Ridgway Says Allies Short Of Airpower

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told Congress today the Allies in Europe are "still gravely short of airpower" and have "major deficiencies" in supplies and ammunition.

The supreme Allied commander in Europe appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee to bolster the administration's plea for $5,800,000,000 in foreign aid. Ridgway said that even with completion of the 1954 goals set by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "we will still fall short of the minimum defensive strength required to present serious reversals in the early stages of a determined attack."

"GRAVELY SHORT" - "Despite the rapid increase in strength of the past two years," he testified, "we are still gravely short of airpower."

"To counter the threat from submarines and mines, we need additional escorts and minesweepers. We must increase the reserves of our land forces, strengthen their supply troops, and insure the continuous supply."

Ridgway, who steps up to Army chief of Staff in August, said the administration's foreign aid request "is essential to the security of the United States as well as to all the NATO nations."

Although NATO strength has increased, he said, "nevertheless there are still major deficiencies, for example in support units, logistical establishments, and stocks of ammunition."

"Air power is still the weakest link in our defense."

"Despite the substantial gains in numbers of aircraft and trained pilots deriving from the U. S. mutual defense assistance program, our air forces today are still inadequate to carry out their assigned tasks."

Ridgway said that "we can be sure that new weapons will have a powerful effect on combat operations."

"While these new weapons will contribute materially to our defensive strength," he testified, "they will also introduce new factors of vulnerability." He did not explain that point.

The foreign aid request includes $250,000,000 earmarked for "special"

Flood Reported Growing Worse In Some Areas

NEW ORLEANS, (AP) - The weather bureau warned of severe thunderstorms and "dangerously high wind" and more heavy rains along the Gulf coast from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Houma, La. today and tonight.

The forecast said the turbulent weather would extend inland about 100 miles.

Flood conditions were getting serious in sections of Louisiana in an aftermath of storms that already have caused possibly $1,000,000 of damage.

A delta - Chicago and Southern, aircriner crashed, killing 19 persons yesterday in the general area of Missouri - Pacific streamliner was derailed at a washout.

The weather forecast for Louisiana and Mississippi was for scattered thunderstorms and locally high winds - and more rain.

Floods were presenting a serious problem in St. Landry parish in south Louisiana where several families were evacuated and plans were made to get others out of danger. Bayou Coudreau was overflowing its banks at Fort Barre.

CROP DAMAGE HEAVY

The floods were in the heart of the Louisiana sweet potato belt and damage to the yams and corn crops was expected to be heavy. Mississippi rainfall so far this year already has surpassed that for all of 1952 - 32.28 inches. (Continued on page two)

By UNITED PRESS The Senate Interior Committee begins hearings today on a second tideland oil measure as President Eisenhower prepared to sign the long-debated first bill into law.

The measure would give the states title to submerged lands out to their historic seaward boundaries.

A second installment, passed by the House, would give the federal government jurisdiction over the remainder of the continental shelf.

Former Sen. James P. Kem (R-Mo.) said the Senate bill deals entirely with oil and gas leasing machinery and makes no provision for production of sulphur and other minerals.

Sen. Guy Gordon (R-Ore.) said he favors a provision in the Senate bill limiting oil and gas leases to those minerals only and leaving the way clear for reparable leases for other minerals.

Fields Case Called For Trial, Defendant Fails To Appear

C. G. Fields, former county commissioner and onetime Angier banker, failed to answer today when called for trial on embezzlement charges in Harnett Superior Court.

District Solicitor Jack Hooks immediately asked Judge J. Paul Friselle to issue an instant capias for Fields. He also requested that Fields' bond of $7,500 be doubled to $15,000.

Fields is charged with about 25 separate counts of embezzlement of about $5,000 in premiums from an insurance company. He is already under probation for conviction in Federal Court for embezzlement for the Angier bank.

Solicitor Hooks said the State had 25 witnesses present and that he had planned to go into trial of the case this morning.

Court Clerk Robert Morgan said Fields, who is working in Portsmouth, Va., had written him earlier in the month asking the date of the trial. The clerk said he had advised him that the case would probably be tried this week, but had not advised Fields of a specific date.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Harold D. Coolley, senior Democrat on the House Agriculture Committee, today accused the Eisenhower administration of wounding "a meat ax on essential farm programs."

Voting on the bill is scheduled to begin Wednesday.

The bill carries $712,747,828 in direct appropriations, a boost of $9,924,000 over the Eisenhower request, and loan authorizations totaling $347,500,000, a boost of $42,500,000 over the request.
