SUBJECT UNDISCLOSED
"I can't tell you," Lodge said when asked exactly what he and Eisenhower will discuss.

He said he would be here "several days" and that he probably would return home "early next week."

Lodge denied emphatically that he had come here to ask Eisenhower to go home.

"I will not ask the general to do so," Lodge said. "His return is not a political matter. It is all a question of what he has done over here. He could win without coming back."

The belief that Eisenhower will be back in the U. S. by early June was strengthened by a message he sent to his hometown Abilene, Kan.

Morris

the financial questionnaire which Morris has circulated to top Justice Department officials.
ARGUMENT REPORTED
McGrath was fighting for his political life. Besides calling at the White House yesterday, he engaged in a spirited conversation with Mr. Truman at Washington National Airport, before the eyes of hundreds of persons gathered to welcome Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

The attorney general gave every outward indication of supreme confidence that his position in the cabinet is secure. One source close to McGrath went so far as to predict that "if Morris tries to see the boss, the President won't see him."

Reports that Morris would leave town by the end of this week, unless he gets satisfactory action from the White House, indicated that the "one-of-us-must-go" feud rapidly was coming to a head.

The tension generated by the clash of top-level personalities was dramatized by the Truman-McGrath talk at the airport.

BOTH GESTURED
The two officials walked away from the crowd of official welcome, and began talking alone. Both appeared to be deadly serious. First McGrath, and then the President, gestured energetically as they spoke.

At one point, Mr. Truman was heard to say emphatically, "I'm not concerned about that part of it."

After several minutes, White House press secretary Joseph Short joined the conversation. Short began to address McGrath with great vigor, slapping a fist into his other hand to emphasize his statements.
TRUMAN WALKS AWAY
Mr. Truman listened for a moment, then turned on his heel and walked away.

Park

Dunn Health Center.
Loud protests were registered with City Manager Oliver O. Manning, who was present at the meeting. Mr. Manning pointed out that the park property appeared to be the only site available for the health center.

He said it would be quite agreeable with him if another site could be found, but pointed out that for the town to refuse the site already approved by the State Health Board might endanger chances for getting the health center.

Members of the commission finally agreed to let matters stand and develop the park the best way possible without the extra acre.

THREE ACRES LEFT
Mayor Ralph Hanna pointed out this morning that there are still three acres left in the park site and expressed belief that the medical building will not seriously hamper the park and that the remaining three acres is adequate.
"I believe that one acre used for a health center will benefit more people than the same acre used for park purposes," pointed out the Mayor.

JUSTESEN PRESIDES

Chairman Wayne Justesen presided over last night's meeting.
Mr. Justesen cited the need for proceeding at once with getting the park developed.

It was decided that the park be staked off without delay and that work be started on providing the smaller facilities.

Those present pointed out that because money is not available for completing the entire project that work should not be held up. Belief was expressed that many citizens will be willing to contribute personal labor to the project.

Treasurer Norman Suttles reported that the park fund now has $145 and that another $200 donation will be received from Dunn's Little Theatre.

COMMITTEE NAMED

A committee composed of A. B. Johnson, Oliver Manning and Norman Suttles was named to decide whether or not season tickets shall be sold for the swimming pool. As usual, the town will provide the water and chemicals free of charge.
It was also decided that a concrete apron be laid around two sides of the pool.

Those present at the meeting included: Chairman Justesen, A. B. Johnson, Hugh Prince, Mrs. G. A. Jackson, Miss Edith Sorrell, O. O. Manning, Mack Andrews, John Thomas, Bill Bryan, Dwight Mattox, Jack Jackson, Bert Aalabaster and Joe Leslie.

Only 37 Wedding Permits Issued

All this talk about Leap Year must have frightened away men interested in matrimony, judging from the quarterly report filed today by Mrs. Inez Harrington, county register of Deeds. In a report on marriage licenses issued in Harnett County only thirty-seven permits to marry have been issued this year.
February, the month which has an extra day found only five couples getting licenses. Ten licenses were issued in January and twelve in March. These at $4.00 each amounted to $148.00.
In a report to be submitted on Monday the register of Deeds reported that during March the office collected fees of $1,266.95 for recording receipts.
