by their state committees said it "behoves me" not to make his personal feelings known.

While these governors appeared to be waiting for local sentiment to crystallize, Gov. Gordon Browning of Tennessee and many other top political leaders of the South endorsed the national slate outright.

Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia, while adopting a "wait and see" position, expressed satisfaction with the way the South was treated at the Democratic national convention.

But a few widely scattered party leaders and convention delegates stirred the waters with words of dissatisfaction and actively sought a Southern Democratic switch to Eisenhower.

Local Reaction

didn't like Kefauver or Harriman, either of them would have made a good showing in the big northern states, and Stevenson will have trouble carrying his own State," declared West.

"No matter how he tries," said West. "Stevenson won't be able to convince the people that he isn't another Harry Truman. He and Truman are just alike and stand for the same thing. And the American people have had a belly full of mink coats, deep freezes, corruption and traitors like Alger Hiss."

West said Stevenson's defense of traitor Hiss makes him unacceptable and objectionable to the public.

"The American people aren't going to vote for a man who did his best to keep a traitor out of prison," said West, who also recalled that President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson had defended Hiss.

Former Mayor Herbert Taylor longtime Democratic leader, predicted that Stevenson will surely win the presidential campaign in November. Taylor said he regarded Stevenson as decidedly the most outstanding man available for the Democratic nomination.

"GREAT AMERICAN"
Superior Court Judge Howard G. Godwin declared: "I don't think the ticket could be beat. It's a splendid ticket. Frankly, I was a little despondent when the Republicans nominated Eisenhower and was about ready to concede, but now I'm confident that we have a sure winner. Adlai Stevenson is a great American and will make a great president. I haven't heard such scholarly oratory since the days of Woodrow Wilson. It thrilled me to hear his acceptance speech."

Mrs. John W. Thornton, Sr., was well pleased with Stevenson's nomination. Mrs. Thornton said that she heard his first speech before the convention and knew right then that Stevenson was the man for the Democrats.

PRaises SPEECH
City Judge H. Paul Strickland was also very well pleased with Stevenson's nomination and believes he will have a successful campaign and be elected in the fall. Judge Strickland praised Stevenson's acceptance speech and observed that it was one of the best speeches he had ever heard.

John Allen McLeod, Dunn Republican leader, said he had "no comment on these candidates" when interviewed by The Record.

Vic Lee of Coats, former mayor of that town and another well-known Republican leader, pointed out that Stevenson is a good man, but said, "There is no question of General Eisenhower being elected this fall." He predicted Ike's election by a landslide.

Among other residents enthusiastic over Stevenson's chances for victory were: Mrs. H. C. Turlington, Henry Sandlin and Max McLeod.

Mack M. Jernigan, another prominent Democratic leader, declared that the Democrats have a fine candidate this time and that he'll make a good showing.

WHITTENTON CONFIDENT
Dewey Whittenton, prominent Dunn business man, expressed confidence that the Stevenson ticket will win. "In fact," he said, "a man just paid me $1,000 and I'd be willing to bet that on Stevenson."

Incidentally, Mr. Whittenton was one of the few who predicted four years ago that Truman would win. Mr. Whittenton conceded that "it's going to be a hot campaign, but I believe the working man will swing it to the Democrats. People are going to do a lot of thinking before they vote Republican."

RUSSELL BOOSTER
Mr. Whittenton said he felt ashamed of the North Carolina delegation for not voting unanimously for Russell. "It would have helped Russell four years from now," he added. He praised Senator Bob Young of Dunn for sticking to Russell.

Arthur Wilborn, local magistrate and Democratic leader, declared that with labor unions backing Stevenson unanimously, "I don't see how he can lose."

Harnett Coroner Grover Henderson asserted, "That's by ticket and I think we can win again." He had high praise for both Stevenson and Sparkman.

City Attorney I. R. Williams likewise pointed out that "I think we've got a winning team, but it's going to take some work this fall. We can't go to sleep."

Park Commission Reports Progress

Dunn's Chattanooga Choo-Choo, the miniature train at the Park, should be in operation this afternoon, Chairman A. B. Johnson informed the commission when it met at the Chamber of Commerce office today.

The delay in operation has worked out to the benefit of the children, however, since the commission reduced the price of a ride from fifteen to ten cents.

The Park is rapidly taking shape and most of the equipment will be ready for use this week-end. The swings have been shipped and two of the picnic tables are in place in one of the picnic areas. The four remaining tables for the other two areas, should be set up soon.

All of the fireplaces have been set up ready for weiner roasts or similar events. Roadways have been put in shape and parking areas arranged.

The commission urges Dunn residents to stop by and inspect the improvements in the park area, in which they take justifiable pride.

Charleston News Asserts Platform Is Not For South

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—The Charleston News and Courier said today it would have been better if Southern states had been "kicked out" of the national Democratic convention in Chicago.

Then the people would know without question what the national Democrats' think of us," the paper said in its lead editorial.

The News and Courier pointed out that acceptance of South Carolina, Virginia and Louisiana by the national convention came too late "even to permit them to vote on the Democratic Party platform."

The paper called the platform "a blueprint for statism-socialistic and anti-states rights. It carries the seeds of bankruptcy and dictatorship."

This is no platform for Southerners," the News and Courier added.
