Erwin CIO

WEST SAYS "CHEAP TRICK"
J. Thomas West, leader of the textile union group in Erwin which bolted to the AFL, terms the move on the part of the CIO demanding the return of funds and record a "cheap legal trick to try and hurt the store and wipe it out."

"They know they can't take over again," West declared, "so they are trying to break up the store." He referred to the Worker's Supply Inc., named as one of the defendants in the complaint. The store was set up by the union before the disaffiliation, to offer workers and the community food products at chain store prices, after a legal vote at four union meetings.

"At the time we took over," West asserted, "we were still officially in the CIO, and the funds were taken over under the instructions of the executive board of which Hardy Johnson, one of the complainants was a member."

"Since he was a member of the board that voted for the change," West said, "I wonder why he didn't name himself as one of the defendants."

Legal papers such as these, West said, have been served on practically every local that bolted the CIO and they are nothing new. "They even tried to take over a building and equipment in Danville that cost $200,000, although they admitted in court that only 32 members remained in the CIO local union," he added.

He scouted administrator Scott Hoyman's claim that the move was only made to safeguard the money for the members to whom it belonged, and said, "Better than two-thirds of the people Hoyman claims are trying to protect have signed cards and are in the AFL."

Budget

ered by the general fund it will be business as usual next year with few changes in appropriations. Largest proportion of increases went to the county health department whose county appropriations were boosted from $39,000 to $45,000.

The $6,000 increase will provide clerical help for a mass chest x-ray campaign in December to help combat TB. It will also provide five healthy employees, mandatory under the state merit system.

The other big increase from $8,850 to $21,000 was received by the county aid fund which goes to pay for care of tubercular patients and for aid for the blind. Of this sum, $15,000 is ear-marked to provide hospitalization for tubercular patients, either in state or county sanatoriums. Aid for the blind was raised from $4,850 to $5,400.

County departments cut in their appropriations were the welfare department, outside poor relief, the jail and the clerk of the court.

Last year the welfare department set up a budget of $38,220. This year their appropriation will be $31,200 from county sources. Outside relief drew $21,000 last year and was given $20,250 this year. The office of the clerk of court, allocated $14,000 last year will be operated on $13,200 this year. The appropriation for the jail was reduced from $8,000 last year to $7,500 this year.

Here is the table of funds for the various county departments which receive money from the general and poor fund. Figures in the first column are for the year 1952-53. The right hand column is the amount spent for the same department during 1952-52.

Total	292,240	276,390

Money to be spent on schools accounts for more than half the county's yearly budget totaling $500,150. Of this amount $251,850 will go to current expense, $153,300 for capital outlay and $95,000 for debt service.

Out of the $130 tax rate 67 cents supports the schools. And this rate is proportioned as follows, 19 cents for current expenses, 30 cents for capital outlay and 18 cents for debt service. The last two items are two points less than they were in 1951-52, while current expenses were raised from 12 to 19 cents. Salaries for additional teachers, widespread repairs such as new wiring, painting, reconditioning of buildings and purchase of fire extinguishers accounts for the increase in current expenses.

Other items in the budget consist of $27,000 township road fund with rates varying in each township and a special school tax of $19,000 in Aversboro township.

marked Mayor Hanna. "I think Chief Cobb is doing a good job along that line. He's not making many arrests, it's true but his frequent raids are forcing them to pour out so much it takes all the profit out of the business."

He said one of Dunn's more notorious bootleggers had told him recently that he had been forced to quit and go to work because of the frequent raids. "If he keeps on they'll all quit," he declared. Mayor Hanna is known to be a strong advocate of legal control stores.

plaintiff and accuse her of it being her fault; that he had not failed in his eighty some years of life to accomplish said act.

She claims that he would talk loud about the matters of marital relations so that his language could be heard all over the house and embarrass the mother in front of her daughter. On April 15, she sets forth, she returned to her home in Harnett, and on the following days entered the Dunn Hospital.

STRICKLAND VISITED HER IN HOSPITAL
Strickland visited her in the hospital, she related, along with a grown grandson; but that she persuaded him to leave. On May 7, however, the complaint sets forth, he again talked her into another reconciliation and promised to be a dutiful husband.

On the first night of her return, May 10, she sets forth, the defendants began to force indignities on her and forced her to leave him on May 11th.

She claims her husband refused to give her money for her hospital bill or for necessities of life and refused her any help whatsoever.

The woman says that while she did her best to cooperate with her husband in attaining marital satisfaction, "he would have the cramp in his legs and would be unable to accomplish his desire and would become very angry . . . and would accuse her of going with other men and would abuse her." She claims he also threatened her safety.

She says her abandonment was caused "solely by the unlawful, willful, cruel and barbaric conduct of the defendant."

Mrs. Strickland asks that the court direct Mr. Strickland to make regular and stated payments to her to provide her necessary support and that he also be ordered to pay court costs and attorney fees.

Attorney Doffmeyer declined to comment on the case.

Turn slightly, ease yourself down with the thigh muscles, so you end up with the ankles in a crossed position. See?

When you stand, point the front foot forward, with the hind leg pointed a little to the side. Put the front hand just inside of the skirt seam, with the thumb and forefinger forward.

HERE'S HOW TO WALK
There is another rule, which the G-gals and wives of politicians will learn, and that is the rule of the walk. Viz:

Let the leg swing out from the hip. Keep a "flowing" motion. The weight should transfer from heel of back foot to the ball, as the heel of the front foot touches the floor. The weight rolls forward on the front foot as the toe gives a little push. Keep the stride the length of your foot. Point the feet forward in two parallel lines.

The Powers people don't call powder and rouge "make-up." They prefer the term "make down." They don't think that a secretary or model or any woman with a v sense ought to overdo the lip-rouge or eye-shadow.

"Use good sense," said Miss Marbeth, who wasn't over-doing anything herself with nothing but a light lip-stick and very little rouge on her cheeks.

Getting back to the thigh bulge. For that sort of thing, Miss Marbeth advises you to fall flat on the floor gently. Put the legs together, draw up the knees and slap the thighs against the floor, to the left and to the right. I had mama try that one and she said "ouch."

for the presidency at the Republican national convention early this month. Taft lost the nomination to Eisenhower on the first ballot.

WAS FOR TAFT
Dirksen, who charged in a bitter convention speech that the forces supporting Eisenhower were the same ones that were behind Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York in 1944 and 1948, was invited to come here as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee.

But it was evident around the Eisenhower headquarters that the occasion would be used to impress upon Dirksen that he and all others who supported Taft for the GOP nomination will receive a warm welcome if they want to pitch in and work for Eisenhower's election Nov. 4.

Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, Republican vice presidential nominee, and Arthur E. Summerfield of Michigan, Republican national chairman and Eisenhower campaign manager, will arrive Friday for the conferences.

the Democratic national convention last week.

MAY USE CHICAGO

Speculation among Stevenson's aides centered on Chicago as the site for a national campaign headquarters. The governor last week-end asked National Chairman Frank E. McKinney and the Democratic National Committee staff to stay in their jobs for the time being.

There has been discussion among his advisers, meanwhile, about inviting Wilson Wyatt, former mayor of Louisville, Ky., and one-time federal housing expediter, to take a job in the high command for the fall campaign, which must open in about a month.

Never a candidate for office until he ran for governor in 1948, Stevenson is still relatively inexperienced in dealing with the problems of building a political organization. His personal staff, similarly, has had limited experience, but the Illinois Democratic organization does contain some veteran political warriors.

BUCKED MACHINE
Stevenson once showed his disregard of political machine practices by stripping the party patronage office of all state payroll rolls.

When he learned members of the patronage staff were drawing state salaries he either put them into strictly state jobs or switched them to the payroll of the Democratic party.

Since his homecoming Monday, Stevenson has secluded himself most of the time in the executive mansion to deal with such chores as back correspondence, congratulatory messages, filling a vacant job and contracts calling for his signature.

He has invited heads of state departments to join him tonight in a meeting which presumably will include a discussion of the future conduct of state affairs.

group will discuss "the coordination of all phases of the hard-hitting campaign General Eisenhower and Senator Nixon will conduct."

"The campaign activities of the senatorial and congressional committees as well as those of the citizens organizations will be integrated with the work of the Republican National Committee," Vandenberg said.

"As General Eisenhower has said, every person who believes in our crusade and who wants to take an active part in the campaign will have an opportunity to do so. That is the reason for these meetings."

MEETS WITH BUTLER
Sen. Hugh Butler (R-Neb.) met with Eisenhower for two hours last night and then told reporters he expects Taft to take an active part in the presidential campaign.

Butler, a staunch supporter of the Ohio senator, said he did not know Taft's exact plans.

"But knowing Senator Taft as I do, I am certain that when his vacation is over you will find him just as active as ever," Butler said.

ciding when to treat. This is borne out again this week by the above indicated infestation counts. In order for our control program to gain in effectiveness it is of primary importance for growers to make fair comparisons between treated and untreated fields. To make such comparisons, one must recognize among other things that the weevil problem is not the same in every field and that poorly timed applications do not constitute a good control program.
