II veteran of the Pacific, activated and trained Dunn's National Guard to receive the highest honor which the Army can bestow upon an outfit.

The public has been invited to attend the presentation ceremonies at 7:30 o'clock and a section in the armory has been reserved.

The 94th Army Band from Raleigh will furnish music for the dinner.

job. He gave up some valuable information which will help in deciding future policy. It was most worthwhile for him to be here.

Manning said he understood Aikens plans to move on to some other town. "He's interested in improving communities wherever he might be," declared Manning.

The city manager said Aikens felt his influence had been damaged by the release of publicity that it might reach against him in future trials in which he appeared.

The city manager said he regretted the incident which led to the resignation of the officer.

LETTER OF RESIGNATION

Following is the text of his letter of resignation, addressed to Police Chief George Arthur Jackson:

"I wish to submit my resignation from the Dunn Police Department, effective as of this date, April 23, 1952.

"Although no pressure has been put on me to take this step during my current suspension, I have decided another location would be more desirable.

"I have enjoyed working with the Town of Dunn under the guidance of Police Chief George Arthur Jackson and City Manager Oliver O. Manning. I sincerely appreciate the splendid cooperation and understanding shown me by my fellow police officers. Sincerely, Tom Aikens."

MANNING'S LETTER

Mr. Manning has given Police Chief Aikens the following letter of recommendation:

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: It has been my pleasure to have Mr. Tom Aikens serve with us on the Dunn police force in the Town of Dunn. He has served well on a very difficult assignment in gathering information which we asked him to gather for us.

"He has always been very neat in his dress and in his manners and has made many friends with the good citizens of our city. He stands for the better things and desires to help in building better communities.

"He has had considerable experience in police work and makes a good officer, works with others well, cooperating in any assignment. We have been most impressed with his work.

"We regret that he had made a decision to leave our force, but we will be interested in keeping up with him and the work he does wherever he may decide to work."

Aikens said today that "My conscience is clear. I did the best I could, but the odds were against me, just as they're against any other man who tries to enforce the law."

PRETTY TIGHTROPE WALKERS: You can see these pretty young ladies Monday night in the program presented by the Mark's Kindergarten. The program will get underway at 7:45 in the Dunn High School Auditorium.

Manning And Storey Attend Conference

Dunn was represented yesterday at a meeting of city officials of this section at Chapel Hill by City Manager Oliver O. Manning and City Clerk Charles Storey. Approximately 50 persons attended. They were welcomed by Hon. Edwin S. Lanier, Mayor of Chapel Hill.

Mayor Lanier led a discussion of problems important to small communities similar to Dunn. An address by Alex McMahon on planning a town budget, supplied needed information which will prove of value in making up the Dunn budget, a task which is imminent.

Mrs. Davetta L. Steed, executive secretary of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, reported that there are now 309 towns in the league. Dunn is a member.

She outlined the services offered to the various communities by the league and counseled the officials to take advantage of them.

Discussion of the Powell Street aid bill was led by George G. Franklin, general counsel of the league. He said the bill was working out well and to the benefit of towns in building and operating better streets and getting equipment to maintain them.

Towns must recertify their mileage by July 1, he pointed out, and said the information would be sent out to the mayors on this soon.

Lee Wilson, field consultant for the league, spoke on problems the cities face in "growing pains." He suggested that town councils look forward and plan for orderly and systematic growth.

He recommended that each town set up a subdivision ordinance and set specific standards for sewer, water and streets and plan in general for continued growth.

After enjoying an excellent speech complimenting the officials of Chapel Hill, the group were conducted on a tour of the Moorehead Planetarium and its buildings.

problems in connection with them. He termed the permanence of the home one of the most important things in Christian civilization.

At the services last night Rev. Joyce V. Early presided and the choir and ushers were supplied by the Divine Street Methodist Church. Tonight the choir and ushers will be supplied by the Hood Memorial Christian Church, and Dr. Culbreth will preside.

Dr. Chappell's semi-humorous approach to the subject of his sermons makes the point he desires to emphasize all the more telling, and he holds his listeners from start to finish.

The services will continue through Friday evening and residents of Dunn are urged to attend these inspirational and interesting services.

2. Taft said in a television interview that the atomic bomb—not President Truman's foreign policy—has prevented Russia from attacking the free world. He also charged that Mr. Truman "has so neglected the Air Force" that this country may not continue to have "deterrent" power to prevent World War III.

3. Russell said on the same program that it is easy for Taft and other critics of administration foreign policy to have "hindsight" about the Soviet menace. But he said neither Taft nor any other Republican praised their voices against demobilization of the armed forces after World War II.

The general's heaviest support in New York came from the Western section where he swept the 42nd, 43rd and 44th congressional districts. Taft won one delegate in New York City with Eisenhower taking the other of the two races there.

DEWEY MAN BERATES TAFT: A Dewey spokesman said the New York results indicated Taft votes in the state "can be counted on one hand."

Olive's Manager Blasts Royster

RALEIGH (P) — Tobacco farmers and state employees should regard the appointment of Fred Royster to the campaign staff of gubernatorial candidate William B. Umstead as a warning, R. E. Earp campaign manager for candidate Hubert E. Olive, said last night.

Royster is president of the Bright Belt and the Middle Belt warehouse associations, groups of tobacco warehousemen banded together to promote their own interests, Earp said.

"Mr. Umstead's law firm represents the American Tobacco Co. and the Liggett and Myer Tobacco Co.," he added.

WARNS FARMERS

"With a combination like that in control of the governor's office, what can tobacco farmers expect if we have another market crisis such as we had in the Broughton and Ehringhaus administrations?"

Olive said at the start of his campaign that state employees could not expect improvement in administration of the personnel act if Umstead was elected, Earp reminded voters.

"Mr. Royster is chairman of the State Personnel Council," he said.

Prisoners Still Holding Out

JACKSON (P) — A clique of inmates who touched off the worst riot ever to hit the world's biggest walled prison continued to hold out for peace today despite a promise that their demands would be fulfilled.

Holding 10 prison guards hostage as "bargaining power," the 173 die-hard convicts in Cellblock 15 sought further assurances against reprisals for their part in uprisings in which one inmate was killed and eight others wounded by state police bullets.

NEGOTIATES WITH RIOTERS

Warden Julian Frisbie "negotiated" with the rioting element by telephone into the small hours of the morning as two squads of state police quelled the latest flare-up at Southern Michigan Prison.

"I'm going along with you on all these things... I've told you that and I mean it," the warden said, almost pleadingly to Earl Ward, 27-year-old admitted psychopath acting as spokesman for the rioters.

Frisbie referred to 11 prisoner demands, which he has granted in hopes of saving the hostages and restoring peace to the sprawling pentagon-shaped prison. The hostages, most of them held since rioting began Sunday night, faced almost certain death if police tried to storm the cellblock fortress.

EXERCISING HER RIGHT — In addition to county, State and national politics, there's been a campaign on another level going on here. Dunn High School students went to the polls Monday in the hottest school election ever held here and elected Douglas Overman as president of the student body. Pictured here as she entered the voting booth is Pretty Miss Becky Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Lee. Miss Lee is one of the most popular student leaders at the school. a balance between too much and not enough. Once you get the pit balanced it is easy to maintain the right amount of moisture."

The top is covered with a layer of prepared food made up of pine cones and organic matter. "Some people use laying mash for food," Duncan said, "but I have found that the worms grow bigger and are healthier on a diet of the prepared food I use."

25,000 PER PIT

Each of the pits will raise more than 25,000 worms annually. One worm will lay an estimated 150 eggs each year and each egg will contain from three to ten embryo worms.

"They never see dirt," Duncan commented. When the creatures are of commercial size they are removed from the pits and packed in containers of one and two hundred in peat moss. "They will keep for months," Duncan said. "All that is necessary is to keep them moist."

The stock from which the worms in the four pits Duncan now has, were bought in Alabama shortly after he started his annual business. The original purchase was all that was necessary.

The trees surrounding Duncan's place swarm with birds attracted by the prospect, perhaps, of free lunches. Duncan admits that the birds do take advantage of their opportunity to free load but says, "I can spare them a few worms."

Mocking birds often entertain him until late in the evening. Duncan lives alone. For about twenty years he operated a small mill on his property but abandoned it when it became unprofitable and his son left to enter the service. His son is now serving in Alaska.

He put out 150 catalpa trees last year and may have some of the bait from these trees for sale this year. There probably won't

Yanks' Bobby Brown May Have Ended Play

NEW YORK (P) — Third baseman Bobby Brown admitted today that his baseball career may end when he trades in his New York Yankee uniform for first lieutenant bars in the Army Medical Corps in mid-July.

"I couldn't hazard a guess," the slender infielder said when asked about his future in baseball when he is discharged in 1954. "Coming out of the army at 30 years old and a doctor—well, there's just no telling."

The Sixth Army announced in San Francisco that Brown, a reserve officer, will be called to active duty on the July quota.
