pricking of life. "No one is exempt from daily irks or irritations both at home and at work."

4. Avoid self-pity. "A good antidote is honesty combined with a sense of humor. Also try to take yourself less seriously."

5. Avoid exalted standards. "When our personal standards for success are too exalted for our abilities, we block our way to self-esteem."

6. Avoid the conscience bogey. "Conscience can bedevil the best of us out of self-respect if we permit it to become a bogey. Condemning ourselves for past mistakes won't rectify them."

DON'T BE SHY OR SENSITIVE

8. Avoid being too shy and sensitive. "They shy, over-sensitive persons builds a wall about himself. He should understand that sensitivity is a form of hostility, a chip on the shoulder manner of reacting to people."

9. Avoid running away from, or fighting your emotions. "Learn to live with your emotions by controlling them through will power. don't be an adult baby, indulging in temper tantrums."

10. Avoid continually analyzing yourself and thoughts. "Don't always try to figure out why you do everything. Stop looking for motives inside yourself."

11. Avoid lack of self confidence. "This is really a dissatisfaction with our performance in life. Self confidence can be fostered by interests that have nothing to do with our daily work."

12. Avoid poor and improper diet. "Jitters, shakes, fatigue feelings and emotional swings may be due to poorly balanced diets."

13. Avoid insomnia. "Sound sufficient sleep is needed for happiness, efficient emotional health and a vigorous body."

Lucas Funeral Held In Mullins

Mrs. Nell Smith Lucas, wife of W. A. Lucas and resident of Laurel Street, Mullins, S. C., passed away unexpectedly Sunday night following a very brief illness. She was the daughter of the late James William and Isabel Lee Smith and was born and reared in Dillon County but for the past 19 years had made her home in Mullins.

Funeral services conducted by Rev. G. H. Varn, assisted by Rev. Julius E. Clark and Rev. W. D. Pridden, were held at three o'clock Tuesday from the Meares Funeral Home. Interment followed at Cedar-dale Cemetery.

Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Ada Nell Beddingfield and by one sister, Mrs. Alice S. Skidmore of Spindale, N. C. She is also survived by one grandchild.

S. James' Palace, official seat of the British court, stands on the one-time site of a hospital for 14 "madens that were leprous," mentioned in British history of the year 1100.
