U. S. Accused Of Planning World War III

MOSCOW - Politburo member Georgi M. Malenkov charged at the opening of the 19th Soviet Communist party congress today that a Hitlerite regime in the United States is rushing the West toward a new world war.

But, he told 1,500 cheering delegates, "there is no force in the world which can halt our progress."

Keynoting the congress for the first time in the place of Premier Josef Stalin, Malenkov said the Soviet Union is "strengthening and will continue to strengthen" its defenses against the possibility of an American attack.

He said Russia "is not afraid of war," but promised the Soviets would not attack the West. He said Russia believes in the possibility of "peaceful co-existence between capitalism and communism."

Stalin sat apart on the platform, his chin cupped in his hand, listening as his trusted lieutenant made the opening address he himself had delivered at every previous party congress since the death of Nicolai Lenin in 1924.

Malenkov, wearing a simple tunic, without a single decoration, lashed out repeatedly at the United States during a four- and a-half hour speech on internal and foreign policy that lasted from last night into the early morning hours today.

Falcon Dedication Draws Large Crowd Dr. Messick Is Heard

Every seat was taken and it was necessary to bring in additional chairs and place them in the vestibule and aisles to accommodate the overflow audience at both the morning and evening services yesterday in dedication of the Culbreth Memorial Church at Falcon.

The new house of worship was named in honor of the late Julius A. Culbreth, who for more than a half century lived at Falcon and directed an inter-denominational meeting, founded a high school and an orphanage, and operated them on a "faith plan."

In the dedication sermon at the morning services, the Rev. John W. Brooks of Falcon paid tribute to Mr. Culbreth and said that it was a fitting tribute to "set this new building apart for the advancement of the Kingdom of God and as a place where the people could get help strength and courage to meet their problems."

DR. MESSICK SPEAKS Speaking on "Democracy and Religion" at the afternoon services, Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College pointed out that Christianity must be not only a profession of faith, but must be a part of every Christian.

"We must put into practice the teachings of Christ in our work and in every activity in our community," he declared.

The afternoon services opened with the laying of the cornerstone by the Rev. Jerome Hodges, followed by the report of the Chairman of the building committee, H. E. Cooper. Remarks followed by Alumnus secretary, Rev. James W. Butler. The afternoon contributions, totalling $2,500, were set aside for the building fund.

The new church, $40,000 brick structure, becomes the sanctuary for the Falcon congregation, and fronts the "little round tabernacle" built in 1898. It is furnished with the latest in heating equipment, pulpit furniture, comfortable pews and other fixtures and will seat 500.

THOMAS GIVES WELCOME The Rev. Woodrow W. Thomas is the pastor and he made the welcome address at the morning portion of the dedication services. The opening prayer was delivered by the Rev. A. H. Butler of Falcon.

All six of the speakers had been intimately connected with the founder in his work and each paid high tribute to the faith and courage which made Falcon synonymous with religious endeavor in this area.

Expresses Hope Legislature Will Change Law

City Judge H. Paul Strickland today relented on his previous refusal to grant jury trials in his court. Announced that he will grant jury trials to all defendants who request it, and issued a statement in which he sought to clarify his position in the matter.

In a surprise move, Judge Strickland reversed his earlier decision not to allow jury trials and expressed the hope that the 1953 legislature will settle the issue.

Judge Strickland pointed out that "it appears now that it would be after January 1, 1953 before it would be possible to get the Supreme Court of North Carolina to pass on that time the 1953 General Assembly the question..." and that, "By that time the 1953 Gen. Assembly will be in session and will be in a position to pass the necessary laws to clarify this question."

WONT TRY APPEAL Thus, he indicated that he will drop efforts to have the Supreme Court rule on the question which has raged here since he announced a few months ago that he would not allow jury trials in his court, but would transfer all requests for jury trials to the Superior Court.

Two Superior Court judges ruled that the Dunn Recorder could not do this and reversed him on each case decided.

"The four cases in which jury trials have been requested and which have been held in abeyance during the pendency of this question will be tried by a jury. The Court will also try any other cases
