Good Blood, Nerves, And Health

"Look to your health; and if you have it, praise God, and value it next to a good conscience; for health is the second blessing that we mortals are capable of; a blessing that money cannot buy." —Isaac Walton.

Without normal nerve function we cannot have normal health. Until this fact is realized by the masses, millions will be seeking health in vain. The nerve line is the health line. When anything goes wrong with that line, vitality is lowered and disease is invited.

In a previous article, the network of human nerves was shown to be like an electric grid system. Over the nerve line flows a special kind of energy which activates and regulates every part of the body. As electricity races over wires to "make the wheels go round," in the article mentioned above it was pointed out that pressure or tension at any point will disturb the normal work of the nerves and will, therefore, mark the beginning of ill health.

But freedom from pressure and tension is not enough to assure normal nerve function. Nerves are human tissue and therefore must be nourished. Their nourishment is supplied by the blood. Through a vast network of small arteries the blood stream feeds the nerves — just as it nourishes other parts of the body — with food materials picked up from the stomach and intestines and with oxygen taken from air cells in the lungs. Endlessly this blood stream flows for endlessly the nerves are at work. Day and night the nerve lines carry their load of vital energy even to the most remote parts of

Sheriff Salmon At His Office Today

Sheriff W. E. (Bill) Salmon visited his office in the courthouse today for the first time since January 1st. He has been ill for the intervening time. The popular Harnett official shook hands with his many friends around the courthouse and was showered with congratulations on being up and around again.

After saying in his office for about an hour, he declined a deputy's offer of a ride home saying "It feels so good to be out again. I thing I'd rather walk home." open and with its arteries filled with pure nutritious blood, has high natural resistance to disease. In such a body disease germs have little chance. But when nerves are cramped and blood is weak, resistance goes down and the body invites disease. Health is freedom from disease. It is the cherished possession of those whose vitality is high. And vitality is high only when the blood is rich and the nerves are free. Normal nerve function can be assured by correction of any postural distortions and restoring the mechanical integrity of the human body. When the nerve system is working smoothly, unhampered either by mental or physical hazards, the answer is buoyant health.
