Liquor Dealers Escape Prison

Four Negro bootleggers were convicted in Dunn Recorder's Court this morning. Although the fine was comparatively light, the terms of their suspended sentences will make further business extremely hazardous. The convictions were the result of a series of raids that have been directed by Chief A. A. Cobb on suspected bootlegging establishments in the Dunn area. "I know that there is a lot of bootlegging going on," Cobb told a reporter this morning, "and I am going to do my best to break it up. We try, of course to get them with the goods, but where they manage to pour out the contraband, we hit them again and again and make them pour out so much it takes out all the profit." Chief Cobb revealed that he is taking Dunn's two Negro Police-men, Jim Brockington and Alec Thompson along on the raids so that they can gain experience in search and seizure procedure. "As soon as they get on to the routine," he said, "I'll turn them loose on their own. They'll do a good job, I'm convinced," the Chief added.

These convicted this morning were Octavius Dawson, Marie Massey, Bessie McCray and Wayland Mitchell, the result of numerous complaints chell, all colored. Each claimed the seized liquor was for personal use and not for sale.
