Achievement Event Hailed Big Success

Harnett County home demonstration club members staging their annual Achievement Day Program Friday night at Anderson Creek School gave ample proof of their originality in many fields.

Exhibits in the agriculture building by the clubs were almost as diverse as housekeeping demands. The dinner served in the cafeteria by the Anderson Creek Club members demonstrated anew that the proof of the "pudding is in the eating." No objection was heard to the barbecue, the chicken salad, and the fine array of homemade pies.

A showing of children's clothes and a talent show which produced dramatics, readings, songs, and stunts comprised the night program. An audience of more than 400 people, over half men and children, was visible proof that the activities of the club women were truly a family affair.

From the viewpoint of the audience no objection was heard to talent, but to the fact that there was too much of it. Participation by 12 clubs in separate theatricals ran the program to undue length. But most of the audience was still with the show to applaud the presentation of the twenty-five dollar bond for the most outstanding club to the Turlington Club. Mrs. J. C. Hardee, club president accepted for the winners and County Agent C. R. Ammons made the presentation. Donors of the prize were Mr. and Mrs. Al Wullenwaber of the Frozen Food Lockers of Dunn.

Mrs. W. J. Cotton, Jr. of Kipling president of the county council, presided. Mrs. L. B. Smith of Chalybeate narrated the children's fashion show, and Mrs. Arthur Capps of Oakdale, secretary of the council was the maestro of the talent show.

Judges for the fashion show were Mrs. Julia Alexander Hoyle, Lee County home agent, and Miss Helen Russell, Lillington home economics teacher.

No prizes were awarded for the exhibits which highlighted the year's work. Turlington club presented a clever circular display entitled "Let There Be Music." Drawings of music notes encircled the exhibit and in three tiers were various figurines symbolizing Negro spirituals, folk songs, hymns, hill billy tunes, classical music and Christmas carols.

Mt. Pisgah club used a display of handwork, canned fruit, honey, oil paintings and books as representative of the variety of subjects studied in the year.

Oakdale showed a replica of a community building with the title, "Recreation Builds Strong Bodies, Healthy Minds."

Olivia used the pat title, "Busy Hands" for an unusual display of needlework ranging from crochet to rug making.

Cape Fear displayed books under the theme, "New Horizons with Books."

Leaflet Club gave a placard record of the club achievement during each month illustrated with colored pictures.

Anderson Creek showed beautifully made quilts.

Chalybeate Springs asked "Will You Leave These to Your Children?" and listed (1) right to worship represented by small Bible, (2) right to lock your door, with a key, (3) cise tax on liquor, autos, cigarettes and other items, and the 1951 tax increase on regular corporate income.

Federal revenue in the current fiscal year, with all these taxes include, is estimated at $68,700,000,000, which means the government will operate about $10,000,000,000 in the red. If Congress lets the expiring taxes die, the deficit is fiscal 1954 will be correspondingly greater, unless spending is cut drastically.

Eisenhower's specific plans for the fiscal 1954 budget are still unknown. Detroit banker Joseph M. Dodge arrives in Washington tomorrow to represent the President-elect at budget conferences until the final document is prepared. Whether he will make recommendations or just listen and ask questions is also unknown, but the latter is expected.

was the Bus Ride, a take-off of short trip bus passengers presented by the Friendly Club of Lillington, Route 1.

Other clubs participating in the talent show were Anderson Creek which presented Mrs. John Lington in two solos; Benhaven which had Mrs. C. B. Noel give the reading, "The Farmer's Daughter"; Chalybeate which gave a skit on table etiquette for a formal dinner; Cape Fear which presented a mother-daughter piano duet by Mrs. Ernest Wilder, and Mrs. J. T. Long; and Goodwill Club with its silent club meeting.

Other acts were given by Kipling which gave the Human Flag; Mt. Pisgah which presented a reading "At the Ball Game"; Oakdale, a radio variety program; Olivia, a reading by Hilda Kirk on "Sambo Got Flees"; Pleasant Community Club, Mrs. T. H. Penny in a reading, "Sallie Ann's Experience," and Turlington Club, Mrs. W. R. Langdon a reading.

The Fashion show used a set designed to represent "The Old Woman in the Shoe." Children of club members, wearing clothes their mothers made, entered the stage from the door of the shoe. Apparel suitable for school, church, party, play and slumber for the small fry as well as the teen age group were displayed and drew a big hand. Nineteen of the county's 22 clubs offered highlights from the year's work by their club presidents.
