Byrnes Puts

(Continued From Page One) didate has switched his views on the Taft-Hartley law, fair employment practices and the filibuster rule since his nomination, to conform with those of the President.

"I shall not vote for the label," Byrnes declared. "I shall do what I have heretofore urged others to do. I shall place loyalty to my country above loyalty to a political party and I shall vote for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Byrnes, who last Aug. 5, had whipped his state Democratic convention into line behind the party ticket, declared: "ADLAI FOR FEPC "On the issue of fair employment practices, Governor Stevenson in the past expressed the opinion such legislation was a matter for the state and not the Federal government."

"Now candidate Stevenson favors compulsory federal legislation with the provision that should a state fail to enact and enforce an adequate law that the federal law should apply."

Byrnes said Stevenson at first announced he opposed a repeal of the Taft-Hartley and favored only amending it, but later "changed his signals and joined the President advocating repeal." Stevenson also held at first that "it would be very dangerous to limit debate in a democracy but recently he has changed his position," he said.

Byrnes' switch of allegiance could touch off a chain reaction in Dixie against the Democratic presidential candidate.

A one time New Deal and Fair Deal power, Byrnes is probably the single most influential Southern statesman.

Byrnes' action reopened the North-South rift within the Democratic party which apparently healed at the national convention with nomination of the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket.

Whether it would lead to another bolt in the normally Democratic "Solid South" was a subject of intense debate in political circles.

Both Republican and Democratic headquarters were caught flat-footed by Byrnes' action and had no immediate reaction. But a high Democratic source predicted that while the vote may be closer, South Carolina will remain in the Democratic column.

One thing was certain. The Byrnes move will touch off a reprisal of the stand taken already by many Southern politicians, including South Carolina Sens. Buruet R. Maybank and Olin D. Johnston, both of whom have spoken out for the Democratic ticket.

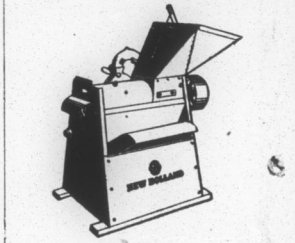

Byrnes' claim that Stevenson was moving "left" has been echoed by many other Southerners. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said recently that Stevenson was cozying up too closely to the left-wing Americans for Democratic Action.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) has said he cannot campaign for Stevenson because of his espousal of federal ownership of tidelands oil.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, who carries much weight in deciding which way Virginia will go, has thus far maintained an ominous silence on the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket.
