Truman Statement Viewed With Dismay

WASHINGTON — (P Atomic officials were flabbergasted today by a report INS that former Pres-ident Harry S. Truman is still "not convinced" that Russia has a work-able atomic bomb. They said the doubts attributed to Mr. Truman in a published in-terview are in direct conflict with official statements issued from his own White House office and re-peated public declarations by high officials of his own administration in the past two years. frichtened away belote they com-pleted their task. Entry was eained by breaking the class in the front doors and prving off the locks The burglars were evidently hold because a licht was chining over the doors and it must have taken 15 or 20 minutes to effect entry. The store is located on Hichway 301, inst south of Dunn, and there is always considerable bassing traffic. The doors at the front were new and had only been up for a day before the breakin. This is the sixth burglary at this store within recent months. The first announcement said only that "an atomic explosion" had taken place in the Soviet Union. This language gave rise to some hopeful speculation at the time that perhaps the Russians had not per-fected a usable military weapon, but had merely set off an atomic blast by accident or through some cumbersome experimental tech-nique.
