Child Gets Last Look At Her Toy; Now She's Blind

KINSTON, Ont., (AP) — Four-year-old Barbara Ann Burton took her last dimmed look yesterday at the new big red rocking horse Santa Claus brought two months early.

Today, she was blind. Doctors, who already had removed her left eye, removed the right eye yesterday in a last attempt to root out a cancer growing behind it. They said it was her sight or her life.

Her condition was satisfactory after the operation, but her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Burton, could only "hope for the best."

"When the doctors asked us to make the decision, we didn't think twice," Burton said. "We want her with us as long as we can have her."

Burton brought home the rocking horse last month when he knew that by Christmas Barbara Ann would never be able to see.

PATIENT IN HOSPITAL — Mrs. M. E. Gibson, mother of Mrs. C. T. McGugan, is a patient in the Dunn Hospital. Her condition is improving.

IN RALEIGH FOR CIRCUS — Mr. and Mrs. Ed Welborn and children attended the circus in Raleigh Tuesday night.
