TAFT TO HOLD SENATE SEAT

CINCINNATI, O. (P) — Sen. Robert A. Taft said today that he did not expect President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower to have serious trouble putting his program through the Senate.

Taft said that the narrow Republican majority was important only in the organization of the Senate and that with Richard Nixon, a Republican, presiding as vice president, the GOP would have a majority when it came to organization of the Senate.

Taft, leader of the Republican Senate policy committee, rejected any suggestion that he may leave the Senate to accept a Cabinet post.

MARGIN NOT VITAL

Taft said the narrow Republican margin was "not so important on measures. We have a lot of Democratic support there."

GOP Congress Ike Carries

go to the Senate as an independent because of threatened reprisals for his support of Eisenhower during the presidential campaign. The GOP used his vote.

Control of the two houses of Congress is important because it determines which party will elect committee majorities and chairmen.

Although the GOP lacks one vote for a Senate majority it is assured of control at least after Jan. 20, because Vice President-elect Richard M. Nixon then will be able to vote in case of ties.

Thereafter, the Republicans will be dependent on Democratic help to offset normal losses from their own ranks on key votes. Eisenhower's legislative lieutenants are expected to try to develop a working arrangement with conservative southern Democrats who have often voted with the GOP in the past in an informal coalition.

However, minority statutes usually has a unifying effect on a party even one which has been badly divided as the Democrats for the past 14 years.

McFARLAND DEFEATED

The chief Democratic casualty Tuesday was Sen. Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, majority floor leader for the past two years.

Elected to replace former Sen. Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, McFarland was the second Senate Democratic leader to be defeated in successive Congressional elections.

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), defeated vice presidential nominee is one possibility for the job of Democratic floor leader next year, although Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), could have it if he wanted it.

On the Republican side, the floor leader is Sen. Stale Bridges of New Hampshire, who took the post in 1951, saying he wanted it for only two years. Bridges, who probably will be chairman of the Appropriations Committee, will have a high priority claim on the job of president pro tempore of the Senate if he wants it.

In the House, Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, is in line for the speaker's job. Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana probably will succeed to the GOP floor leader job which he held during Martin's 1947-49 speakership.

On the Democratic side, retiring Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas is the probable choice for party floor leader if he will take the job.

Humorous Side

an hour after Adlai Stevenson conceded his defeat, it started to rain in Dallas. It was the first rain in the drought-stricken city since Oct. 7. Local Republicans called it an Eisenhower shower.

ROCKVILLE, Ind. (P) — Adlai Stevenson wasn't the only Adlai to lose the election. Adlai Hendrix, a retired school teacher who was named for the Democratic presidential candidate's grandfather, was defeated in his bid for a seat in the Indiana Legislature.

MINEAPOLIS, Minn. (P) — A chapter of the National Bald-headed club took note today of the election victory of "one of our boys," Russell S. Ackerman, secretary of Minneapolis Bald Pates No. 2, said

"I don't believe it indicates any substantial increase in the Republican strength in the South," he said.

Seawell, the loser, said he thinks Dwight Eisenhower's success in the South is due to "personal popularity." He said he thinks the South will eventually have a two-party system but "the Republicans can't build it themselves. It will have to be done by the Democrats and Independents."

The Carthage lawyer said he thinks that if a single leading North Carolina Democrat had been willing to back Eisenhower, the general would have carried the state.

"Sen. Willis Smith almost did it — But not quite," said Seawell. "I wired Smith to put his voice where his heart was. If he had, North Carolina might have gone for Ike."

SMITH HITS RADICALS

Smith himself said the election was "a disappointment to those who supported the entire Democratic ticket." He said he thinks the election appears "to reflect the objection of our people to 'Trumanism' and 'we should devote ourselves to preventing the radical elements from assuming control of the party.'"

Gov. Kerr Scott said he saw "nothing significant" in the Republican vote in the South. Scott said "oil" was responsible for the large GOP turnout in Texas and Louisiana but "I just don't know" what caused the Republican victory in Virginia.

"I was satisfied with the showing of the Democrats in North Carolina," Scott added. "The Republican vote was just what it generally is."

BALEY ENCOURAGED

State Republican Chairman James M. Baley said he was encouraged by the "better" Republican showing. "I believe it will make the beginnings of the two-party system in North Carolina," Baley said.

Scott dismissed such claims. He said, "I always thought we had a two-party system."

Seawell said no one can talk about a two-party system in the state when the Republicans have no organization in eastern North Carolina.

"The state were divided at Raleigh, we would have an opportunity to elect a Republican governor," he said.

IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Paul L. Strickland underwent an operation in the Dunn hospital today. Her condition is reported to be fine.

AT CIRCUS

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Thompson and children, Tommy and Jimmy, attended the circus in Raleigh Tuesday night.

ston County, daughter of the late W.R.A. and Lina Barbour of a widely-known Johnston County family.

She married the late Mr. Suggs in 1898. Mr. Suggs, a conductor for the Durham and Southern Railroad, died here in 1941.

LIVED HERE 40 YEARS

Mrs. Suggs had resided in Dunn for the past 40 years and was one of the town's best known women. She was a member of the First Baptist Church and as long as health permitted took a leading part in the affairs of the church.

Mrs. Suggs was a member of the T. E. L. Class of the church and had served for several years as president of the class.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Paul L. Strickland Sr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Ennis, both of Dunn; two sons, Jr. Arthur Suggs of Benson and J. O. Suggs, Jr., of Leaksville; one sister, Mrs. T. J. Mims, who made her home with Mrs. Suggs; one brother, Ayden Barbour of Durham, and 11 grandchildren.

Dwight D. Eisenhower was an honorary member of the club and had been appointed a delegate to the national convention Saturday at St. Cloud, Minn.
