Stevenson Has Quick Wit But Can Be Ruthless

Editor's Note: The political views of Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson are unfolding and by November these views will be familiar to everyone. But the question United Press correspondents are asked most frequently is: "What kind of guy is Eisenhower?" What is Stevenson like personally? United Press correspondents Raymond LaHR and Rex Chaney have been covering the two candidates since the political conventions. In these dispatches, they profile the personalities of the men battling it out for the White House.

BY RAYMOND LAHR United Press Staff Correspondent

Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson is a hard man to see, but he's worth the effort when the door finally opens.

Since his nomination the door has been locked to all but authorized callers who have been descending on Springfield, Ill.

The Illinois governor is a cheerful man—sometimes puckish—with a quick wit and a reputation for phrase-making, but he can be ruthless when the occasion demands.

Stevenson, who is five, nine and weighs 185, tries to keep his waistline under control with an occasional game of tennis, which he plays better than most men of 52. He usually loses, however, when he is matched against his administrative assistant, William M. Blair Jr., who has won the Springfield city tennis championship for the last two years.

SECLUDED LIFE A divorced man, Stevenson lives a somewhat secluded life in the 96-year-old, rambling, white brick Illinois executive mansion.

Ignoring the routine of most of his predecessors, Stevenson does nearly all of his work in offices at the mansion and seldom visits.

79-YEAR-OLD FARMER WINS TRACTOR — A. B. Simmons, 79-year-old farmer of Autryville, Route 2, is pictured here sitting behind the wheel of the beautiful new Farmall Cub Tractor he won yesterday at the Legion's Four-County Fair. Mr. Simmons, who's still an active farmer despite his age, said the tractor was just what he needed, that he'd been thinking about buying a new Cub. A neighbor, however, James Honeycutt, had to persuade him to come to the fair. The tractor was provided by McLamb Machinery Co. of Dunn. At the left is Fair Manager C. M. Rumley and at the right is Chairman J. O. West. (Daily Record Photo by T. M. Stewart).

Fair Crowd Shatters Records

Dunn's sixth annual Four-County Legion Fair yesterday shattered all attendance records for the six years the fair has operated here, it was announced today by Chairman J. O. West and Manager C. M. Rumley.

Nearly 5,000 were present for the matinee program and the crowd increased for the night's events.

If good weather continues, total attendance for the week will also break all previous records.

Today was Children's Day and another big crowd was expected, with all children from Harnett, Sampson, Cumberland and Johnston counties admitted free.

"PONY GIVEN AWAY" A feature of today's program was the awarding of a Shetland pony from the farm of Governor W. Kerr Scott to some lucky child. Only children were eligible for the award.

Friday will be Negro School Children's Day when all colored children of the four counties will be guests of the fair. A free bicycle

Stevenson Begins Campaign In East

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson kicked off his campaign in the East here today, saying that New York City, where his GOP opponent makes his headquarters, would be known as "Munich" in the future.

Speaking to a mid-town audience estimated by police at more than 10,000 persons, Stevenson took note for the first time of Republican criticism for being a "funny man."

"A lot of people say I'm not serious enough," he said. "If I was wedded to some of the folks they are I couldn't be humorous either."

He did not elaborate on his New York-Munich crack, but it was an oblique reference to his frequent statements that the alignment between Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.), constituted a "surrender."

BENTON HEADS RECEPTION Stevenson will speak on atomic energy tonight at Hartford. Police said a crowd of 1,500 to 2,000 persons greeted the Democratic presidential nominee on his arrival. Sen. William Benton headed the welcoming delegation of political leaders.

Atomic energy, normally a delicate subject for political discussion, was chosen as the topic for the Democratic nominee's main Connecticut speech for two apparent reasons:

1. Stevenson's advisers are still wrestling with the task of getting their candidate well-known and on record on as many basic questions possible before the pace of the presidential race is stepped up in October.

2. Connecticut is a highly-conscious state.

Ike Is Campaigning Through Corn Belt

DAVENPORT, Ia., (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to the campaign trail today with a swing across the friendly corn belt after letting labor leaders know that he does not favor repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Eisenhower's plane landed in nearby Moline, Ill., last night and he was ready to resume his role as a rear platform speaker in an attempt to woo Iowa back to its traditional Republicanism.

Aides said the Republican presidential nominee would dwell on the "corruption" issue in nine Iowa appearances during the day and make a major farm speech tonight at Omaha, Neb.

AT ROCK ISLAND Eisenhower told an audience in the Rock Island, Ill., Army last night that he is against repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, but favors amendment "in many important particulars."

It was a replay of his talk before the AFL convention in New York earlier in the day. The nominee

Reportedly Has Enough To Open Large Assaults

TOKYO, (AP)—The U. S. Navy has a fleet of 1,800 deadly guided missile planes and is already using some of them against the Communists in Korea.

The Navy's leading guided missile expert in the Far East, Lt. Cmdr. Warren A. Kurtz, said today that the United States has enough of the accurate hard-hitting robots "immediately available to launch large-scale attacks."

Some of the 1,800 planes converted to guided missiles are capable of delivering the atomic bomb, Kurtz said.

MAY TAKE OVER AIR "It is just a question of time until the guided missiles take over aerial war," he said. "They can be refueled in the air, making continent-to-continent warfare possible."

This correspondent saw the missiles in action against the enemy on the carrier Boxer in Korean waters several days ago, when an enemy target was successfully destroyed by a robot. It was like watching the war of the future.

TELEVISION USED Kurtz said the Navy has converted 1,800 planes to drones, but he said that not all of them were equipped with television, which is used to guide the robots to their targets. He said drones without television had been used in World War II with some success.

Some of the converted planes are in use hauling targets and in training guided missile personnel and in experiments, he said.

Kurtz agreed that it is possible that "missile-to-missile" and "continent-to-continent" air war techniques will replace present dog-fighting and bombing by living pilots.

Kurtz revealed that some of the missiles are capable of carrying and delivering the atomic bomb. He said "the ones already thrown against the enemy by the Navy are but a 'forerunner' of what will come."

"It is possible that a fleet of single mother planes could be used in large-scale war in Korea," said

Lebanon Seized By Gen. Shehab

BIERUT, Lebanon (AP)—Gen. Fouad Shehab, commander-in-chief of the Lebanese army, seized the government today in a bloodless coup.

Early this morning the Middle East's newest strong man engineered the coup, climaxing weeks of simmering revolt.

President Bechara El-Khoury announced his resignation and turned over his authority to Shehab. Shortly afterward the British Broadcasting System in London picked up a Beirut radio broadcast by two Socialist leaders calling on the people to end a strike the Socialists had called demanding a clean-up on the Lebanese government administration.

ISSUED DECREES Before resigning, Khoury issued three decrees. One accepted the resignation of Premier-designate Saeb Salam. A second appointed his former army commander as premier and head of the defense and interior ministries.

The third decree named former Prime Minister Nazem Akkari and former Minister of Finance Bassil Triki to make up a provisional government with Shehab, the broad-shouldered general, as premier.

Khoury had been president for nine years.

Alcoholics Given Road Terms Here

The price of high speed continued to run high in Judge J. Paul Strickland's Recorder's Court this morning. Ovale Barefoot was fined $50 and costs with prayer for judgment continued.

Policeman K. M. Fall told the court that he had chased the defendant at 80 miles per hour for three blocks on North Hills and the defendant had "just pulled away."

The officer radioed to Benson and had the car stopped and the driver returned here, the officer said.

In the case of Macon Gibson, taxi driver charged with speeding at 80 miles per hour and given 60 days, suspended 12 months on payment of $50 and costs, last Thursday.

Prayer for judgment was continued on payment of costs.

Classes Organized For County Teachers

A series of classes designed to aid Harnett County School teachers on all grade levels do a better job of teaching reading was organized Tuesday night at the Lillington school.

G. T. Proffit, county superintendent, and Miss Bessie Massengill, county supervisor, said they were delighted with an attendance of 100 teachers from all parts of the county.

Dr. Eva D. Williamson, specialist in reading from East Carolina College, will teach the course. Hereafter, classes will meet once a week for ten consecutive weeks each Monday at 6 p. m. in the Lillington high school auditorium. Last class will be conducted on November 17.

Miss Massengill said plans call for the class to be divided into smaller groups at a later date and that graduate and undergraduate credit will be given for the course. Cost for each person attending will be $16. By paying the fee, teachers may also audit the course, that is take no tests or get any credits.

READING COURSE Doctor Williamson promised a reading course tailored to benefit teachers in all grades. She told the group she felt it would be beneficial for high school teachers to know now primary teachers present reading to the first grader. It would also be helpful in turn, she said, for

BULLETINS

TOKYO, (AP)—A Communist mine blew in the bulkhead projecting the forward fireroom of the U. S. destroyer Barton, killing five men and injuring seven, the Navy announced today. Six other crewmen are missing.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—John L. Lewis today split the ranks of the soft coal operators, but apparently not enough to win a peace agreement on his own terms and avert a major strike.

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—The Luebeck-Hamburg Express jumped the rails and jackknifed a crowded passenger train.

Capitol Police Give Godwin Man Bad Time

Washington, Sept. 18 — A young North Carolina hitchhiker isn't sure he wants to pass through Washington again—not after what he went through earlier this week when he tried it.

It seems that 27-year-old Jesse Jernigan set out from his home at Godwin in Cumberland county to visit a friend in Rockville, Md. He was doing fine until he reached the District of Columbia, where police were keeping a sharp eye out for assorted criminals from other states.

Jernigan had just arrived in the district from Virginia when the car in which he had hitched a ride was stopped by a scout car.

PICKED UP AS SUSPECT The police thought the North Carolinian might be a man who had held up a store earlier in Virginia.

They let him go after he established his identity. But less than 24 hours later, when Jernigan was almost out of the district toward the Maryland side, he was met again by police.
