Stevenson To See Farm, Labor Group

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (P)—Spokesmen for farm and labor organizations arrived today for conferences with Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, who has not yet spelled out his views on farm and labor legislation.

The AFL, the CIO and the American Farm Bureau Federation all were represented on the Democratic presidential nominee's calling list as he turned back to heavy round of political talks. He spent most of yesterday in "governor's Day" ceremonies for the state fair.

While Stevenson has accepted the Democratic platform plank calling for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law which the CIO favors—he has not said what he would want in a law to replace it. At a meeting in Washington yesterday, the CIO executive board endorsed Stevenson for the presidency. CIO President Philip Murray said leaders of the organization were arranging to confer with the Illinois governor.

Ike's Forces Happy Over The Confusion

DENVER, (P)—Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign advisers chuckled today over the confusion in Washington about the top-secret reports on world affairs that the GOP presidential nominee was supposed to be told about but wasn't.

Associates of Eisenhower figured that, at least for the moment, they had the Democrats on the defensive. The big question was how to keep them there.

Eisenhower himself may take advantage of the situation next week when he makes a couple of public appearances. He will go to Boise, Ida., Wednesday for a conference of Western Republican governors, and to Kansas City, Kans., the following day for a meeting of Republican candidates for office.

These occasions will provide the Republican presidential candidate with a sounding board to keep after the Democrats if he desires to try to keep on the offensive.

Nudist Convention Has Troubles, Too

CONVENTION GLADE,, Mays Landing, N. J., (P)—There were signs of cleavage today among the nudists of America.

The definite possibility developed that the majority faction in the 21st annual American Sunbathers Association convention might take a walk.

A whole new nudicrat party could grow out of the bitter schism in the ranks, based on the "individual nudist autonomy" concepts advanced by Dr. Isley (Uncle Danny) Boone, grandpappy of the nudist movement who was practically tossed out on his bare, uh, ear in yesterday's convention election.

RUMP MOVEMENT
This rump movement centered around Uncle Danny and the defeated slate which he nominated in the annual election. The slate was headed by Alois S. Knapp, a white-haired, pancake-brown, feathered (Continued on page five)

CIO Condemns Raids, Alleged Smear Tactics

WASHINGTON, (P)—The CIO today accused the AFL United Textile Workers of "endangering the economic security of thousands of workers" and condemned the union's "nefarious raiding operations."

The CIO executive board made public the text of a resolution sponsored by the CIO Textile Workers Union assailing the AFL union for what is called "smear tactics akin to those of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.)."

The resolution also blasted George Baldanzi, former executive vice-president of the CIO textile industry who joined the AFL textile workers several weeks after losing out in a bid for the presidency of the CIO organization.

Baldanzi, who had tried for years to wrest control of the union from Emil Rieve, its president, was named Southern organizing director for the rival AFL group.

He asserted he would take 100,000 members from the CIO textile workers, which claimed a membership of 400,000 before Baldanzi's halt.

ATTACKS BALDANZI
Rieve told reporters Baldanzi had gotten only about 15,000 workers to go over to the AFL with him and added that a relatively few actually were paying dues to the AFL.

This, Rieve explained, was because a provision in the CIO union constitution has tied up local union funds and members' dues.

The CIO board charged that Baldanzi has "completely broken faith" with the CIO and has "proved himself unworthy of the trust they placed in him."

The board also said the AFL union is seeking to disrupt the existing contractual relations between the CIO textile workers and the industry.

It's actions, the CIO said, "will benefit only those viciously anti-labor employers whose one desire is to burst effective unionism in their plants."

The resolution expressed the CIO's "complete disgust" with Baldanzi and "his willingness to sacrifice the welfare of the workers by lending his support to the splitting operations" of the AFL textile workers.

It called on all CIO affiliates to aid the CIO textile workers in "combating these raiding operations."

Frank Costello Enters Prison

NEW YORK, (P)—Frank Costello, gambler, surrendered to the United States government in Room 13 of the Federal Courthouse today to begin an 18-month prison term—his first in 37 years.

He walked into the courthouse with his attorney at 10:10 a. m., 20 minutes early. The usually demoralized racket boss wiped perspiration from his face and managed only a weak smile as he entered the bare room with the fateful number.

"I feel fine," he said hoarsely. He was taken through the marshal's office to the courthouse detention pen where he will be locked in a 26-man tiled floor cell until the prison van is ready to take him to the House of Detention.

BEAT LOT OF RAPS
Costello beat a lot of raps-for bootlegging gambling and political fixing—but he couldn't beat the one the Senate Crime Committee hung on him for just going home.

He last went to jail in 1915, a 24-year-old hoodlum who was caught with a gun.

Now 61, gray, "retired," he (Continued On Page Two)

Socialite Playboy Taken In Vice Raid

NEW YORK, (P)—Crime raiders arrested one of the nation's top eligible socialite bachelors and at least eight beautiful models and actresses today in the most sensational big city vice raids since the days of white-slaver Charles "Lucky" Luciano.

Swooping down on Manhattan's silk-stocking East Side district in the early morning hours, vice squad detectives broke up at least four "dating" parties and arrested more than a dozen persons including Minot F. "Mickey" Jelke, 22-year-old heir to a Chicago oleomargarine fortune.

The lightning sweep was a powerful blow to the flourishing New York call-girl racket which sold lonely men voluptuousness for prices ranging up to $500 a night.

Assistant Dist. Attorney Anthony J. Leibler said the raids were conducted and the persons who were arrested "are believed to know each other." Jelke, a publicity man, and a TV bit actress were charged with white slavery, but Jelke denied the charges.

USED OWN APARTMENT
Leibler said Jelke had used his own lavish apartment for the "dates" he arranged between wealthy businessmen and curvaceous girls-about-town for prices ranging from $50 up.

Authorities said the scope of the cafe society call-girl racket rivaled (Continued On Page 4)

Dunn Firms Offer Many Prizes For Festival Visitors

The area surrounding Dunn will be well represented among the contestants in the Beauty Pageant to be held as part of the Town and Country Festival next Saturday.

Those entered thus far are: Betty Ann Saunders, Sanford, Mary Dell Sutton, Mount Olive, Ann O'Quinn, Lillington, Brooke Honeycutt, Angier, Jan Winders, Kenly, Kitty Shaw, Anderson Creek and Betty Frances Byrd, Spring Lake. Smithfield will be represented, but their representative has not yet been chosen.

Meanwhile the list of prizes to be awarded during the day is mounting as more merchants offer their contributions. Except for the capital prize, and 11 foot deep freezer, contributed by the Dunn Tobacco Market, these prizes will be awarded at stated intervals during the day.

Tickets for the awards will be available at a booth in the downtown business section and another at the site of the contests. Persons winning the smaller prizes will still be eligible for the freezer.

AMONG THE PRIZES
Contributions for this phase of the day activities and the contestants are as follows:

Quinn's Furniture Co., a smoking stand; Skippy's Esso Station one wash job, one grease job and one tire repair; Supreme Service Station, one oil change; Carolina Cleaners, $10 in cleaning; Johnson Cotton Company, electric toaster and electric percolator.

Dispatch, one year subscription; Colonial Frozen Foods, three Colonial hams; General Utility Co., luncheon for beauty contestants; Jewel Box, necklace and earring set; Stanley's Jewelers, dinner ring or ladies watch.

Meanwhile all the other committees have been active, and the event should be one of the best of its kind ever held in this section.

Big Crowds Attend Falcon Camp Meet

The huge auditorium at the Falcon Camp Meeting was filled to capacity last night, with more than 2,500 worshippers attending the service. All night services have had nearly capacity audiences, while the attendance has also been good at day sessions.

While the program has been going forward in the auditorium, behind the scenes the committees for the conference have been working hard in order to get the business of the conference in order and thus expedite the work which will start Monday afternoon.

This year in addition to the annual assignments of preachers, the conference will have to select 14 General Conference delegates, since this conference, which meets every four years, will meet in June of next year.

A general conference rally will be held in the auditorium Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and will feature talks by outstanding preachers of the conference as well as special singing.

SYMAN TO SPEAK SUNDAY
At 3:30 Sunday afternoon there will be a special sermon, conducted by the Rev. J. C. Syman, one of the most forceful speakers of the conference.

The two large dormitories, which accommodate 400, have been filled to capacity all during the meeting, and some of these attending have brought their own house trailers.

Officers of the Camp Meeting include, Rev. W. Eddie Morris, Superintendent, Rev. O. T. Howard, secretary, Rev. Ralph Johnson, treasurer, and Rev. S. A. Fann, board member.

Bishop T. A. Melton, presiding Bishop of the North Carolina Conference of Pentecostal Holiness Churches, will preside over the conferees at the camp until late Tuesday.

During the meeting the hundreds of visitors have had an opportunity to inspect and admire the new addition to the Culbreth Memorial Church, which is nearly completed. It was named for the late J. A. Culbreth, beloved founder of the Camp Meeting.

Three accidents, one serious, but none involving personal injury, were reported today by the Dunn Police Department. No charges were filed against any of the drivers involved.

Home Ec Teachers Plan Year's Work

Home economics teachers of Harnett and Johnston counties met Thursday at the Boone Trail School in Western Harnett for a day of planning and training for the coming school year.

Mrs. Pearl Stroud, named chairman for this year succeeding Mrs. Ellie Osborne, the former Jerry Cobb of Dunn, presided over the meeting.

Principal speakers were Miss Mary Hines Leonard, assistant State Superintendent of Home Economics, and Beamon Kelly, assistant Harnett superintendent, addressed the home economics teachers.

Johnston County has two new approved vocational departments this year for the first time, Meadow and Four Oaks.

Among those playing an important role in the meeting was Mrs. C. I. Thompson of Dunn, one of (Continued On Page two)

BULLETINS

ATLANTA, (P)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics said today spiraling food prices and an employment slump in key industries dominated Dixie's economy during the first half of 1952.

CHICAGO, (P)—A swarm of crickets flew into the Chicago area and blackened sidewalks, lawns and buildings in two suburbs today. Police in Blue Island, Ill., just south of Chicago, said "there is a tremendous number of crickets around here."

CHICAGO, (P)—More than 5,000 children between the ages of four die in accidents every year, Dr. George M. Wheatley wrote in this week's issue of an American Medical Association publication.

Aly Calls On Rita, And Stays Until 3

HOLLYWOOD—(P)—A reconciliation between Aly Khan and Rita Hayworth seemed possible today after the debaron prince came to the star's home for dinner and wound up staying until 3 in the morning.

Khan literally ran into Rita's Beverly Hills mansion last night for dinner immediately after he arrived from New York lugging 75 pounds of toys and gifts for Rita and his daughter.

As he left his limousine he told his chauffeur, "I'll only be a minute."

He didn't emerge from the house again until 3 a. m., about an hour after a houseboy had sent the chauffeur away.

Khan looked downcast as he left the house but his long stay had rekindled rumors that a reconciliation was possible. He drove to the home of director Charles Victor in a servant's car. (Continued on page two)
