

Turlingtons Buy Fine Duroc Stock

H. A. Turlington & Sons, Dunn, Route 3, local Duroc Breeders took advantage of an opportunity to add some new blood to their prominent Duroc herd by purchasing a bred gilt at the North Carolina Duroc Breeders Ass'n. state sale held at Rocky Mount, N. C. recently.

These state consignment shows and sales draw some of the best Duroc breeding stock in the state and many farmers took advantage of the bargain prices at the sale this year. These farmers realized that hog prices, like other prices, move in cycles. After a slump, such as prices are now in, there has always been an upswing. Wise hogmen are buying bred gilts now so they will be prepared for the upswing, according to reports from the United Duroc Record Association at Peoria, Ill.

The bred gilt bought by Turlington & Sons is from the heard of Norman Denning & Sons, Four Oaks, N. C. She will farrow a spring litter.

DISQUALIFIED GIRL CREW WILL SAIL — Although disqualified from competing in the St. Petersburg-Havana yacht race, the comely crew of the Tropicair will sail their craft over the course anyhow. The Tropicair, with a different female crew, caused a good deal of worry last year when it disappeared briefly along the race course. The girls are (left to right) Lillian Cover, Esme Scoble, Brownie Rodgers, Mary Copeland, Norma Truax, Lat Briggs and Irene Fletcher.

Last July, floods in 4 Midwestern states drove more than 25,000 families from their homes. Most of these folks are back in their homes now, thanks to the neighbors across the nation who responded to their calls through their Red Cross.

Oaks Overlooked
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Home owners often lose prized oak trees from their gardens by drowning them. The University of California agricultural extension service pointed out the presence of lawns, rhododendrons, and other plants requiring much water beneath the spreading oaks often results in the oak dying from too much water.

COED WON'T TALK, SUSPENDED — Mrs. Lorraine Meisner, 20, co-ed at Wayne University in Detroit, giggles as she sits with her husband, Maurice, at the House Un-American Activities Committee hearings in the Motor City. Mrs. Meisner was suspended from the University after refusal to answer questions asked by the committee. Wayne President David Henry called her attitude "unreasonable" when he suspended Mrs. Meisner.
