Plans for a beautiful new building to be erected for Sears and Roebuck in the modernistic new Blalock-Stanfield shopping center were announced here this morning.

Construction of the new building will get underway within the next few weeks and is scheduled to be completed by October 1 to furnish new quarters for an enlarged and improved Sears Catalog Sales Office.

Alfred Blalock, who owns the shopping center buildings in partnership with Dr. W. W. Stanfield, announced this morning that he has already signed the lease contract with officials of the nation's largest retail firm.

Necessity for larger quarters resulted from continuously increasing volume of business enjoyed by Sears' Catalog Sales Office here. Sears opened here three years ago. MANY FINE FEATURES

Slaughter Asserts Board Should Stand For Count

As City Manager Oliver O. Manning went about his duties in what may be his final week in office, supporters today were busy in his behalf and some of them expressed belief that the city council may back down its request for Manning's resignation.

Unless the council does reverse its previous decision, Manning will go out of office Saturday. On April 23, the city council requested him to resign not later than June 15th.

Petitions are being circulated asking Manning not to resign and other petitions are being started asking the city council to retain him in office.

Carlyle said that "the young mayor of Fayetteville has told the people he is opposed to communism, waste of public funds and high taxes. He is on safe ground."

WANTS STAND ON FEPC — He demanded that Tally state his position on fair employment practice and said "in view of the fact that the CIO is strongly supporting the candidacy of the young and inexperienced major, the people should know how far he has gone in promising the members of that organization full support of their program."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman asked Congress today for a law authorizing the government to seize the steel industry and run it until the contract dispute is settled.

Mr. Truman, in an extraordinary personal appearance before a joint session of Congress, said a "properly drafted" seizure law can assure steel production, treat both parties "fairly" and encourage collective bargaining.

Mr. Truman said "The issue of peace or war hangs in the balance, and steel is a vital element in the outcome."

UP TO CONGRESS — "The issue is squarely up to congress," the President said. "I hope the Congress will meet it by enacting fair and effective legislation."

Mr. Truman said use of the Taft-Hartley law injunction would be "grossly unfair" to the 650,000 striking CIO United Steelworkers because they had postponed their walkout many times before finally striking June 2.

If, however, Congress wants to obtain an injunction against the strike, the President said, it should direct the President to seek such a court order without waiting for the appointment and report of a fact-finding board as required by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Manning. There are other reports, however, that Bracey has decided to vote to keep Manning. Bracey himself declined comment this morning.

FRANK MANNING — He characterized Manning as "a symbol of what any public official could and should be—competent, efficient and honest."

Mr. Slaughter branded the council's action in requesting Manning's resignation as "unofficial."

He declared that citizens seeking retention of Manning are acting in behalf of the moral issues involved. "Since he has had no reason, we have had no reason and the board has ventured no reason (for the firing of Manning), it becomes, therefore, our responsibility to get the reason for our welfare does count for anything."

Lee Motors of Dunn, Inc. has just secured the services of John G. Ennis, well-known throughout the Dunn-Erwin section, to fill the position of General Manager, it was announced today by Wilbert Lee, owner of Dunn's newest General Motors outlet.

Ennis has been working for the past four years in sales of General Motors products and parts as well as Oldsmobiles, Cadillacs and GMC trucks and accessories. A native of Harnett County, he has lived and worked within five miles of Dunn all of his life, with the exception of 37 months during World War II, when he served in the Air Force. KOJE ISLAND, Korea (AP) — Tough American paratroops whipped 6,400 fanatic Communist war prisoners into submission today in a savage battle of tanks, bayonets, flame throwers and bare fists against primitive spears and arrows.

It was announced officially that one American soldier was killed when a spear severed a vein. Thirty-one prisoners were killed. Fourteen Americans and 139 prisoners were wounded.

Twelve prisoners died of severe wounds inflicted by their own fanatic Red commissars because they refused to fight or tried to flee the Allied order to move out of Compound 76 into smaller 500-man enclosures.

The battle raged for two and one-half hours in Compound 76, center of resistance for the island's 80,000 prisoners. FLAMETHROWERS USED — Tanks and flamethrowers led the way as the paratroopers surged through holes cut in the barbed wire around the compound. Communists were dug into trenches or barricaded in compound buildings.

A shower of stones, spears and arrows from made made bows bounced harmlessly off three tanks which spearheaded the attack. Twelve other tanks with flamethrowers and 90-millimeter guns stood outside, their crews ready. CONFEDERATE YELLS — Confederate Rebel yells and the paratrooper rallying cry "Airborne" mingled with the screams and chants of defiant Communists as troops of the 187th Regimental Combat Team hit the Red lines. The victory in Compound 76, Red "headquarters," convinced nearly 12,000 prisoners in two adjoining compounds—77 to 78—that resistance was futile.

The troops moved 12,750 prisoners into the smaller compounds. They shifted 6,410 from Compound 78. The 6,288 inmates of Compound 77, whose spokesman already has said they will obey, will be moved at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

It was announced only nine anti-Communists were found alive in Compounds 76 and 78. The paratroopers seized 15 Red commissars, found a secret tunnel linking Compound 76 with 77 and captured "battle plans" the Communists had prepared for breaking out and escaping into the hills. Many of the Communists apparently attempting to surrender, were killed by their own leaders.
