SEOUL, Korea, (P)—Seven Okinawa-based Superfortresses, braving stormy skies and radar-controlled anti-aircraft fire, early today blasted an 1,110-acre supply and storage area at Pyongyang, North Korean capital.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (P)—Truce negotiations were recessed today for the fifth consecutive week after the Communists demanded that the United Nations stop "persecuting" and "slaughtering" prisoners of war.

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla., (P)—The armed forces today launched a third all-out hunt for six airmen missing since their B-17 bomber was shot down by mistake in secret offshore target practice.

WASHINGTON, (P)—Tighe E. Woods said today he'll consult America's housewives in his new job as price stabilizer.

WASHINGTON, (P)—The Agriculture Department yesterday announced the appointment of Edward J. Overby as deputy director of the department's cotton branch.

JOHANNESBURG, (P)—The high court of parliament paved the way today for removal of 1,000,000 non-white voters from South Africa's electoral rolls.

CHICAGO, (P)—Fifty-four persons fled last night from a $15,000 hotel fire which injured five persons. The fire broke out in the Columbia Hotel and spread so quickly that moments after the alarm was sounded flames were shooting from first and third-floor windows in the three-story brick building.

WASHINGTON, (P)—The FBI added to its list of "10 most wanted" criminals today a onetime respected family man who murdered his wife and two young sons without apparent motive and later shot a policeman. James Eddie Diggs, 39-year-old Negro, replaced John Thomas Hill, a murder suspect captured at Hamtramck, Mich., Aug. 16.

SOUTH BOSTON, Va., (P)—William Tuck, chairman of the state Democratic Central Committee and former governor, said today he will avoid taking sides when the committee meets in Richmond tomorrow to decide whether to support the national presidential nominee.

WASHINGTON, (P)—House investigators disagreed along partisan lines today on whether the Justice Department obstructed a federal grand jury inquiry into St. Louis tax scandals. Rep. Kenneth B. Keating R-N.Y., said a House subcommittee had uncovered an "abuse" of the judicial system in the alleged attempt by certain Justice Department officials to block the jury's investigation.

UN Has Lost 1,572 Planes; Reds 644

TOKYO, (P)—The United Nations have lost at least 1,572 planes in the Korean war while destroying 644 Communist aircraft, it was disclosed today.

The figures included U. S. Air Force, Navy, Marine and foreign-piloted planes. Actual losses including behind-the-lines accidents are higher.

Among U. N. air units, only the Navy included accidental losses. And there is no way of estimating accidental losses of the Communists.

OPERATES MORE PLANES
U. N. officers say Allied losses are higher than the enemy's because the U. N. operates more planes over wider territory. They are exposed constantly to ground fire both over the front lines and on bombing missions deep in North Korea.

CASUALTIES UP
WASHINGTON (P) — American battle casualties in Korea now total 116,252, an increase of 879 over last week's summary, the Defense Department announced today.

The casualties include those whose next of kin were notified through last Friday. They do not include all casualties since it takes one to three weeks to notify next of kin.

Our Mr. Nichols Tangles With TV

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — I almost set television back to the days of the seven-inch screen. It wasn't exactly my fault.

I was invited to appear as a "distinguished guest" among other "distinguished guests" on a TV show known as "Inga's Angle." It was filmed and set to sound with the Wardman Park swimming pool as the background.

"I'll give you a jack-knife by half-gainer account of what happened. WNBW-TV advertised the show as a summer preview of furs, and the guests, most of whom didn't know a mink-dyed chipmunk from the real thing, were supposed to play experts and say some cute things calculated to interest the ladies in expensive wraps.

A Mr. Dewey Zirkon, who makes a living buying and selling furs sat beside the lovely, blond Inga, who flashed her big blue eyes camerawise and kept up a running comment on the furs as they were modeled by shapely young ladies. The ladies wore the garments over bathing suits.

Zirkon, with a little prompting from Inga, cut loose with the exciting information that fur styles are about the same as last year, but added:

PRICES LOWER
"We would like you to know that the prices are going to be lower this time."

He didn't say how much lower. Then he mentioned that Congress butted into the fur industry by passing a rule that you've now got to call a mink a mink and not a dyed something or other. The furrier have to say what animal shed its coat to make a coat for milady and say it right there on the label.

I once covered a hearing on that label business when one witness brought out that the hide of the lowly bunny rabbit was dyed and

The league office here announced that Miss Shore won the honor by one-half vote over Shirley Gravett of Danville. The 22-year-old beauty attends Eastern Carolina College where she has been a cheerleader.

RALEIGH (P) — Average prices held steady on both the Eastern and Border Belt flue-cured tobacco markets yesterday, but volume ranged from heavy on the Border Belt to extremely light on most Eastern markets.

Prices ranged from $67 per hundred for good lemon lugs to $31 for low orange primings on the Eastern belt, the federal and state departments of agriculture reported.

RALEIGH (P) — The state is trying to buy a 300-foot strip of Lake Waccamaw water front for the first of a series of fishermen's access areas planned by the Wildlife Resources Commission, Executive Director Clyde P. Patton said today.

RALEIGH (P) — Sen. Clyde R. Hoy will address the annual joint meeting of the Farmers Cooperative Exchange and the N. C. Cotton Growers Cooperative Association here Sept. 9. M. G. Mann, general manager of the two groups said today.

called to testify regarding the charges. They refused to answer many questions as to whether they were Communist Party members and regarding their alleged pro-Red activities and affiliations on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

The allegations of "booming" pro-Communists and ousting anti-Reds were made before the subcommittee by Ruth Adams Knight and Welbourn E. Kelley, veteran radio free lance writers and leaders of the "anti-Communist" Guild faction.

Pressed for details, Miss Knight referred to the Columbia Broadcasting System program, Studio One. She told the subcommittee on April 23, 1951, that Joseph Liss, "well known as a left wing sympathizer," was employed as a writer on the show more than anyone else.

"Until a recent hearing," she said then, "it was pretty generally conceded that almost any thing at Columbia Broadcasting Co. was going to be very difficult for a writer who was not sympathetic to the left wing."

She added that the situation had been corrected.

passed off as about everything but the very valuable chinilla.

After the TV show had been going about 10 minutes, the cameras switched to our pool-side table.

Each "distinguished guest" had been supplied in advance with a couple of questions. We were supposed to make up the answers ourselves.

The first two fellows, one an admiral and the other a dealer in Alaskan furs, did all right. The Alaskan caught a passel of giggles when he put parka around his head and looked something like a seal about to kick off into deep water.

Then it came my turn. "I understand," Inga said, "that you are going to be a judge in the Miss America contest, Mr. N."

That tripped me. I am no judge. Then she fumbled around and pulled out a question from somebody else's list.

I had already written down the answers to my questions and I had to hem and haw a bit. Then she asked me if I thought a girl's best friend was her fur coat. That wasn't my question, either. I could not answer it. Inga thanked me and passed onto the next witness while I quietly passed out of the picture. About time, too.

Resisting Arrest Cases Disposed Of

Judge M. O. Lee of the Harnett Recorder's Court meted out stiff sentences Tuesday to men convicted of resisting arrest as he indicated he intended to back up law enforcement officers in the performance of their duties.

Douglas Wilkes, of Dunn entered a guilty plea to public drunkenness and resisting arrest. Patrolman David Matthews testified that in search for another offender he encountered Wilkes in the mid afternoon with the car ditched and the driver drunk. The patrolman said that when he tried to take Wilkes into custody he jerked loose, ran, and when overtaken struck at the officer and hit him on the arm.

Wilkes drew 90 days on the roads suspended two years on condition he violate no law, remain sober and pay $50 fine and costs.

Willie Baker, also of Dunn, was found guilty of public drunkenness and resisting arrest. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Baker was arrested Saturday on 15-A by Patrolman Herman Ward, who said he noticed the car weaving across the road.

Ward said Baker swung at him several times but that he dodged the blows. The officer said that only when a passing motorist came to his aid was he able to handcuff Baker. The defendant told the judge he was too drunk to remember anything of the incident. Baker has appealed a six months road sentence for assault received in the Dunn Recorder's Court.

In other actions, drivers who entered pleas to driving drunk and were fined $100 and costs were: Vernon Wade Weeks, Hugh King and Fred Moore. Similar charges against Lloyd Cooke and James Duffey were continued until September 9.

Archie Prentiss Underwood, charged with driving drunk, was cleared of that charge but entered guilty plea of public drunkenness, after Patrolman Bill Grady testified he took Underwood and a woman companion to the hospital following a wreck and "that Underwood was so drunk he fell off the hospital bed twice in the emergency room."

The officer said that when he went to the wreck scene some men, he could not identify, were holding Underwood. However, he could not say which of the two persons was driving the car, which had overturned against a telephone pole.

Junior McLean was found guilty of stealing a Masonic ring from Mrs. H. D. Byrd of Bunnlevel and drew 60 days on the roads.

Leon Honeycutt entered guilty plea to assault on his wife, was given 60 days on roads, suspended two years on condition he not assault or abuse his wife and pay the costs.

Charles Junior Williams, found guilty of assault on a female, was taxed with the costs.

June Williams, found guilty of disorderly conduct at the store of W. B. Byrd in Bunnlevel and threatened assault on the proprietor was given 60 days in jail.

Thurman Walker, first accused of breaking and entering and assault on Marcella Moore, entered a plea of guilty to assault on a female, a plea the state accepted. He drew 90 days on the roads, suspended two years on condition he stay away from the prosecuting witness' home, pay $25 fine and costs.

John and Elizabeth Johnson, Negro couple, found guilty of engaging in an affray, had judgment suspended 12 months on condition they remain of good behavior and pay costs.

Jasper Massey of Angier, was found guilty of assault on Art Reams, who was not present. Judgment was suspended 12 months on condition he not violate any law.

Two men were found guilty of driving without driver's license. They were Lloyd Stewart, who paid $25 fine and costs and Lived Faircloth who was let off with costs for the same offense after the judge was informed Faircloth had ten children to support.

Earl Gregory entered guilty plea to careless and reckless driving charge and prayer for judgment was continued 12 months on condition he not drive in reckless manner, pay $25 and costs.

James E. McNeill, charged with parking car at night on wrong side of highway where an automobile collided with it, was found guilty. Judgment was suspended 12 months on condition he not violate the Court Tuesday after the robbery victim testified Gaudin was not the man who took his wallet containing $46.

The robbery took place on August 7 along a rural road off highway 210 between Fayetteville and Lillington, after Johnson, a teenage youth of the Anderson Creek community had hitched a ride to Fayetteville with the strangers. Johnson said Gaudin and the latter's two small children were in the car when it stopped along the roadside, but that Gaudin was not the man who hit him with a bottle.

Lesley Davis, who is still at large, was the second man named in the original warrant charging highway robbery.

Gaudin has his prayer for judgment continued on condition he not molest Johnson and pay half the costs.

The action is voluntary on their part when they find themselves on the edge of the city limits. "Then," he said, "they file a petition asking to be included."

This, he said, has been the procedure since 1947, when an act of the legislature allowing the towns to take in any property they wished was abolished. Since he had been in office, he declared, he knew of no one who had been invited to come in.

Both Sam and Bob Baer said they would be perfectly willing to come in if the town would provide facilities in the section. "We are certainly not trying to hold back the growth of the town," Sam Baer said.

The Baers charged "politics" and said that when, at one time, they were interested in coming in, the town wanted to charge them for the expense of running a six inch water line out General Lee Avenue. The cost would have run $800 for one side of the street or $1,600 for both.

They took the position that the town should provide these facilities.

Joseph Edward Wicker entered guilty plea to failure to yield right of way. Prayer for judgment was continued 90 days on condition he not violate the motor vehicle law and pay costs. He was involved in a wreck with a pickup truck near Angier.

James K. Cottle, found guilty of failure to stop at a stop sign, was taxed costs.

Robert L. Moore, found guilty of speeding 50 miles an hour in a 35 mile an hour zone, was taxed the
