Assembly Gets Vehicle Bills

Introduce Bills To Put Teeth In Vehicle Laws

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Adam J. Whitley Jr., Johnston County, was expected to introduce a bill in the upper chamber of the General Assembly today to put teeth in state laws against reckless driving. Sen. Hamilton Hobgood of Franklin County offered a measure yesterday to make jail sentences mandatory for all persons who are twice convicted of drunk driving.

The joint House - Senate Appropriations Committee began hearing pleas yesterday from state officials who want more money than was recommended for their departments by the Advisory Commission in the next two years.

Acting Probation Commissioner J. D. Beatty asked approval of two more parole officers for his staff. The extra officers would help keep parolees from returning to crime and would save the state money, he said.

NEEDS MORE MEN

Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw said better compliance with the state's existing tax structure would enable the state to meet critical needs without raising taxes. To get better compliance, he said, his department needs 29 more employees than were recommended by the Commission.

A number of department heads - including Paroles Commissioner N. F. Randsall, Bureau of Investigation Director James Powell and Archives Director Christopher Crittenden - said they were quite happy with the recommendations of the commission.

The House, which met 55 minutes earlier than usual and adjourned in 12 minutes, quickly passed a Senate resolution establishing a committee to investigate the student bus driver situation. The resolution calls for a six-man committee of senators and representatives to study the "feasibility of discontinuing the use of student bus drivers" and report back to the commission.

REEDY PRONG HELPED TOO
Due to an oversight by the writer, the members and friends at Reedy Prong Primitive Baptist Church in Johnston county were left out in the article that appeared in The Daily Record on January 21 regarding the new car for Elder Lester E. Lee. The people around Reedy Prong responded in a big way.

Ike's Cabinet Takes The Field Without Wilson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's Cabinet team finally took the field today — one day late.

In all but one of the big government agencies, Republican appointees took over from caretaker Democrats and began the heavy task of organizing the new administration.

The only exception was the Defense Department, where the changeover still was stalled because of the Senate wrangle over confirmation of Charles E. Wilson as secretary.

Senate approval of the rest of the Cabinet, blocked temporarily by Sen. Wayne Morse Ind.-Ore., inauguration day, went off without a hitch late Wednesday.

The eight officials and new Federal Security Administrator Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby were sworn at the White House in a simple, 11-minute ceremony under the approving gaze of Mr. Eisenhower and his official family.

The "new team," as the President calls it, lost no time swinging into action.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who got an "all right now you've got a job" from the President when he was sworn in, was called before a closed meeting of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, the 62-year-old former Cleveland, O., industrialist, planned a series of exploratory conferences, with the production of cash presenting a possible initial problem.

COWBOY CATCHES PRESIDENT IN HAPPY MOMENT — President Dwight D. Eisenhower grins broadly from the reviewing stand in Washington as cowboy Monte Montana demonstrates his dexterity with a lariat. The Montana had been giving the parade crowd something of a thrill with his rope tricks, when he spied the Chief Executive and motioned to him. The President agreed to go along with the gag and stood up, with the results pictured here. Mrs. Eisenhower stands by laughing. Dulles Warns Loyalty Will Be Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles opened his foreign policy stewardship today with a warning to 16,500 U. S. diplomatic employes that the highest "competence, discipline and positive loyalty" will be demanded of them.

Anything less, Dulles said, will not be tolerated.

The 240-word message was distributed to all State Department employes in this country and radioed to 300 American missions in 75 countries. It was his first move to restore the prestige of the U. S. diplomatic service, damaged by disloyalty in the past.

While he called for "positive loyalty" the new Republican administration's policies, Dulles emphasized that "loyalty does not call for any one to practice intellectual dishonesty or to distort his reporting to please superiors." He said the United States can have effective foreign policies only if its overseas diplomatic representatives send home "honest evaluations of the facts."

The message was delivered at home and abroad as Dulles moved into the fifth floor suite of offices in the State Department occupied (Continued on Page 8)

Judge Gets Tough Driver Fined $250

A Lillington Negro, Colin Ray, who was fined $250 and costs yesterday in Harnett Recorder's Court for driving without a driver's license is ready to admit his oversight in getting a license is expensive business.

The defendant, his aged mother and other relatives counted out 283 crumpled one dollar bills. As the stack of money rose higher their faces grew longer.

Judge M. O. Lee made good his threat "to get tough" with motorists who drive without an operator's license. The 40 year old defendant, who lives on Lillington, Route 3, entered guilty pleas to two counts.

Highway patrolmen testified they first arrested Ray on Oct. 20 and that seven days later he was cited on the same charge. When he finally appeared in court last week to answer to the charges he was intoxicated and drew seven days in jail on a contempt of court (Continued on Page Two)

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Pictures of the new President apparently were as scarce here today as black homburg hats were in Washington shops this week, and the shortage has left Postmaster George E. Wilson Jr. in a tizzy. 'I want one. To have a picture of the nation's chief executive hang over the desk in his office. However, Mr. Truman's countenance continued to smile down on Wilson and inquisitive visitors today. Wilson said his staff has called "every likely place" in town, but hadn't yet uncovered a picture of Mr. Eisenhower that was (Continued on Page Two)

Erwin Union Gets Contract

Specialist Tells Of Nematode Treating

The use of chemicals and rotation of crops were two means of combating nematodes were proposed by S. N. Hawks, Jr., at a meeting of farmers held in the courthouse at Lillington last night. Hawks, a tobacco specialist at State College, recommended the use of methyl bromide, but stressed that rotation of crops would supply the pests with less food value than the continued planting of tobacco and corn.

Although the use of chemicals definitely helps in control, he warned that continued use might damage the farmland. He said that the State College experiment station was conducting tests now to determine the effect over a long period of time.

"Occasional use with crop rotation we have found to be the best method of control," he declared. Nematodes not only hurt the plants in the field, he pointed out, but result in leaf that brings a lower price on the market.

He showed slides to demonstrate the effect on tobacco fields and others showing proper methods of curing. The main fault with most methods, he said, was that excessive heat was used, and the recommended temperatures of not over 160 degrees.

Nematodes are small worms that has attacked the roots of tobacco plants causing untold damage in recent years throughout the flue-cured belt.

More than a hundred farmers were present for the meeting and in addition a number of agricultural teachers from schools of the county were present.

The Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, has negotiated a new two-year contract with Erwin Mills, Inc., it was announced this morning by Julius Fry of Greensboro, area director of the CIO.

Mr. Fry emphasized that the contract is subject to ratification by the workers at Erwin. The union is expected to meet during the weekend to take action on ratification.

The new contract, which covers about 2,000 workers at Erwin, includes the usual TWUA contract requirements on arbitration, vacation and wage re-opening clauses and improvements of seniority provisions.

Mr. Fry said the new contract makes the 12th consecutive year of collective bargaining relations between Erwin Mills, Inc., and TWUA, CIO.

The exact terms of the contract will be presented at the ratification meetings.

The TWUA-CIO also represents Erwin Mills workers at Neuse and Stonewall, Miss.

An unsuccessful attempt to win membership at Erwin was made in a recent NLR election by the UTW. AFL. Workers voted for continued representation by the CIO.

Former Benson Man Drowns In Richmond

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Oris Young, 41, of Richmond, Va., former resident of Benson, Route 2 who was drowned in Richmond on December 8th.

Mr. Young was first reported missing on December 8th, but his body was not found until yesterday. It was recovered from the James River. Other details of the drowning were not known here.

The services will be held at the Beulah Baptist Church near McMorris Crossroads in Johnston County. The Rev. Mr. Stephenson of Wilsons Mills will officiate. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Young was a native of Johnston County, son of Mrs. Laura E. (Continued on page two)

Guard Alerted In Prison Riot

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — Gov. John S. Fine alerted units of the Pennsylvania National Guard today to help state police storm the Rockview penitentiary main cell block unless rebelling prisoners surrender "without conditions."

Five told a press conference at Harrisburg that a deadline for hold-out rioters will be set tonight at a meeting of state and law enforcement officials at the governors summer home at Indian-town Gap.

The governor said there will be no deals with the rioting prisoners, who served 12 demands on prison officials and are holding six guards as hostages.

"The administration rejects compromise with these defiant prisoners as a renoungant and degrading proposal," Fine said.
