

Million Dollar Fund To Develop Young Fighters

NEW YORK — (AP) — Chairman Bob Christenberry of the New York Boxing Commission announced today he would try to establish a million-dollar foundation in the Empire State to help develop young professional fighters.

As he made the announcement, Christenberry said he was elated at the election triumph of his close friend General Eisenhower but he was seriously concerned over the decrease of commercial scrappers in his state.

Duke, Oklahoma and Southern Cal. Slated To Win In Top Grid Games Eddie Sawyer Considered As Pilot

By NORMAN MILLER (United Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK — (AP) — Oklahoma, Southern California, Duke and Purdue were made the favorites today to win four of the top attractions on Saturday's college football program.

Oklahoma, the nation's fifth-ranked team, was a 13-point pick over Notre Dame in their inter-sectional clash at South Bend, Ind., which will be viewed by a coast-to-coast television audience.

tear turns professional now, there is no way he can earn a living during his four-round and perhaps six-round days. That's why the amateurs are hanging up their gloves instead of turning pro, and that's why so many young professionals have deserted the ring and gone to work.

What did Christenberry mean by establishing a million-dollar foundation?

"I mean that we will try to get some philanthropic organization like the Rockefeller or Fords to establish a foundation to support young professionals until they can either begin to make a living with their fists or be sent back to some civilian job because they lack fighting equipment."

Christenberry explained that proper estates could be "bought for a song" in the Catskills or on Long Island, and that the one selected could be equipped with a gymnasium at small cost.

He continued: "Each boy could work a couple hours a day to help defray expenses of the training foundation, but none would work more. None would work eight hours—the long grind that amateurs put into making a living while they're turning pro in the preliminaries. You just can't work eight hours a day and still have enough energy to train for the professional ring."

On the West Coast, Southern California, one of the five unbeaten and untied teams in the country, was established only a seven-point favorite over twice-beaten Stanford in their clash at Stanford, Calif. Southern California, ranked sixth nationally and tied with UCLA for the Pacific Coast Conference lead, must beat the Indians to keep alive their Rose Bowl hopes.

Duke, which suffered its first setback of the season last week, was a 13-point pick over Navy at Durham, N. C., and Purdue was 13 over Minnesota in a key Big Ten battle at Minneapolis. Purdue, ranked ninth in the nation, is the conference leader, although Minnesota also has a chance for the title and the Rose Bowl.

In other major games involving hopefuls, Texas, the South-west Conference pace-setter was a seven-point favorite over Baylor at Waco, Tex.; Penn State was six over Syracuse in one of the East's best games at Syracuse, N. Y., while unbeaten and untied Georgia Tech, already chosen for the Sugar Bowl, was 20 over Army at Atlanta, Ga.

Michigan State and UCLA, two of the other perfect record powers, were three-touchdown favorites. The Spartans, seeking their 22nd straight victory, were 20 over Indiana at Bloomington, Ind., and UCLA was 21 over Oregon

Ike Finds

(Continued from page one) Eisenhower came to Washington at an early date for briefing on the problems ahead, including the 1953-54 budget, and to show the world that Americans are united in the struggle for freedom and peace.

Eisenhower's staff reported that they heard about Mr. Truman's invitation from press sources but not directly from the chief executive until mid-evening Wednesday night. Pending a direct message from Mr. Truman, the advisers around the President-elect preferred to withhold comment for publication.

Although ringed by federal operatives and surrounded at an enforced distance by reporters and photographers, Eisenhower and his family were enjoying more seclusion and relaxation than at any time since he returned from Europe in the early summer to run for the presidency on the Republican ticket.

The President-elect seemed to be relatively content in his new and somewhat restricted role and he professed only one short-range goal—to play golf and fish.

Eisenhower, his wife, their daughter-in-law, three grandchildren, and Mrs. Eisenhower's mother are in residence in cottages bordering the well-manicured links of the golf club. The small cottage where the President-elect and his Mamie are living was the house of Robert Tyre Bobby Jones Jr., Georgia's most famous golfer and president of the club.

Jones is ill in Atlanta, however, and unable to join his old friend here. USING THREE COTTAGES The Eisenhower family is lodged in three secluded cottages on the edge of the golf course. The President-elect and his wife have one cottage. In the next house is Mrs. Elvira Doud of Denver, Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, and Dr. and Mrs. Howard Snyder. Snyder was Eisenhower's personal physician in Paris and traveled with him throughout the presidential campaign.

He set a number of records in Congress, including one in the realm of fisticuffs. He swapped blows with another member on the House floor at age 83, and did well in the exchange, although he modestly told reporters later he had "just sort of brushed" his opponent's cheek.

Rep. E. Eugene Cox (D-Ga.), a 69-year-old man at the time, was the other man in this bout. He will succeed Sabath as top Democrat on the Rules Committee. Cox and Sabath shook hands after their flurry, and remained good friends.

As a lad of 15 Sabath made his way to this country alone from what is now Czechoslovakia. He arrived at Baltimore with $1.33 in his pocket, made his way to Chicago, got a $3 per week job in a planing mill job, and decided that the Windy City was his home.

He studied at night, got a law degree, established a profitable real estate business, and won election as a police judge, a post in which he dispensed more mercy than justice. The foreign born of Chicago's Fifth District like him so well he decided to run for Congress.

Wyatt expressed pleasure at the way the campaign had gone. "Governor Stevenson had no compromises, no commitments and has no regrets," Wyatt said. "The outcome could not have been other than it was and Stevenson abides cheerfully by the decision."

The defeated candidate did give evidence of one regret. He admitted he hated to give up the reins of state governorship, a job he thoroughly liked and sincerely wanted to retain.

Bonus Babies May Just Get Merit Money

By CARL LUNDQUIST (United Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK — (AP) — Baseball's fabulous "bonus babies," who used to get up to $100,000 plus an automobile for dad just for signing their names, may have to get their big money strictly on a merit basis in the future, Commissioner Ford Frick said today.

Baseball's big boss, outlining the proposed new bonus rule which will be voted on at the major and minor league meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., next month, said it contained no limits on what a youngster could get. But the restrictions imposed are so binding that only the "cream of the crop" will be involved in the big-money bidding, Frick pointed out.

The proposed rule provides that any player who is signed for more than the major league salary minimum of $5,000 for a single year must either be placed on the club's roster for two full playing seasons, or be subject to selection in the annual "bargain basement" player draft after one year on a minor league farm club.

"Under the new rule, a player probably wouldn't get the big bonus to begin with, but he can be paid any amount under the $5,000 minimum and be told that if he makes good after a period in the minors, he will be brought up to the majors on merit," Frick said.

"I should not become suspicious of a club as a possible violator of the rule if it signed a player below the bonus limit, kept him in the minors a year, then brought him up to the majors and paid him a good sized salary—provided he had made good in the minors. And the practical effect should be for club owners to use extreme caution unless they know that a kid player really has the goods."

Frick made it plain, though, that he did not think the rule would halt high bonuses—perhaps up to $100,000—for young players of obvious major league caliber. "Just imagine Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox or Bob Carpenter of the Phillies—to pull two names from the hat—holding up on the bidding if they thought they had a kid like pitcher Robin Roberts," he said.

In the event a bonus player is kept on the big league roster for two years, he must count at all times in the club's player limit. If the club decides not to keep him, he is subject to "grabs" by other major league clubs at the waiver price.

Frick said the principal difference between the proposed bonus rule and the one which was discarded by baseball two years ago is that "there are teeth in this one which provide drastic penalties to violators, and we certainly will be prepared to throw the book at any club owners found guilty of such practices."

He said that applied mainly to so-called "under the table" bonuses of cold cash. Violations will be penalized with heavy fines and Frick said he would not hesitate to throw any one out of baseball for flagrant cases.

The bonus rule would extend all the way through the minors with a $4,000 top for clubs in the open, Triple-A, Double-A and A classifications, and $3,000 for the B, C, and D lower minor circuits.
